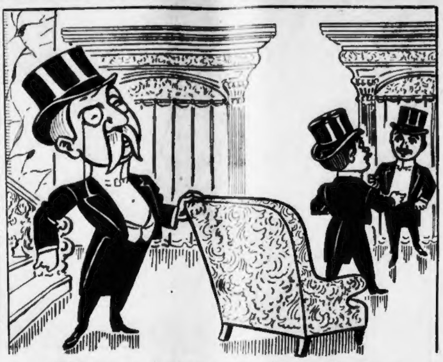
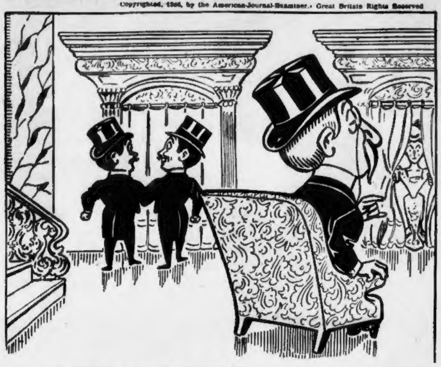
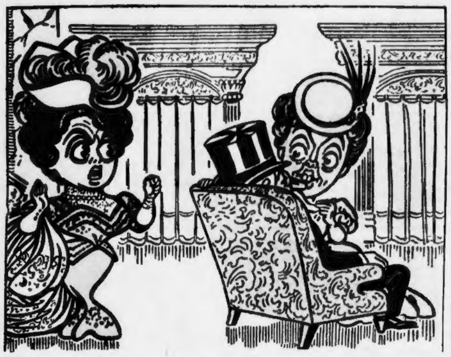
1. LULU: "Leander dear, I'll go up to our room and get my cloak, then I'll be ready to go with you to the theatre."
LEANDER: "All right, sweetheart. I'll sit right here until you return."



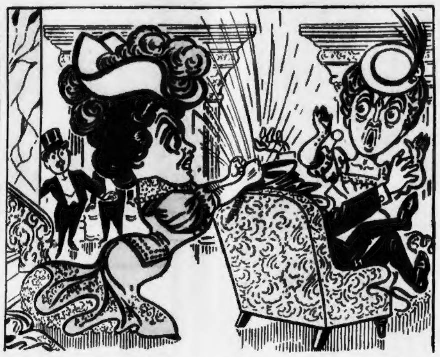
2. LEANDER: "By Jove! If here isn't my old college chum Jack Hobson!"
LORD CADDINGTON-CADDS: "Aw—the States—aw—beastly bore, dontcherknow."



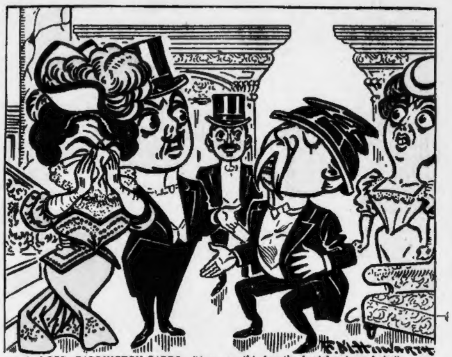
3. JACK HOBSON: "And you are married?"
LEANDER: "Yes, on my honeymoon. Come into the cafe and wish me happiness, old man."
LORD CADDINGTON-CADDS: "Aw—I wondah where Gladys can be!"



4. LADY GLADYS CADDINGTON-CADDS. "Oh, fawtha, I've been looking for you all ovah the place. I'm all ready for the show, fawtha, darling old fellah."
LULU: ——— ? ———



5. LULU: "Oh, you WRETCH! You disgrace! This is an open, public insult to me! Take that, and that, and THAT!"
LORD CADDINGTON-CADDS: "HELP! MURDER! I'M ASSASSINATED!"
LEANDER: "Heavens! My wife has made another mistake!"



6. LORD CADDINGTON-CADDS: "Aw—er—this beastly, brutal outrage I shall report to the British Ambassador."
LULU: "Oh, Leander, I thought it was you! Oh, my jealousy has again placed you in this awfully embarrassing predicament."
LEANDER: "My dear sir, accept my apologies. Here is my card. Get a new hat and send the bill to me."

WHY DO OLD MEN MARRY YOUNG WOMEN?

"She watches smilingly for the last closing of the rheumy old eyes that follow her adoringly—a girl in years, coldly waiting for a dead man's shoes."

MRS J.Q.A. WARD.

"She sickens of her role. * * * His selfish dream of happiness fades, and he is fortunate if he is spared the pangs of jealousy."

A Lively and Witty Discussion of a Topic Which is Particularly Timely Just Now in View of the Autumnal Honeymooning of Some Venerable Americans.

Crabbed age and youth cannot live together;
Youth is full of pleasance, age is full of care;
Youth like Summer morn, age like Winter weather;
Youth like Summer brave, age like Winter bare.
Youth is full of sport, age's breath is short—
Youth is nimble, age is lame;
Youth is hot and bold; age is weak and cold;
Youth is wild and age is tame.
Age, I do abhor thee; youth, I do adore thee.
—THE PASSIONATE PILGRIM.

By Clara Morris.

WHEN is a man too old to marry? When he is dead—when he reaches the hands of the undertaker—for only Death's finger checks the speaking of new marriage vows on man's lips.

We who read our newspapers attentively have read of the marriage of the venerable sculptor, J. Q. A. Ward, to a woman forty-six years younger than himself. Colonel Partridge, ex-Police Commissioner of New York, we note, has taken unto himself an admiring young wife just out of her teens.

Senators and generals seem particularly fortunate in their late marriages. Senators Platt and Depew married younger women. Senators Crane and Clark have lovely girl brides. Generals Longstreet, Buckner and Clay have been romantic military figures in the eyes of lovely young wives.

Still I like best to see an old man take as a wife a woman nearer his own age; that is natural and pleasant. Going down the hill of life alone is dreary work, and one slips so very fast, but clasp hands with another, and hold back with united strength, and you descend more slowly and more cheerfully.

Of course it is a free country and a man may marry early, often and late, if he so desires, and thus become the petted darling of divorce lawyers. But there is no marriage so brutalizing as that of the man who knowingly buys his wife outright with money, as elderly bridegrooms do many a time and oft. Soon they face each other with mutually accusing, contemptuous eyes, each despising the other, and thus descend into the hell of their own making.

Better is an old man's chance of happiness in marriage with a young girl to gratify her pride rather than to fill her purse. She likes to be pointed out as the young wife of the famous, or the wealthy Mr., or Senator, or General So-and-So! She is proud of his prominence, his popularity. A mutual ambition draws them together.

But of the young girl who marries an old and infirm man for the deliberate purpose of playing a waiting game, using her young health and strength and grim patience to load the dice that casts so high against the feeble throws of his shaking hand; who watches smilingly for the last closing of the rheumy old eyes that follow her adoringly—a girl in years, coldly waiting for a dead man's shoes! I have searched Marie Corelli's pages for words—for she is a gorgeous hater, and despises many things—but I found not the word. I have bent my shoulders over an "Unabridged," and yet in all that gathered army of strong and splendid words no one seems powerful enough to express the shamed pity and horror one feels at the grossness, the cruelty of such a youthful mercenary—I am unable to expres in public print my opinion of her.

Young women marry old men for money, for position, rarely for love. But why do old men marry young women?

There are two types of men who risk these May and December unions. One has loved lightly and often, the other self-made, in fierce determination to succeed at any sacrifice, has turned his back upon Love's advances, cast the roses and raptures of life behind him, instead of Satan, only to find at last that Nature is implacable and never forgives the breaking of her laws, so when he pleads for what he so long rejected, he receives roses that are beautiful, but alas, filled for him with gall and wormwood of disappointment instead of the nectar of love.

People often remark that these seventy-year-old bridegrooms are generally brilliant men, and the world wonders open-mouthed when this man so wise and helpful in the adjustment of other peoples' foolish tangles takes for a wife a girl young enough to be his granddaughter, and bends his erstwhile proud neck to an evidently heavy yoke.

You see, in the bright, far-off days of his young manhood, he was ever laughingly humming, that song of delightful assurance:

"There's a rose in the garden for you,
young man!"

And the rose was always there. If Gabrielle was a trifle petulant, and they quarrelled, it was, "Well, let her go!"

"There's a rose in the garden for you,
young man!"

And lo, one morning, there it was blooming in his path, and then he wearied of it, and it faded, others sprang up, some at his very feet, some that he had to reach high for; and so white and pink and damask-red, they brightened and sweetened the years, and ever and always he hummed:

"There's a rose in the garden for you,
young man!"

Until there came a day—incredible, incomprehensible day!—when there was no rose in the garden, and he said: "Why, I—I'm not old yet!"—but the garden showed him bushes and leaves and thorns—good heaven, what thorns!—and that was all, and he grew cold of manner and sharp of tongue, while his sarcasm cut friend and foe alike. He cast the poets he had loved from him; his dinner became a function, the one prominent feature of the dull day.

His polished compliments so often half-concealed a cruel sting that women came to fear him, and so he grew an old man and very weary of the world. And then he meets a childish thing, with eyes—(dear Lord!) and lips, (have mercy upon us!)—and when she placed her hand in his, like a tiny dynamo it shocked his dull nerves to life, and he felt himself born again, and now there was a rose in the garden for this old man, but it is the last, and he knows it. Hope and happiness, life and love, all are in her hands. She alone of all the world has power to roll away those blase, dead years, that like a mighty stone closed the sepulchre of his heart.

Knowing that through this lovely child he lives, he kneels, he adores, he bewilders her with incense. They marry. By and by her youth revolts, she sickens of her role of Susannah before the elders. His selfish dream of happiness fades, and he is fortunate if he is spared the pangs of jealousy.

May and December are alike miserable, but if December is a brave man and a gentleman he will suffer silently, not make himself a public mock, by howling dismally, after the manner of Mr. Samuel Churchill Norcutt of Colorado, who having, most probably, wearied into their restful graves his two wives, at seventy-three takes a third, and then "bays the moon." With what beautiful moderation of speech he makes the dignified statement "that a marriage for the elderly is nothing but a trade, and it's a mere question as to whether the money's worth has been given and taken."

This man's lack of courtesy, of consideration for the feeling of the unfortunate woman he induced to marry him is balanced by the beauty and correctness of his metaphor, as when he delicately likened Mrs. Norcutt to a running, wild mare, and says, "If you are a new hand at the reins, you wont have a ghost of a chance to trim her sails, one way or t'other."

Well—well! Is it the provoking way of this lady to start out as horse and end up as a boat? Or does her husband really own a breed of horses that wear sails?

All late mariages are not failures. Can we not recall, readily enough, the stately, stalwart, white-haired, General Simon Buckner, who followed General Grant to the grave and, standing by his coffin, in the pathos of true sorrow for the comrade of his young manhood, the eyes of the multitude suddenly saw in this confederate general's soldierly figure the personified grief of the whole South, and eyes filled, nerves thrilled and hearts beat high with admiration and affection for the simple dignity of the old soldier. Well, he loved, all silver-crowned as he was, and loved a young, high-spirited beauty, who was also ambitious. To his plea she answered, "Only make me the mistress of the State's Executive Mansion—the Governor's lady—and my hand is yours."

Straightway he took up the gage, thus cast down; entered politics at that late day, was nominated and elected, and gave a young beautiful and happy leader to social life. They were a charming pair, and I heard him in a public speech refer to her as the "sunshine of his life"—and no one sneered, because the simple truth generally commands respect.

But such a union under such circumstances is an exception. Better a nice quiet, sunny corner in a cemetery, in a coffin that doesn't crowd you, than a regretted marriage of May and December, when there is no rose in the garden for you, old man.

"MAY ALMIGHTY GOD SHOWER BLESSINGS ON YOU. GIVEN AT THE VATICAN, JULY 31, 1906. PIUS X., POPE."—TRANSLATION OF THE AUTOGRAPH MESSAGE TO MR. HEARST WRITTEN BY HIS HOLINESS ON THE PHOTOGRAPH.

THE photograph of Pope Pius X., which appears on the first page of this magazine, will be extremely interesting to all Catholics and to the American people generally, because it is by far the best ever taken of His Holiness.

It was sent to William Randolph Hearst by His Holiness as a mark of appreciation of Mr. Hearst's work in relieving the distress caused by the disastrous eruption of Vesuvius which occurred this year.

His Holiness wrote his blessing upon it in Latin, as follows: "Deus omnipotens refleat re omni benedictiones. Ex aedibus Vaticani, die 31 Julii, 1906. Pius PPX." This being freely translated means: "May Almighty God shower blessings upon you in everything. Given at the Vatican, July 31, 1906. Pius X., Pope."

The subscription raised by the Italian Relief Committee, of which Mr. Hearst was chairman, was taken to Italy by Judge Palmieri, of New York. It amounted in all to $32,354.70. The greater part of the money was sent to Italy in time to relieve the immediate and cruel distress of the inhabitants of the towns and villages at the foot of Mount Vesuvius. Their houses and all their worldly goods had been utterly destroyed by the burning torrent and many of them were wandering in the fields without money, food, clothing or shelter when the sorely needed relief was brought to them from America.

After performing his duties in distributing the fund Judge Palmieri went to Rome, where he was received in special and private audience by the Pope. His Holiness spoke with the most heartfelt appreciation of Mr. Hearst's work in relieving the distress in the Mount Vesuvius region.

"I have read in the Italian papers of Mr. Hearst's noble work," the Pope said, "and I esteem him very highly. What he did for the sufferers from Mount Vesuvius can be appreciated only by those who were here and realized the awful conditions that followed the calamities and the need of just such prompt and liberal aid as was extended by him. With what he did for San Francisco also I am familiar, and I cannot speak too highly of his charitable work, both at home and abroad."

His Holiness spoke freely of New York and its greatness and of his satisfaction at the progress and happy condition of the Catholic Church in America. Before the interview was concluded His Holiness wrote his blessing upon the photograph now reproduced, which he desired should be delivered to Mr. Hearst, together with the following message:

"I wish to convey to you my high appreciation of your patriotism as demonstrated in the generous and whole-hearted manner in which you aided in the relief of your own suffering countrymen in San Francisco, and of the willingness you showed to help all foreigners, regardless of their nationality."

Pope Pius X. is now past his seventy-first year, having been born at Riese, in the diocese of Treviso, on June 2, 1835. In spite of his advanced age he appears to be very vigorous. He is upright, broad-shouldered and inclined neither to excessive stoutness nor to emaciation. He has a ruddy face, beautiful silver-white hair and a smile of great benevolence. These attractive qualities are, if possible, enhanced by the costume in which he ordinarily receives persons in audience. This consists entirely of white silk, the only touch of color being furnished by the scarlet shoes.

The Pope doubtless owes his vigor to the peasant ancestry from which he is descended. His parents were peasants, he has always remained in the deepest sympathy with the class from which he sprang, and he has retained their habits as far as is consistent with his office.

No occupant of the Chair of St. Peter probably has achieved the ideal of Christian simplicity more perfectly than Pope Pius X. He is frequently spoken of as a saint by those who are in personal relations with him. He has surprised many of the officials of the Vatican by the simplicity of his life, for his table is no more luxurious than that of a poor parish priest. He has revolted against many of the ceremonies and customs of the Vatican, and has abrogated the ancient unwritten law that the Pope should dine alone.

Pope Pius X., whose name was originally Giuseppe Sarto, was ordained a priest in 1858, became an Episcopal Chancellor in 1875 and was made Bishop of Mantua in 1884, when he was only forty-nine years of age. It was on June 12, 1893, that he was made Cardinal and appointed Patriarch of Venice, an office that may be considered second only in importance to the Papacy itself. The only other Catholic prelate who bears this rank is the Patriarch of Lisbon, but the Pope has among his subordinate titles that of Patriarch of the West.

On August 4, 1903, Cardinal Sarto was elected Pope and assumed the name of Pius X.

Many great questions affecting the welfare of the Church have come before Pius X. during the brief period of his reign. He has promoted friendly relations with the Italian Government to such a degree that it is expected that he may terminate the state of affairs whereby the Pope has been kept technically a prisoner in the Vatican since 1870. On the other hand, His Holiness has had great difficulties with the French Government, which has repudiated the obligations toward the Church which France had assumed by treaty and which has refused to make any compromise that the Pope considers it right to accept.

"I am convinced that this club, and the prevalent spirit of gambling which it has incited, have done a far greater injury to Newport than could be done by the worst city government. I pray God it may be destroyed."

—THE REV. WALTER LOWRIE, RECTOR OF FASHIONABLE TRINITY CHURCH AT NEWPORT.

RECKLESS gambling among women has been the keynote of life this Summer at Newport, the resort of the richest people in America.

Gambling has been going on everywhere all day long, but the great temple of chance, the headquarters of sin, has been the Bungalow Whist Club. By some critics it has been called Canfield's-by-the-Sea, and has been denounced by the Rev. Mr. Lowrie, of Trinity Episcopal Church, under that name, but it is far more exclusive, distinguished and fashionable than either of Canfield's gambling houses was, and the aggregate wealth of the persons belonging to the club and their husbands is infinitely greater than that of his patrons. As a gambling institution the Bungalow Whist Club can only be compared to the Salle des Princes at Monte Carlo in the early Spring, when Russian Grand Dukes, English Dukes and American multi-millionaires are rivalling one another in scattering their gold upon the black, red and green.

The Bungalow Whist Club has completely pervaded the social atmosphere at Newport this season. At every dance, dinner, picnic or other entertainment it has been observed that nearly all the most attractive and distinguished matrons seem nervous, distrait, apparently anxious to get away from the place. A stranger might have thought this uneasiness due to a desire to return to the bosom of their families or to look after their husbands, but no, it almost invariably arose from anxiety to be off to the Bungalow Club.

Every afternoon the Bungalow Club is crowded, and Sunday afternoon the attendance is larger and more brilliant than any other day. Small parties of feverish gamblers linger there till an indefinite hour of the evening. The simple Newport natives have been puzzled by the sight of lights burning brightly all through the night until the rising of the sun rendered them no longer necessary.

The Bungalow Club occupies an ideal situation for an institution of this kind—secluded, snug and picturesque. It overlooks the sea, just off the Ocean Drive, about four miles from the centre of the Summer colony, about one mile above Gooseberry Island, and near The Crossways, the home of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, the most daring and original leader of the Four Hundred.

The Bungalow from which the club derives its name was formerly the property of the late William R. Travers. It stands in grounds of about four acres in extent, and although the land is not inclosed, the house is in such a position that the approaches from every direction can easily be watched. The stalwart guardian of the club is furnished with a reliable bulldog and a shotgun, and any uninvited man who trespasses on the grounds with a view to finding out the meaning of the long procession of smart automobiles and beautifully gowned women is cordially invited to go away.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who is the uncrowned queen of at least a section of the Newport society, is the president of the club, and all the prominent matrons and many of the unmarried girls are members of it. Mrs. Pembroke Jones, Mrs. William Mallory, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. J. E. Widener, Mrs. James P. Kernochan, Mrs. Harry Lehr, Mrs. Reginald De Koven, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. Robert Goelet and Mrs. James Lowell Putnam are among the prominent members.

Only one man is a member of this wonderful club. He is Mr. James V. Parker, the most popular and ornamental man in the older set of Newport society. Mr. Parker in personal appearance is an incarnation of the ideal Southern gentleman of the old school, with his thick white hair, his goatee and his courtly and leisurely manners. Mr. Parker holds the rank of Vice-President of the Bungalow Club, and the Newport colony feels that he confers dignity upon the organization.

Mr. Parker was until recently extremely proud of his rank and title as Vice-President of the Bungalow Club, and this feeling of pride was increased when he was invited to be the only man guest at a banquet of the club given to celebrate the success of the club during the season which is now approaching its close. Mr. Parker must have swelled with pride to think of the unique and glorious distinction he enjoyed as he sat at the table surrounded by the most beautiful and brilliant members of the Newport colony, the only person of his set admitted to their society. What a flow of anecdote and badinage there must have been on this occasion!

Shortly after the close of the banquet, perhaps while the liqueurs were circulating, Mr. Parker was invited by several of the fair members to take part in a little game of chance. The result showed the skill they had acquired by long practice, for at the close Mr. Parker found himself bound by a debt of honor to pay the whole bill rof the banquet. This amounted to $600, but that is not much when one remembers that some sixty members enjoyed an excellent dinner furnished by Berger, with an abundance of champagne.

Other men are invited into the club as a great privilege from time to time and usually leave it with lighter pocketbooks.

The interior of the club is a delightful place. Its principal feature is a room one hundred feet long containing eight card tables with green baize tops and supplied with score cards, chips and other accessories of gambling. The furniture is generally old colonial mahogany, and there are a number of beautiful tall green Chinese vases which may be filled with flowers.

An interesting feature of the room is a splendid ancient mahogany chest bound with gold. Into this the gambling paraphernalia are hustled when the establishment is closed for the night, and it also contains a certain proportion of the treasure which is required for the maintenance of the club.

The Bungalow is built of heavy logs, with polished wood in the interior. It has rough stone fireplaces where log fires are burned. The two small rooms at one end used as bedrooms by Mr. Travers have been transformed into one tea-room. Other supplies besides tea are kept in stock, but tea leaves the head in fine condition for business, and vast quantities of it are consumed at the club.

There are many persons in Newport who do not regard the constant and excessive gambling at the Bungalow Club as a matter for pride or jest. They consider that it is demoralizing to those who engage in it and to poorer persons who are familiar with its existence, and that it is calculated to bring discredit upon the Summer colony.

SHOCKING CRUCIFIXION SPECTACLE ON THE STAGE.

"THUS, IN THIS THEATRE IN DENVER, WERE FAMOUS RELIGIOUS PAINTINGS TRAVESTIED WITH A VIEW TO CREATING IN THE MINDS OF THE AUDIENCE THE ILLUSION OF THE SAVIOUR BEING CRUCIFIED.

"NO PAINFUL DETAIL WAS OMITTED. THERE WERE THE NAILS RIMMED WITH CRIMSON WHERE THEY PIERCED HIS HANDS AND FEET, SUSPENDING HIM UPON THE CROSS; THERE WAS THE SWEAT OF AGONY UPON HIS BROW; THERE WAS THE RED BLOOD FROM HIS WOUNDED SIDE—AND NEAR HIM, ON OTHER CROSSES, SEEMED TO WRITHE THE FIGURES OF THE TORTURED THIEVES."

Famous Religious Paintings Used for Scenery, Red Ink Dropped from the Saviour's Wounds and a Ghastly Head of John the Baptist Brought Down to the Footlights.

To perform the impossible—for theatre managers to profit in money by mimicking on the stage the sublime spectacles in the story of the life and passion and crucifixion of our Saviour—is an enterprise that has had to be again rebuked by a reverent public.

The latest, worst conceived and most futile of these efforts has been witnessed at a theatre in Denver, Col.

Familiar with the correct prejudice of the public against professional actors attempting to impersonate the Saviour, the management of this theatre hit upon a gruesome device whereby they hoped to get around this difficulty, and yet produce all the thrills for their patrons to be expected from a reproduction of the crucifixion scene on Calvary.

They went about this with characteristic showman zeal, which the late P. T. Barnum might have envied. Obtaining copies of celebrated religious paintings depicting the most impressive moments in the life of the Saviour, they had them recopied on a large scale by scene painters and used them for scenery!

No, these managers were "too reverential" to present an actor in the character of the divine hero of their drama, but in their scenery picturing the crucifixion, they spared no expense in the way of paint,—especially the red paint which flowed from the wounds of the pictured Saviour and the two thieves upon the crosses.

Every one who frequents the theatre must have noticed the panorama-like effect produced by cleverly painted scenes, cunningly lighted and merged into the foreground where the actors appear in their parts.

It is the business of a scene painter to create more perfect illusions of reality than are attempted by other artists of the brush. And here was a wonderful opportunity, which appears not to have been neglected.

The famous paintings used as scene models were copied quite faithfully with respect to their general pictorial effect. The characters, costumes, groupings and the backgrounds and other objects were the same—but how different the details and the technical methods of the scene-painter artists!

Theatre scenes are painted in "distemper"—that is, colors mixed in water. For these immense canvasses, as large as the side of a house, bucketfuls of paint are required. This is splashed on with brushes, some of which are identical with those used for whitewashing. A sizing of common glue fixes the colors so they will not readily rub off.

The illusion of a scene that is real, and in relief—instead of being painted on a flat surface—is accomplished by an exaggerated use of light and shadow, which, when the scene is viewed near by, causes it to appear only a meaningless daub. Distance from the seats of spectators beyond the footlights, and an effective management of other lights, however, bring the whole picture, with every detail, into what seems actual reality—except, of course, that the figures do not move.

Thus, in this theatre in Denver, were famous religious paintings travestied with a view to creating in the minds of the audience the illusion of the Saviour being crucified.

No painful detail was omitted. There were the nails rimmed with crimson where they pierced His hands and feet, suspending Him upon the cross; there was the sweat of agony upon His brow; there was the red flood from His wounded side—and near him, on other crosses, seemed to writhe the figures of the tortured thieves.

Other episodes, travested from other celebrated paintings, served as scenery for other parts of the drama where the theatre management did not dare to present an actor in the character of Christ. It was too great an inspiration—too great a chance not to be made the most of!

Neither did this Denver theatre management neglect opportunities for sensational realism in other parts of the drama. For example, the dramatist could not deny himself the joy of bringing in the beautiful but cruel Salome, with her desire to be presented with the head of John the Baptist. And the management was to be trusted to see that she got it—a gruesomely real and bloody head on a salver.

This time the "property man" of the theatre triumphed. Probably he will be a scene painter some day, for by the aid of paint—red, for the blood at the severed neck, blue-white for the pallid, dead cheeks and brow, black for the matted hair—the head of John the Baptist seemed to the audience as though it might have been very recently lopped off the shoulders of a living man.

> "Red, for the blood at the severed neck, blue-white for the pallid, dead cheeks and and brow, black for the matted hair — the head of John the Baptist seemed to the audience as though it might have been very recently lopped off the shoulders of a living man."

It is needless to pile up the sensational horrors of this monstrous spectacle presented in the name of art, as the management advertised—"reverently, and without sacrilege or levity."

Certainly levity cannot be charged against them. Far from being amusing, the spectacle was one to inspire grief—tears of indignation.

Confronted by the protests of citizens, and of several clergymen, the management of this enterprise claimed to have letters commending it from pastors in other parts of the country. They sent invitations to the clergymen of Denver to attend the performance, and their good and artistic intentions were widely advertised.

But the Denver clergymen unanimously refrained from countenancing the exhibition.

As a Religious Ceremony.

Poets, novelists and playwrights have agreed during the last two centuries that the most sympathetic and wonderfully dramatic story ever told is that of the life and death of our Saviour. Poets and novelists have retold it in their printed pages with simplicity and grandeur, and without offence; playwrights have never ceased to lament the popular—probably proper—prejudice which has restrained them from adapting it for the stages of theatres.

In the old "mystery plays" certain episodes in the Saviour's life were crudely enacted; but these efforts were more like religious ceremonies than theatrical performances—just as are the "Passion Play" performances at Oberammergau.

The latter is the only instance where an actor upon the stage has appeared in the character of the Saviour. But all the religious world has approved this exception, because of its motive—a periodical expression of gratitude to the Almighty for what seemed like providential rescue of the community from the plague—and because the actors perform their parts in that spirit, and never appear in any other.

When people from all parts of the civilized world began to flock to the "Passion Play" performances at Oberammergau and agreed that they were good and reverential as well as the most pathetic and thrilling ever witnessed, the desires of playwrights and theatre managers to profit by stage materials manifestly so superior flamed up afresh.

In this country the ill-fated enterprise of Salmi Morse is still remembered. He was an enthusiast, and not irreverent. He prepared a stage version similar to the "Passion Play" and spent a fortune in preparations to present it at a New York theatre on the most lavish scale.

From the start Salmi Morse encountered the most energetic opposition on the part of clergymen and religious people generally throughout the country. But he persisted in his preparations up to a few days before the date fixed for the first performance. Then, acting upon the pressure of public sentiment, the city government prohibited the performances prepared at such a great outlay of money. Salmi Morse, finding himself not only ruined financially, but the project dearest to his heart rendered impossible of achievement, rushed to the river and drowned himself.

Many thousands of readers are familiar with the novel, "Ben Hur," in which the Saviour figured as a character in one of the most intensely dramatic scenes—the healing of the leper heroine. For a long time it was thought that this tale could not be successfully adapted for the stage because the actual appearance of the divine character would be necessary to make this dramatic climax effective.

An ingenious stage director, however, solved the problem. There was no actor in the part of the Saviour, no voice purporting to be His. But the near approach of Jesus to the afflicted and supplicating maiden was most impressively indicated by a sudden and powerful radiance directed from beyond the scenes. The effect upon the awed and breathless audience seemed hardly less powerful than though the divine figure itself had appeared.

A few years ago for a time it seemed probable that New York theatre audiences would at last see a great drama built upon the story of the Four Gospels by one of the most experienced of American dramatists—Clay M. Greene's "Nazareth; A History of the Faith." Mr. Greene had written this drama for production by the students of his Alma Mater—Santa Clara College, in California.

The college performance attracted wide attention. It was agreed by those who witnessed it that the drama was not only a great work for the stage, but that its management of the scenes in which the Saviour would be expected to appear in the person of one of the actors was so ingenious and discreet as to disarm all possible criticism.

Mr. Greene admitted that it was his greatest effort as a dramatist—a labor of love, which he hoped the public would accept as given by professional actors in regular theatres. Only one such performance was given, however, and that only to members of the Lambs Club and their guests at the Garrick Theatre. Although no one could be found who was present on that occasion who did not stoutly declare the whole performance both intensely interesting and reverential, Mr. Charles Frohman withdrew the Garrick Theatre from future use by the Lambs Club, and all plans for presenting the drama before audiences of the general public were abandoned.

At that time this newspaper printed a double page of excerpts from Mr. Greene's "Nazareth," showing how he avoided bringing the figure of the Saviour into the view of the audience, yet without apparently weakening the force of vital scenes.

In the trial before Pilate the gestures and attitudes of the other characters create the illusion that the Saviour is standing on a platform, the edge of which is just visible on the left of the scene. The crucifixion scene, with stage directions, is as follows:

Only the Moving Cross Seen.

"A roadway on the approach to Calvary—across the stage—is a vine-covered wall. Behind the wall a distant view of Calvary. * * *

"The crowd is passing behind the wall, and noisily cries out: 'Ha, ha, ha! Hail, King of the Jews! If thou be King, save Thyself! Crucify Him! Crucify Him!'

"The holy cross is seen being borne across the stage behind the wall."

Thus the audience realizes that the bearer of that cross is the Saviour Himself, though only the top of the moving cross is visible. Nevertheless, "Nazareth," discreetly as it was constructed, represented another failure to get the drama of Christ's life and death upon the public stage.

Not long ago a Western playwright produced publicly, though in a small way, a version of the New Testament story, public approval being gained by the promise—which was faithfully kept—that the leading male parts should be enacted by ministers of the Gospel.

The shocking expedient tried in Denver of using sensational copies of great religious paintings for scenery at performances of a New Testament play is the most recent effort of theatre managers to profit by "the most wonderful story ever told."

The Great Paris Beauties Who Have Thrown Away their Corsets

THE SLENDER GRACEFUL CORSETLESS FIGURE, TYPICAL OF WHAT THE PARISIAN BEAUTIES THINK ALL WOMEN SHOULD ATTAIN TO BY PERSISTENTLY ABOLISHING THE MODERN STAYS.

Robine, the Young French Actress, Whose Corsetless Figure on the Stage Many Society Women Are Trying to Copy Upon All Occasions.

Miss Mary Garden, Paris Beauty and American Singer, Who Has Given Up Corsets, Though Not Slender of Figure.

How Leaders of Fashion in the Gay French Capital Are Vying with Footlight Favorites in Demonstrating That Their Figures Are Much More Graceful Without Corsets Than With Them.

Corsetless Beauties Have Their Gowns Boned at the Curve of the Hips, and Some Wear Narrow Girdles of Silk—Even Heavy Street Gowns Are Suspended Only From the Shoulders.

IS it possible that fashion is going to do for the corset what all the warnings of the doctors and other scientific persons have failed to do—banish it?

The current, earnest anti-corset crusade in Paris, seems to point to this possible solution of the problem that has vexed the corsetless wise ones for so long. In that gay capital, where most of the fashions in women's dress and adornment originate, society dames of influence are now vying with popular stage beauties in their efforts to be beautiful and graceful though corsetless.

Of course, the fashion started on the stage. It is only actresses of established fame as beauties who have the courage to attempt innovations in grave details of modern costume. Their practice with garments of bygone ages, before corsets were invented, as characters in the plays of the classic dramatists gave them the courage of their convictions—convictions that their figures were by nature sufficiently perfect without recourse to artificial aids.

The increasing vogue of plays dealing with modern high society, in which the characters are presented in attire of ultra fashionable elegance, has broadened the opportunities of these ladies of the stage to influence new departures of dress in the real life which it is their profession to present the illusion of.

To illustrate in their own fair persons that corsets, for purposes of real beauty of figure and grace of movement are a work of supererogation, was the most brilliant of their opportunities, and they appear to have seized it to real purpose.

Ladies of the world of fashion, sitting in their boxes and stalls—and secretly knowing themselves to be quite as perfect of figure as Mlle. Garrick, or Maxhence, or Robine, or Wronewskaja—take courage. They go home and think it over. In a few days they call upon their pet modiste, and presently the triumphant stage ladies behold in themselves creators of what they pretend to reflect in their professional labors.

Nor do these ladies of stageland attempt to conceal their triumph. Several of them have been lately interviewed on the subject, with the following result:

"Corsets!" exclaimed Cleo de Merode, the celebrated beauty, whose portrait statue, La Danseuse, by Falguiere stands in the Luxembourg Museum, "I long ago gave up such things. Slender women like myself do not need them. There are plenty of other and much more comfortable devices for keeping one's figure in shape. Corsets were invented for two categories of woman—those who have no figure at all and those who have too much."

"It is only recently," said the beautiful Mlle. Maxhence, "that I have given up wearing corsets. At first I felt very strange. The weight of my skirts dragging around the waist annoyed me dreadfully. But since the Empire styles have come into vogue I have been perfectly happy. Now I have all my things, underwear as well as gowns, so made as to depend entirely from the shoulders.

"I wear a sort of girdle about the hips to which my suspender garters are attached, and a 'soutien gorge' to sustain the weight of the bust. This leaves my lungs, stomach and other organs perfectly free to perform their natural functions, and yet I think I successfully avoid that slouchy appearance which is so apt to mark the corsetless woman."

Pretty Garrick, the most popular ingenue of the French stage, says, apropos the wearing of corsets. "Most people say that you cannot look neat without a corset unless you wear shapeless teagowns and Empire styles, but I do not agree with them at all. A well cut gown on a woman who carries herself well, will look stylish without corsets, provided she has a good figure.

"The main thing is the carriage. I gave up corsets about a year ago. At first I felt very embarrassed, for I was sure everybody would notice it. But when I found they didn't I was very glad I had taken the step, for one is much more comfortable so. I think, however, that the woman who has been used to the straight carriage necessitated by the wearing of corsets is much more apt to hold herself well than the woman who has never worn them.

"I should advise mothers to put their daughters into corsets from sixteen to twenty, and then take them off. During that time the figure will have become moulded without being deformed and the young woman can set aside the use of corsets and still have 'chic.'"

"Corsets are no more needed for street wear than they are for the loosest of negligees if the cut of the gown is good" said Mlle. Morgan, and there is no denying that for walking, and in fact all outdoor exercise, one is much more comfortable without. In a few years I believe that society women, taking pattern after us actresses in this as in so many other things, will quite give up corsets."

Mlle. Bresil was away in the mountains when the representative of this paper called, but her maid was at the apartment preparing for the popular actress's return, and she was prevailed upon to betray some of her mistress's secrets of the wardrobe.

"Does Mademoiselle Bresil wear corsets, you ask? No, indeed! She doesn't have to. All slender waists are not squeezed in. Of course, my present mistress has an exceptionally slender waist, but I have served others who also had lovely figures, and yet wore no corsets. All Mademoiselle Bresil does is to have her dresses boned with very thin real whalebone for about two inches above and below the waist line. This keeps the gowns from wrinkling up about the hips when she sits down or stoops.

"Yes, she wears the bust supporter, but it is of finest knitted silk made to order, and fits like a glove, without boning of any sort."

Miss Mary Garden, though an American singer, is now an established Paris beauty, owing to her great vogue there as prima donna of the opera. She, too, is a shining example of womankind who have abandoned corsets without disastrous results respecting their figures.

The matter seems to depend upon the steadfastness with which stage beauties—those advance couriers of the fashions—stick to their determination to prove corsets necessary only to the hopelessly ill-shaped woman. And what woman will admit that such a designation fits her?

The Paris Beauty, "Maxhence," Who Affects Empire Styles and Abjures Corsets.

Confessi

The Former Crown Princess Louise of Saxony, the Supposed Author of These Revelations.

I WAS married to my husband, Prince Johann of Menteburg [Prince Frederick Augustus, later Crown Prince and now King of Saxony] as most Princesses are, without really knowing him. His uncle [the King of Saxony] and my father [the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria-Tuscany,] had made the match. He was presented to me, bowed, could find nothing to say, and the next time we met we were married.

From the very first day of our marriage I was horrified to find that he treated me as a brutal man might treat a kitchen maid of bad character. He would come into my boudoir from riding, or hunting or some other pastime, with his boots covered with mud and himself hot, dirty, smelling of drink and the stables.

He would usually call for long drinks of beer and brandy, which he used to drink alternately with great regularity and frequency.

If he was in a jovial mood he would make me sit on his knee and kiss me and urge me to drink some of his horrid beer.

"It will make you plumper, little one," he said.

More often the drink made him ill-tempered and brutal. He would sneer at me for looking sad faced and I often feared that he would strike me. Surely the dignity of an Imperial Archduchess of Austria ought to preserve her from the horror of being beaten, but I felt that the day was growing nearer and nearer when the brutality of my brutal husband would reveal itself in all its nakedness.

One day he came into my room reeling with drunkenness, swearing horrible and having his clothing in a disgusting condition. The outrage to my dignity as a wife, a woman and a princess, was more than I could endure.

"You ought to be ashamed to come before me in this condition." I cried.

I was lying on a couch at the time. He caught hold of me, intending to drag me from the couch and beat me. In his drunkenness he fell over me and there was an unseemly struggle. Exerting all my strength I pushed him away. He was unsteady from intoxication and nearly fell down.

He addressed me, the Crown Princess, in language that I should be ashamed to write down. Then recovering his balance, he drew his sword and rushed at me.

I was sure he was going to kill me. I shrieked for help, and then just in the nick of time, my lady-in-waiting, that odious Baroness Stifter, came in. She had been listening all the time, but nothing short of murder would have made her intervene. For once in her life she was useful. Her appearance made Johann feel ashamed of himself and he staggered away, leaving me unconscious.

One of the strangest experiences of my married life was to receive a visit from the Shah of Persia. He proved to be a most disgusting savage, small, dirty, and altogether repulsive in appearance. He had all the moral failings of the worst specimens of European royalty, but he lacked the respect for the conventionalities which they display in public.

He immediately devoted himself exclusively to me, an outrageous violation of court etiquette, for the Queen herself was present.

"Sire," I said, "You forget the Queen."

"I don't want anything to do with her," said the little savage, in bad French. "She is old and thin and has a red nose."

The Odious Spying System.

For a time he devoted himself to eating, which was a very unpleasant spectacle, and then he asked me which was my husband. I pointed him out and the Shah said:

"He is no beauty."

Before he went away the Shah looked me up and down, as if to say, "You suit me very well," and then he said he hoped he would see me at the gala performance at the theatre in the evening. I answered I should be there and he said:

"I am going to send you something and I hope you will wear it there for I shall consider that a good omen for my hopes."

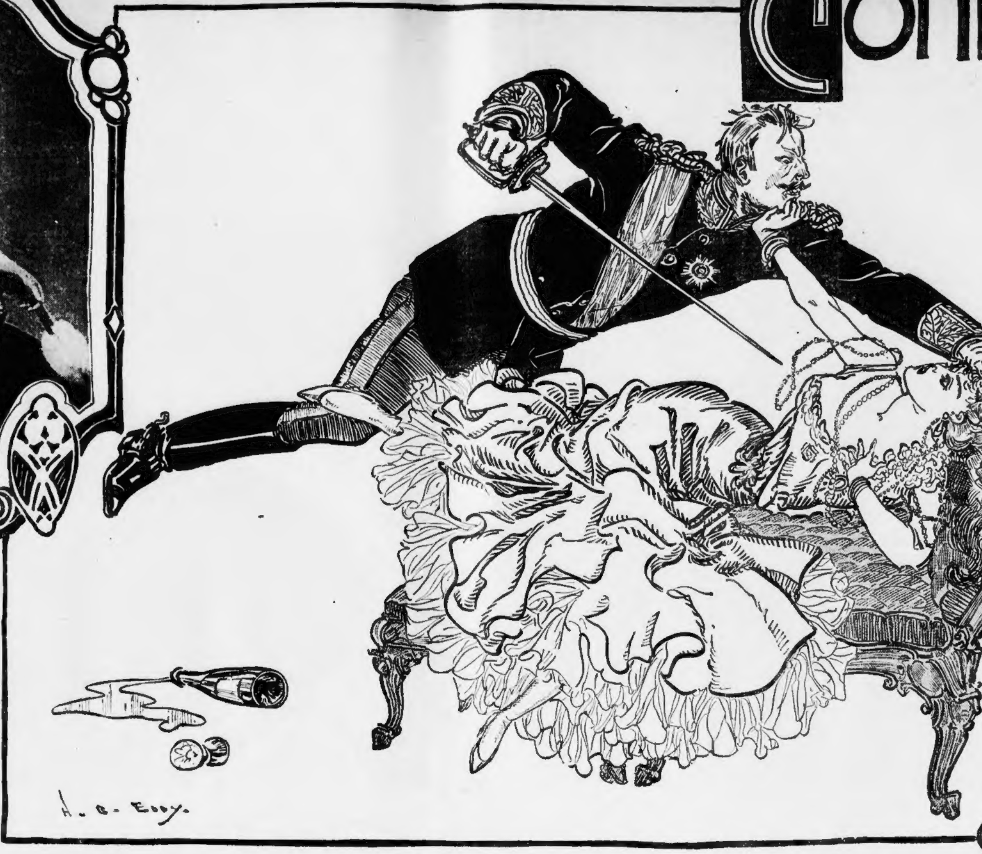
Within an hour I was astonished to receive a diamond bracelet of enormous value. Evidently the wretch regarded me as he might any actress whose appearance took his fancy.

The next day the Shah's behavior grew even more outrageous. A great review was arranged in his honor, at which the King and the whole royal family were present. To everybody's amazement the little Shah hobbled out of his carriage, came over to me and spent the whole time staring at me and talking to me. He turned his back altogether on the King and the troops.

It was outrageous conduct, but the situation was so ludicrous that I could not help laughing at it. The King was furious and would have beaten me, if he could have caught me alone.

My brother, Karl Joseph [the Archduke Leopold Ferdinand of Austria] was always a liberal-minded and sensible boy. He was literally driven into revolt and disreputable courses by the odious system of espionage and restraint which was inflicted upon him by our family.

Karl Joseph got the best of one of the spies set upon him—that sneaking Count Hainberg. Karl led him such a life that finally Hainburg was very glad to be permitted to resign his office of chamberlain to my brother without being deprived of his pension.



"I was lying on a couch at the time. He caught hold of me, intending to drag me from the couch and beat me. In his drunkenness he fell over me, and there was an unseemly struggle. Exerting all my strength, I pushed him away. He was unsteady from intoxication and nearly fell down. He addressed me, the Crown Princess, in language that I should be ashamed to write down. Then recovering his balance, he drew his sword and rushed at me."

Karl Joseph locked up certain letters from his sweetheart and me, and others in the iron safe, and he did so with such a pretence of secrecy that he naturally aroused Hainberg's curiosity. That worthy stole my brother's keys, opened the safe and took out the letters, intending to make copies of them to send to Memling [the Court of Vienna.]

My brother instantly discovered their loss, and pretended not to know that Hainberg had stolen the letters, sent for the police and put them in a position to make a thorough investigation. Hainberg seeing that this would involve him in public scandal confessed, gave up the letters and begged for forgiveness.

"You are a thief and blackguard!" said my brother.

Shocking Conduct of the Shah.

"I was only acting under orders from His Majesty, [the Emperor of Austria]," pleaded Hainberg.

My brother agreed to call off the police on condition that Hainberg should resign his office of Chamberlain, and never take office in that capacity again.

"If I find you doing this work again," said Karl Joseph, "I will call out publicly, 'There's a thief (Kassendieb) here.'"

Hainberg not only gave up his office but was severely reprimanded by the Court of Memling, because the family did not wish their underhand methods to be exposed in this way.

Karl Joseph, as all the world now knows, stood nobly by me during all my afflictions and during the final crisis when I ran away from the court. He had long been on intimate terms with an actress [Wilhelmina Adamovics] whom he loved sincerely. He knew that she was in every real sense his equal and entirely worthy of him, and that he was doing wrong to her, to himself and to all true principles of morality in not marrying her, but he was still to some extent bound by the hideously immoral conventionalities of court life and by the tyrannical authority of the King.

When, at last, I trampled on convention, Karl Joseph bravely decided to do the same thing. He ran away with his sweetheart, married her, gave up the title and rank of Archduke of Austria and began a new and wholesome life in Switzerland as a respectable private citizen. [The Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, of Austria, on his marriage with Miss Adamovics actually assumed the name of Leopold Wolfling.]

The Baroness Stifter, my lady-in-waiting, was a disgusting person. In any case I should have disliked her on account of her being so lean, and always looking as if she had a lemon in her mouth; but she stammered as well, and that made me so nervous that I could hardly help stuttering, too, when I was talking to her. She watched me like a lynx. At the beginning of my married life I found out that she spied on my letters. She took them from Trisburg, my maid and companion, and insisted on sending them to the post herself.

At first I thought she only took down the addresses and reported them to Reihersburg [one of the King of Saxony's castles], but soon I learned she opened a letter whenever she was at all suspicious about it. One day I came upon her holding one of my letters over a cup of boiling water.

"What are you doing with my letter?" I asked.

"Your Highness," she said, "I was only holding it in my hand while I was waiting for the water to grow cool enough to drink. The doctor has ordered me to take hot water for my health."

I did not quarrel with her about this, but I watched her until she drove away with the letters, and I determined to seize the first seasonable occasion for getting rid of her.

After the death of Prince Wolf Ulric, who was banished by the King [Albert of Saxony] to his castle of Blindenstamm, I learned that he had a plebeian wife or a mistress, who lived with him as his wife.

She is called Josephine Schneider and is the daughter of a minor Councillor, who held the position of a chief marshal and had to give it up on account of this affair. The relations between them began fifteen years ago, and they have two children. When the King wanted him to marry a princess, he refused so uncompromisingly that it came to an open breach between him and the King; and at last he was banished.

He did not mind that very much, I suppose, for he lived a quiet bourgeois family life with her and his children at his castle—and a very happy one. His equerry and his chamberlain had easy times, for he took no notice of them—did not allow them to bother him, and only endured them if they kept out of sight. The Schneider lady conducted the housekeeping, and Wolf Ulric played with the children or went out walking with her.

Subsequently I learned that the Schneider woman and her children had been literally turned out of the castle. She was consequently quite penniless and went to Ebenstadt [Dresden] to her old mother. She maintained that she was the honorably married wife of the Prince Wolf Ulric; and further declared that a will existed, in which Wolf Ulric bequeathed to her his property of Zwiefelhof.

I believe every word of Schneider's story, but they simply turned her out like an abandoned woman.

She wrote to Eric [Crown Prince George, who was King from 1902 to 1904, father of Prince Frederick Augustus now King] and it was then made known to her that His Royal Highness did not consider himself obliged to countenance her requests in any way. I was furious. Even if Wolf Ulric died intestate, it seems to me certain that he loved the woman who was left so desolate. And even if the story of the secret marriage were an invention, it seemed perfectly clear that this woman was the companion in life of the Crown Prince of Menteburg, and that she ought to have been treated with consideration and not as a cast-off mistress.

And, moreover, it is certain that these two children, let them be legitimate or not, born in wedlock or not, are flesh and blood of Menteburg, and that the natural issue of a Crown Prince ought not to be thrust out into misery and want. When Prince Eric goes so far in his avarice as to put the Zwiefelhof rents in his pocket, he is, in my eyes, nothing less than a legacy thief.

Finally they arrested Schneider for lese majeste on the ground that she had offended the royal dignity of the House of Menteburg by saying that she had lived with a member of it. It was quietly intimated to her that if she would drop her claim against the estate of the late Prince, the prosecution would also be dropped. The poor woman was forced to accept this cruel condition.

The laws in Germany against lese-majeste are ridiculous, when they are not the means of inflicting injustice and cruelty. An incident recently came to my knowledge which would be intensely amusing if it did not also reveal conditions that threaten the life, liberty and happiness of every man, woman and child in Germany.

A young woman was overheard, while sitting in a cafe on the Unter den Linden, to express an eager hope that she might some day enjoy the caresses of the Emperor for a brief period. Berlin, of course, constantly swarms with police spies, and one of them overheard her remark. He considered that the form in which she phrased it constituted lese-majeste and arrested her. The judge found her guilty of the offence and sentenced her to a heavy fine and imprisonment.

When the Kaiser heard of the case, however, he exclaimed:

"That is no crime. It is a most natural ambition."

Then he ordered the conviction to be annulled.

About a week later, a disreputable drunkard in a cafe was overheard to express a wish to meet a certain princess of the imperial family, speaking in much the same way as the young woman had done in reference to the Emperor. He, too, was arrested by a spy and charged with lese-majeste, but the judge said:

"The prisoner is discharged. His Majesty, the Emperor, has decided that this is not a crime, but a most natural ambition."

When I became an experienced woman of the world and found means of ascertaining the true facts about the lives of royal personages, I grew more and more convinced of their moral worthlessness as compared with ordinary common people. Morality evidently is found in increasing proportion as one descends in the social scale.

The immorality of kings is of the most revolting type, for it is almost invariably associated with avarice and hypocrisy. The royal person believes that he has a divine right to override the moral laws and he is not willing to pay for the privilege, as a rich bourgeois would expect to do. However low and vile the King's secret life may be, he always maintains a sickening presence of piety in public, for that is an essential part of the machinery by which the monarchical system is foisted upon the people.

The Grand Duke of Hesse, Whose Effeminacy Is Revealed.

The King, who denounced my books—Heine's "Atta Troll," Nietzche's "Zarathustra" and others of the greatest masterpieces of German literature—as "filthy things," not fit to be kept in a palace, was not shocked that his brother should have a favorite, but he was shocked that the Prince should treat her with some consideration and provide for her at his death. He would not have been shocked if this Prince had been married and had kept six favorites within reach of his castle, but he would have been greatly shocked if that brother had failed to attend church on Sunday with great ceremony, accompanied by his official family. These are illustrations of the hypocrisy to which I have referred.

The princes and princesses whose escapades have created public scandal, are far from being the worst members of the royal order. They are not hypocrites. Their offences are mere peccadilloes, compared with the acts of the most conspicuous monarchs occupying the thrones of Europe to-day, who enjoy a great reputation for wisdom and piety, but lead lives of indescribable iniquity.

Every week I learned some new fact that strengthened my conception of the utterly immoral and fraudulent character of the royal order.

During the second year of my married life I began my acquaintance with the Grand Duchess Ernestine, of Flinzburg [the Grand Duchess of Hesse, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh and granddaughter of Queen Victoria]. She visited me with her husband [the Grand Duke of Hesse, son of the Princess Alice of England and grandson of Queen Victoria.]

She was with me very much and I could not help admiring her, for she was beautiful and clever and full of spirit, but I was horrified when one afternoon in the seclusion of my boudoir, she told me without a blush the story of her married life, about which there had been much gossip. Before this I did not believe that such wickedness and shamelessness could be fo in any walk of life, surely not am the greatest of royal families.

Startling Glimpses Behind-the-Scenes of the Scandalous Daily Life in European Royal Families Revealed in a New Edition of a Remarkable Book Said to Be Written by Crown Princess Louise of Saxony.

THE readers of this newspaper will remember a review of a very remarkable book which was printed in these pages nearly a year ago. The book was written in German, and was understood to be from the pen of the unfortunate Crown Princess Louise of Saxony, who ran away from the abominations of court life, deserted husband and children, and threw up the royal crown—for her husband has since ascended to the throne, and is now King Frederick Augustus of Saxony.

This book, "The Confessions of a Princess," laid bare the shocking depravity and wretched daily life of royalty, and Emperor William instantly ordered all copies seized and destroyed. It was from the mutilated pages of a partially destroyed copy of the book that the review was made for this newspaper last December.

But "The Confessions of a Princess" is not dead. The book has been translated into English and some important chapters have been added, and it has just been issued from the presses of John Long, Haymarket, London, to teach a moral object lesson of the rottenness of high life in European capitals. It is from this new English edition of "The Confessions of a Princess" that the extracts printed on this page are taken.

It should be remembered that the supposed authoress, the Crown Princess Louise, left her husband in 1902 with Andre Giron, the tutor of her children, and that her husband subsequently divorced her. It was made plain by her statements that she took Giron with her publicly merely to make the step irrevocable. No one of the rank of this Princess has ever before frankly and fully revealed the private lives of the Kings of Europe and their families as she now does. These are the leading characters in the book and the actual personages with which they have been identified:

"The King of Menteburg"—King Albert of Saxony.

"Prince Eric of Menteburg"—The Crown Prince George of Saxony (afterward King).

"Prince Johann of Menteburg"—The Crown Prince Frederick Augustus of Saxony (now King).

"Princess Anastasia"—The Crown Princess Louise.

"Prince Karl Joseph"—The Archduke Leopold Ferdinand, brother of the Crown Princess.

"The Grand Duke of Flinzburg"—The Grand Duke of Hesse.

"The Grand Duchess of Flinzburg"—The Grand Duchess of Hesse (now Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia).

The Crown Princess of Roumania, Who is Described As An Audacious Flirt.

of which she was chief, and charge at the head of her soldiers.

She wanted to get a divorce from her husband so that she could marry her lover [now known to be the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, cousin of the Czar, whom the Grand Duchess of Hesse has since married.]

She admitted to me quite frankly that she had a lover. She would not say who the other man was. She said that people would know soon enough, once the divorce was given. Before that, to give his name would injure both of them.

But that which shocked me most was the attitude of her husband in this affair. He knew the whole story; knew the Other Man, too, quite well and [illegible] no objection. He had not the slightest [illegible] of her. Only for appearance sake he wished to avoid a divorce, because he was a reigning sovereign; and he actually suggested to her to see as much of the Other Man as she pleased, and to leave things as they were. Ernestine herself wouldn't have minded, but the mysterious Other Man had ideals, and refused to enter into such an unsavory compact.

It must have been an astounding sight to see the three of them discussing the case without the slightest ill will, quite calmly and seriously! Immediately after the King's visit to Flinzburg, Ernestine and her husband telegraphed to the Other Man to come to a conference. He went, and they met, and the Duke said.

"Children, what good can all these worries and this publicity do you?"

An Odd Sense of Honor.

The Other Man said: "What good? That's plain enough. Your wife does not like you; she's therefore not really your wife; and as we love each other some better arrangement must be made."

The Duke didn't see it at all, and said: "Arrangement? But why? I have not the right to forbid my wife anything. She knows what I mean. Very well, then! I don't object to your relations and if I don't object, everything is all right. For the most important factor in this whole affair is myself."

The Other, however, said: "No! You are decidedly not the most important factor—on the contrary, you are quite secondary. You are simply in the way, and you very seriously disturb the understanding between me and Ernestine."

The Duke got quite heated, and said: "But how on earth? I don't disturb you in the least."

But the other was obstinate and pointed out to the Duke: "If you don't mind your wife having a lover it's your own affair. But I never will consent to my mistress having a husband."

Before my own affairs reached a point beyond human endurance and forced me to throw off the bonds of royalty forever, Ernestine actually got her divorce, and the Duke of Flinzburg now leads a bachelor life. I learned then who the Other Man was, but everybody knows that now. Ernestine informed me that she was going to marry the Grand Duke Augustus [the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia] whom she had long loved. There were certain difficulties about it, for the head of the Grand Duke's family [the Czar of Russia] would not give his consent at any price. In spite of this obstacle Ernestine was a happy woman. The absence of a ceremony did not worry her in the least. She travelled about with the Grand Duke, she cared for nothing. She simply lived for her love.

I was learning every day that Royal Highnesses are not governed by the ordinary laws of morality. There are plenty of other Highnesses at Cannes or Biarritz living under the same conditions as Ernestine and her Duke, and these relations are quietly taken for granted. As young princesses we are brought up in a state of ridiculous ignorance and innocence and are not even permitted to know the nature of evil. Then we are forced into a loveless marriage, and that is the price we pay for permission to sin more or less as we please.

The Grand Duke Augustus is wonderfully handsome, very sweet-tempered and devoted, and a woman would never want any one else when she was in his company.

I deplore that any woman should disregard the laws of religion and morality as the Grand Duchess Ernestine has done, but one must admit that she had a strong excuse for desiring the companionship of a real man after her experience with such a revolting creature as the Grand Duke of Flinzburg.

I heard a most distressing story concerning Prince Oscar [the Duke of Braganza, a member of the dethroned royal family of Portugal] whom I always thought a very good fellow. Oscar was lately riding in the neighborhood of Strippendorf, his garrison town, with two of his brother officers, when they met with a funeral procession. Oscar ordered the coffin to be set down and then leaped his horse twice over it. Horrible!

He was ordered to Ebenstadt to-day for an audience with the King. The King intimated to him that he was to appear in civilian dress. This made Oscar uneasy. He came in great excitement to find my husband, and ask him if he had any idea what was in the wind. Johann said, in his [illegible] way, that probably he was to lose his commission.

But it was not so bad as all that. The King merely wished to give, and gave, Oscar some sound boxes on the ear and he had naturally not desired that the [illegible] proceeding should take place in [illegible].

I was very glad when Oscar sent to ask if he might have an audience with me, because it gave me an opportunity to find out what the trouble really was.

It appeared that Oscar had been sent to a regiment stationed in a filthy [illegible], little garrison town. He had no money and no friends and there was no society fit for an intelligent man. In this place he had made the acquaintance of a girl on the street and had become very much attached to her.

"How could you do such a horrid thing?" I asked.

"Well, I had to have some human society," said Oscar. "The officers were nothing but pigs."

Well, when the King heard of Oscar's behavior he was furious and he ordered him to be transferred to another regiment in another little garrison town, Strippendorf. At the same time orders were given to prevent the girl from living in this town.

Oscar was in despair from disappointment and ennui. He was almost on the point of committing suicide. What should he do to escape from his living grave? Suddenly as he was riding along the street after a dinner, where he had drunk heavily, the idea occurred to him that if he jumped over the coffin, it would create such scandal that he would be removed from the regiment and the garrison town at the same time.

What he hoped now was that he would be allowed to live in the capital and bring that girl there; if necessary, he was prepared to go to some foreign country in order to live with her.

My dear friend, Count Franz Zawitsch, of the Dalmatian Embassy, who has had a vast opportunity through his diplomatic experience to observe the private lives of the royal families, told me some stories of them which sound too terrible to be true, but nevertheless I must believe them.

The royal family of Dalmatia (Montenegro) have a strain of mental aberration which makes them derive the highest pleasure from contemplating the torture of men or animals. The Crown Prince of Dalmatia (the Crown Prince of Montenegro) [illegible] in his most [illegible] sends for a troupe of the [illegible] girls from the Royal Opera House. [illegible] welts are raised all over them. When they all drop down from pain and exhaustion they are sent home. Many of them never recover from the ordeal.

The Prince's brother (Prince [illegible] of Montenegro) shows the [illegible] tal abnormality by torturing [illegible] put mice in a cage and watched [illegible]. This grew too tame and he kept [illegible] cage until they were nearly starved [illegible] hunger, they fought one another [illegible] nearly all dead. This pleased him beyond measure and since then he has destroyed the lives of hundreds of cats.

Prince Martin, of Memling (Duke Gunther of Schleswig, brother-in-law of the German Kaiser) amuses himself by writing anonymous letters to all the world, and has already caused the most [illegible] disasters by them. He has a tremendous knowledge of the secrets and scandals of royal and other important families, and he makes use of this to construct diabolically malicious letters, threatening some with exposure [illegible] informing [illegible] of facts or gossip calculated to destroy their happiness.

As he hears every scrap of gossip and as at first no one had an idea that he could be the anonymous letter writer [illegible] them, of course, to such high quarters, he ready broken up households, smashed up engagements, set parents and children at variance. In short, has [illegible] court by the ears over and over again.

Horrors [illegible] upon horrors! I had learned of many abnormal [illegible] that disgraced the lives of our royal [illegible], but I was yet to learn that [illegible] by a royal [illegible] which would [illegible] saying. I began to feel that all we Princes and Princesses of the blood royal are imprisoned in a moral pest house, in which there is no hope of ultimate escape from the hideous contagion.

These dreadful thoughts were forced from me by what I learned of the domestic life of the Grand [illegible] under these names the Crown Princess [illegible] refers to Philip of Saxe-Coburg [illegible] of the Saxon royal [illegible] second daughter of [illegible], King of the Belgians. The gruesome revel[illegible] for the first time just why [illegible] her husband. She has [illegible] lunatic asylum.]

The Mystery of the Great Blue Diamond.

How the House Party of the American Countess de Rodellec Was Disrupted by the Loss of the Precious, Historic Stone—and the Astonishment of All French Society When It Was Discovered In the Tooth Powder of M. Alexander Greger, the Distinguished Cosmopolite and Diplomat.

M. Alexander Greger.

The Countess Removed Her Rings, Including the Historic Blue Diamond and Placed Them On Top of the Piano. Afterwards M. Greger Extinguished the Lights On the Piano and She Put Out One That Was In a Corner of the Room. She Went Away Without Taking Her Rings, and When She Sent for Them, the Blue Diamond Was Gone.

The Famous Blue Diamond Ring Found In M. Greger's Tooth Powder. (Exact size of stone.)

THE mystery of the blue diamond is exciting Paris more and more every day. It has been truly said that it contains all the elements of a first class romance by the great Balzac.

It is of international interest, for it involves persons of many nationalities, including Americans, and members of the most interesting social sets of many great cities.

It raises many problems of great human interest. The solution of the mystery may be found in the act of an outraged husband, or a jealous lover, or a giddy wife. One is at liberty to work the mystery out on any of these lines, but at present it seems unlikely that the exact truth will ever be known.

The Countess de Rodellec du Porzic was entertaining a large and brilliant house party at her chateau, near Brest, in Brittany, which bears the singular name of Ker-Stears. This is a combination of the Breton word "ker," meaning place, and the name of the Countess's first husband, which was Stears. Originally she was the daughter of a Frenchman of ancient Breton noble family, Count Armand de Trobriand, who came to America many years ago. When the Civil War broke out he organized the Lafayette Guards, later became Colonel of the Fifty-ninth New York Regiment, and finally was made a brigadier-general. He married Miss Mary Mason Jones, belonging to a fashionable New York family. General de Trobriand never used his title, but his American widow piously revived it after his death, and is now known as the Countess de Trobriand. One of her daughters is Mrs. Charles A. Post, who is well known in New York society, and related to some of the principal members of the Four Hundred.

Another daughter is the leading character in the present romance. She married first John Burnett-Stears, a rich Englishman, and they went to live in Brittany on account of Mrs. Stears's ancestral association with the place. Mr. Burnett-Stears was a lover of art and antiquities, and he engaged M. Lapierre, a pupil of the famous Viollet-Leduc, who restored the Cathedral of Notre Dame, to build for him an ideal Breton chateau in the ancient style. The result was the Chateau of Ker Stears, which is a magnificent and picturesque building. After Mr. Burnett-Stears's death his widow married the Count de Rodellec du Porzic, a Breton nobleman of ancient family and somewhat erratic character, who thus acquired the privilege of living at the Chateau of Ker Stears.

In the house party which the Countess was entertaining, the most brilliant and entertaining guest was Alexander Greger, an important member of the Russian diplomatic service, formerly first secretary of the Embassy at Washington and now a Russian Councillor of State. M. Greger charmed everybody by his good looks, his high spirits, his wit, his fine tenor voice and his daring at all kinds of sports. In fact, he is a Russian of the most interesting type, full of audacity, both mental and physical, and as lively as a dancing Dervish.

Only second in interest to M. Greger was his wife, a beautiful and lively woman, who has had a remarkable and interesting career in America and elsewhere. Concerning her more anon.

One evening at dinner at the chateau M Greger admired the beautiful ring which the Countess de Rodellec du Porzic wore. He admired with reason, for it contained the famous "blue diamond," a gem of great beauty and historic interest. The Countess told the diplomat something of its history. It belonged once to an Indian Rajah, and was taken from his dead body by a French adventurer after he had been killed and his palace sacked in the eighteenth century.

After this it was purchased by the French Government and became one of the crown jewels of King Louis Philippe, who was driven out of France by the revolution of 1848. From him the blue diamond passed to his son, the Duke d'Aumale. The gallant Duke, who died only four or five years ago, presented it to Mademoiselle Leonie Leblanc, one of the most beautiful actresses in Paris of a generation ago.

Her jewels and objects of art presented to her by her admirers were sold, and the Countess de Rodellec du Porzic, then Mrs. Burnett-Stears, purchased the famous diamond. Its value is enormous and is constantly increasing.

After the dinner at which M. Greger admired the blue diamond, the Countess de Rodellec du Porzic went to the piano. In order to play, she had to remove all her rings, including the famous blue diamond, and she placed them in a small heap on top of the piano. She is an exquisite player and charmed everybody by the superb technique and artistic feeling with which she rendered a number of the most beautiful classic compositions. She played the dance airs from "Lakme," many of Liszt's compositions, Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," Schumann's "Traumerei," and a nocturne by Chopin.

M. Greger, who is passionately fond of music, hung over the piano, and its gifted player in a state of rapture. Everybody applauded her playing at its conclusion. After leaving the drawing-room to bid good-night to the other guests, the Countess found that she had forgotten to put out the lights at the piano. She went back to the drawing room, accompanied only by M. Greger. He put out the two lights on the piano and she extinguished one in the corner of the room. A fourth was left burning!

Perhaps the Couness was under the influence of her own exquisite music or of some other emotion. At any rate she was strangely forgetful, for she went away without taking her precious jewels.

She sent her maid for them, and then, to her horror, she found that the blue diamond, the most precious of all her possessions, was missing.

She told her guests of her loss the next day and examined the servants' trunks, but could obtain no clew to the thief. Then she called in the commissary of police of Brest, whose name was Jerome and who was extremely averse to taking any action of any kind.

Then, in some mysterious way, it was suggested to the Countess that M. Greger, the exalted Russian functionary, was the thief of her diamond. She spoke to him pointedly, and, as she has said, "I told him that I thought it perhaps dropped into the piano, and I gave him a good chance to return it by placing it there, but he did not take advantage of it."

After this the Countess went to M. Greger's room, accompanied by the police, and broke into it. She proceeded to examine all his belongings. After a while they opened a small valise containing articles that a man requires for immediate use while travelling, such as a hair brush and a tooth brush.

The Drawing-Room of the Chateau Where the Blue Diamond Was Left On the Piano.

Count de Rodellec du Porzic was there assisting in the search with eager interest. M. and Madame Greger were both present, wringing their hands and uttering exclamations of indignation and dismay.

The searchers examined the valise very carefully. The Count de Rodellec du Porzic told them to be sure to open the box of tooth powder. They did so, and there sure enough, buried deep in the powder was the missing blue diamond. It was hidden with consummate skill.

"This is an outrage!" cried M. Gregor. "It will ruin me. I have no knowledge of how this ring came in my bag. I am absolutely innocent."

The Countess could not believe this statement, and she ordered the diplomat arrested on the spot in her own home. This action has excited warm criticism in French society.

"Only an American woman would have done such a thing," said a leader of the French aristocracy. "A well-bred French hostess would suffer any loss rather than degrade a guest and violate the traditions of French hospitality in this manner."

M. Greger was arraigned before a magistrate as a thief. In view of his position and the lack of convincing evidence, he was released on his own undertaking to appear when required, and it is understood that the prosecution will be dropped. This, of course, leaves the mystery as thick as ever, and if M. Greger is to regain his position in the diplomatic world he must prove his innocence in a positive way.

If M. Greger did not steal the diamond, how did it come in his tooth powder box? The explanation he gives is that it was all a plot concocted by the Count de Rodellec du Porzic, who placed the diamond in the box in order to ruin Greger.

"The Count," M. Greger has said to a friend, "is a man of bad and violent character. He has ill-treated his wife, threatened her with a revolver and is squandering her money. She confided her troubles to me and I advised her to obtain a divorce. He learned of this and determined to have revenge upon me.

"I believe, moreover, that he is partly insane, for he made a similar charge to this against a well-known general a few years ago without the slightest justification. It is cruel that I should be made to suffer in this way from such a man's conduct.

"There are, moreover, circumstances in the case which a gallant man is prohibited from explaining."

This explanation finds many believers, but there is no proof of its truth. On the other hand, there are many who would like to know just what part Madame Greger has in the mystery. She was quite hysterical when the diamond was discovered and is animated by the bitterest enmity to the Countess. Why should her husband be accused of taking the diamond rather than she?

Mme. Greger is well remembered by many persons in America. She possesses a certain beauty of an opulent Oriental type, comprising raven black hair and eyebrows, ruddy cheeks and lips, and a wealth of curves. M. Greger was extremely attentive to her before their marriage and when he married her it did not raise his standing in the eyes of puritanical Americans. Indeed it is said that an objection on the part of leading American citizens and their wives to entertaining a prominent diplomat with such a partner was the cause of his recall from the United States. He ceased to be First Secretary of the Embassy here in 1891.

M. Greger was a man of mark in Washington and entertained the girls immensely by his picturesque ways. In Winter he went attired in a wonderful skating costume consisting of a light green suit trimmed with fur, an astrakhan cap and high patent leather boots. Then he had a real Russian sleigh with bell harness and rugs of sable. It was considered a great treat by many of the girls to be asked to take a ride in this conveyance, but these excursions with the wild Russian were regarded with some concern by anxious parents and husbands.

Greger is a splendid fencer. On one occasion he met the fencing master of the Naval Academy at Annapolis before a large gathering. He disarmed the fencing master, reversed his own foil, picked up the fallen weapon of his adversary by the point and gracefully handed it back to him.

M. Greger has always been known to be utterly reckless in money matters and he is probably heavily in debt, but whatever his faults, he has also been considered generous and quite incapable of dishonesty. His position now is a terrible one. His rank and services entitle him to an appointment as Minister Plenipotentiary, but as long as there is the least suspicion against him of stealing the blue diamond his Government cannot possibly give him any post of public responsibility abroad.

The Smartest New Autumn Walking Suits

The Coming of the Short Train for Outdoor Dresses.

D—Street Suit of Smoke-Colored Gray, with Short Jacket.

ABROAD the fashion of wearing short trains on street dresses has become very marked. Nor is it confined to the clean streets of Paris; London and other cities in England and the Continent have also adopted the trained skirt. Its use is not confined to afternoon, theatre and more dressy gowns, but also to comparatively simple frocks to be worn when visiting the numberless exhibitions and shows which take place in the Autumn.

These trained skirts show a general tendency to follow the lines of the circular skirt, with its clinging hip effect, and to elongate up above the waist line in a modified Empire effect, which achieves its shortwaistedness by means of high girdles and a bolero blouse arrangement. In pretty nearly all the Empire gowns there is an endeavor to define the waist line, and this is often achieved by means of pleats and tucks.

Some of the afternoon gowns and combination gowns and smart wraps show long sleeves even to the point of having the termination of the sleeve come down over the back of the hand in the horseshoe shape. For the most part, however, new styles usher in severely plain shopping costumes for morning wear with long sleeves, which also appear in simple ready-made suits for business women to wear to business. For the rest it is en regle to wear short sleeves and long gloves, as heretofore. Fashion is changing; but, happily for women who cannot readily afford new gowns, the evolution is not a rapid one.

A fancy of the moment is to fill in the bottoms of three-quarter length sleeves with knife pleatings of taffeta, chiffon and white or tinted net, preferably the latter.

Another wrap shown in Autumn styles abroad is the long circular cape with a high collar.

Quite as popular as the modified Empire gown and the bolero Empire bodice is the pinafore princess gown, a very graceful gown, in which a pinafore shape is given the top of the skirt in the front and back, and these have connecting straps over the shoulders. These are worn a good deal over lace blouses, which are embroidered with fine-colored wools in raised designs. The lace is tinted to match or harmonize with the gown, and this novel method of decoration is most attractive.

The Pinafore Princess Gown.

Besides the usual trimmings, one sees upon new gowns the ultra fashionable Autumn trimmings are braids, Maltese and Cluny laces and rather coarse nets.

A very chic example of the fitted short coat is shown in the costume illustrated in figure C. It is of gray broadcloth, of the soft weight now in vogue, and is made with long sleeves and a short peplum curved up the front. There is a narrow vest or panel set inside of the wide gray braid that forms a panel on the front of the coat. This has a border of green and white braid on the edge and is decorated with a large Greek pattern worked in gray braids.

The coat meets in front near the bottom. It is decorated elaborately with crosswise panels worked out in soutache and Greek pattern braids. The peplum is attached under a green and white braid and is trimmed with rows of soutache put on in a simple design. Fancy buttons are set on the sides of the belt.

The sleeve has a fancy braid strap across the shoulder, and from this for a short distance down, it is laid in flat pleats which disappear under the trimming panels that decorate the sleeves. These terminate in simple cuffs trimmed with braid and piped with rose color.

The skirt is made with a plain front panel and alternate side and box pleats the rest of the way around. Above the hem are several rows of plain and fancy braid headed by a deep Wall-of-Troy design in flat gray braid in which is woven the same pattern.

This style of gown need not necessarily be so expensively and elaborately trimmed. It could be decorated with stitching, or with less braid, put on more simply. It is a good style for almost any Autumn wool material and should be trimmed according to the fabric of which it is made.

Figure D is another attractive example of the short fitted jacket, with peplum finish and panelled skirt. In the latter there is a revival of the yoke, which is rarely becoming unless well disguised, so that the line which cuts the figure at the hips is not noticeable.

The gown illustrated is of smoke colored broadcloth trimmed with embroidery and pastel blue velvet.

The coat may be fastened invisibly from the neck to the waist line. Around the neck, down the fronts and above the peplum the coat is richly embroidered in a small, close design. There is a dart in the side, extending through the peplum in a seam. The latter has curved fronts, and buttons trim the seam in it. Just above it, close to the front edges, the fullness of the coat is gathered to fit snugly, but not tightly, to the figure.

Gray metal buttons, similar to those used upon the bottom and sleeves of the coat, trim the fronts near the neck.

Eight tucks (they might also be pleats, are in the top of the sleeves, while the cuff is of velvet and embroidery finished with a white knife-pleated ruching.

The back of the coat is embroidered at the neck and on each side the back above the waist, and directly upon the seams. This seam forms a pleat on each side below the waist line, and here buttons and embroidery trim it. There is also a seam down the middle of the back.

The front panel of the skirt forms part of the yoke and is stretched all around inside the edges. It is plain all the way down, but a band of embroidery borders the top of the hem around the rest of the skirt. Below the yoke this is laid in wide side pleats, stitched part of the way down. If one prefers, small pleats or box pleats may be made in place of the large ones.

Example of the Short Loose Box Coat.

The costume illustrated in figure B is made with a short loose box coat that barely reaches the hips. It has sleeves of three-quarter length, but if the dress is to see late service in the Autumn, it would be better to make the sleeves long.

A yoke is set across the top of the coat which comes to the point of the collar in [illegible] band of the material with rounded ends in front, trimmed with rows of stitching. It might also be made of velvet or braid.

Around the bottom of the yoke this band is repeated in shallow scallops that terminate at the [illegible] both in the front and back.

The [illegible] stitched [illegible] the corners. In front a [illegible] stitched band is placed above the top of a small pocket.

A vest of canary yellow [illegible] gives a contrast to the [illegible] of which the gown is built, and at the same time tones in prettily with it. This vest is trimmed with loops and knots of soutache braid.

Somewhat full sleeves are pleated at the back under a deep but simple cuff, [illegible] the top [illegible].

A [illegible] skirt is the [illegible] figure [illegible] figure [illegible] use of [illegible] of make [illegible].

A [illegible] is formed of decorative designs wrought in [illegible] velvet and [illegible] upon pongee [illegible].

[illegible] of the coat its [illegible] trimmed with [illegible] edge and decorated around the borders with a wide, shaped [illegible] with piping.

This is a pretty style of gown to make up in most Autumn or Winter materials which have the same "body" to them as broadcloth.

Although all shades of yellow are so fashionable [illegible] unless [illegible] of [illegible] are in favor, [illegible] of the season is [illegible] red which tones into wine color, and which was quite the most fashionable hue of the day just one hundred years ago.

We are a trifle better off than our ancestors of that period, for we have several shades of [illegible] to make a [illegible] had but one.

[illegible] Autumn coats, however, [illegible] that all trimming is to be very [illegible] indeed.

Philip meets an old friend, Sir Anthony Didring, from whom he wins two hundred and fifty pounds, which relieves his necessities.

He is then summoned to attend the inquest on the captain's body and falls under [illegible]. A negro cook furnishes the important [illegible] that the dead captain had [illegible] two [illegible], a brother with whom he quarreled and a daughter named Giralda, on the stage. Mrs. Caroline Upottery, the captain's next door neighbor at the Corner House, creates a sensation by deposing that she was engaged to him.

The Coroner expresses the opinion that the captain was murdered for the two thousand odd [illegible] he had on his person. The evidence [illegible] he had [illegible] a search for his [illegible] Sir Anthony [illegible] takes Philip to his club to reveal a great discovery to him. Giralda, whom [illegible], has vanished.

[illegible] Meredith, a [illegible] Corner House lodger, [illegible] Masters had seen the blind of his window raised in the [illegible] of the tragedy. He is at present an [illegible].

[illegible] a celebrated Scotland Yard detective, [illegible] the point of arresting the [illegible], when [illegible] in the Corner House itself.

[illegible] Masters obtains a commission to investigate the mystery from The Record newspaper.

As he stood in the shadow at the head of the stairs he heard a door very cautiously opened and then a soft, rapid step along the corridor. Meredith appeared in hat and overcoat, and Meredith had evidently not expected to find Philip in the path. He gave Philip one furtive look of pathetic dismay, hesitated, and then rushed past him down the stairs without a word.

Philip, dumfounded, descended after him to the street. Meredith had hastened out, turned to the right and up the Alley, half running. At a discreet distance he was followed by a man who detached himself from the staring crowd without hindrance from the police and whom Philip knew for a detective.

Difficulties with his private photographer afforded some distraction to Philip's mind. Meredith did not come to lunch. But Mrs. Upottery, to the surprise of all the world, did come to lunch. She was in profound mourning, as at the inquest, and she ate a satisfactory meal with infinite gravity, refusing, however, the tapioca pudding—perhaps on account of its flippancy. She spoke to none of the remnant of people at the tables, and none dared to address her. She was sterner here even than at the inquest, and men marveled anew that such frigid and antique charms had bewitched Captain Pollexfen, who was a sailor and probably therefore a connoisseur in charms of all countries.

Philip, who had eaten nothing, marked Mrs. Upottery for his lawful prey. He had never, in such brief part of his life as had been devoted to silken dalliance, achieved astounding victories over the young, but among elderly ladies he had always been a favorite. There was something in his eyes that appealed to elderly ladies and he had an idea that that something would not in vain appeal to Mrs. Upottery. He waited for her to rise, meaning to follow her out, but she did not rise. Instead of rising she took a small book from her pocket and began to read; it was a prayer book of the Church of England. One by one the guests departed, and at length Mrs. Upottery and the young man who meant that his eyes should appeal to her were left alone together. Her eyes wandered from the prayer book and were accidentally caught by his. She was in his net.

"Mrs. Upottery!" he addressed her earnestly, with a serious smile.

"Young man!" Her tone was deep and formidable, but not unfriendly.

"I'm sure you've been fearfully bothered and worried by all sorts of people this morning, but I'm charged with a special mission of inquiry by a big daily paper, and I wondered if you would"—— He stopped.

"If I would what?" she positively smiled in her turn.

"If you would mind telling me the whole history of your relations with the late Captain Pollexfen."

"I have been bothered and worried," said Mrs. Upottery. "And to-morrow is his funeral. I hope you will go to it, young man. I think it is the duty of every one in the house to go to it, as a mark of respect."

Her voice faltered, and she hid her face in the black-bordered handkerchief.

"Certainly," said Philip. "Certainly. I wasn't aware"——

"It's at H—Brompton," sobbed Mrs. Upottery.

He assured her that he would attend the funeral, and he was about to excuse himself from troubling her further when she astonished him by saying, as she wiped her eyes:

"What do you want me to tell you?"

He replied eagerly, "I want you to begin at the beginning and tell me everything. I'm sure we shall come across something that may lead to a clew."

"Here?" she queried, looking round, and not waiting for his answer she said, "Yes. Come and sit near me. I'm rather deaf."

"Now, how did you first become acquainted with the Captain?" Philip demanded, obeying her, and trying to feel as much like a journalist as he could.

She turned on her chair to face him; her lips trembled in the effort to articulate, a terrific sob escaped her, and she fell against him, seeming partly to lose consciousness. Then, as if ashamed of this weakness, she somehow found her feet and sank back on her chair.

"Brandy," she whispered. "Get me some brandy, young man."

She was breathing heavily.

Philip, vastly disconcerted, raced from the room and called a boy, and, after some delay, brandy was obtained and administered, and he assisted Mrs. Upottery upstairs, finding her very heavy and unwieldy, especially on the basement steps.

"Thank you, young man," she said. "You are the first person who has been kind to me, since his—his"——

"Don't talk," said Philip, "if it upsets you."

"I cannot talk of it," she answered. "But I can write it all down and I will do it. It will calm me. I will do it to-night, this very night."

He thanked her. "And may I use what you write in my paper?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Upottery. "It's a very rich and successful paper, isn't it?"

"Very," Philip agreed.

"Well," the lady said meekly, "they must give me a hundred guineas for what I write. It will be worth that."

Philip was thunderstruck. "A hundred guineas!" he muttered.

"Yes," said Mrs. Upottery. "Of course not for myself, young man. I shall give it to the Sailors' Home at Southampton, where once my poor [illegible]"

Tears silenced her. Philip consented. He had carte blanche.

At 7 o'clock precisely he re-entered the Brent Building.

"Which floor is Lord Nasing's room on?" he demanded of the lift boy.

"You can't see 'is lordship," the boy answered.

He was a tall, loutish [illegible] graduating in the Brent school of manners, to which Philip was not accustomed. He therefore took the boy's ear between [illegible] fingers and thumb and pressed the [illegible] finger into a particular spot behind [illegible]. In five seconds the lift was wafting him upward.

"Now show me Lord Nasing's door," said Philip. "I'm not very good at geography."

"I daren't leave the lift," the boy protested.

"Come," said Philip.

The boy came.

"And now knock at the door for me."

The boy knocked.

"And now run away [illegible] lift, and remember to know me next time I come."

There was no reply to the knock. However, as he had a [illegible] appointment, Philip entered. The room was empty. One electric light burned over the great round table. By way of [illegible] there were also the dull yellow horizontal rays of the electric heater in the fireplace; they showed to advantage the pattern of the carpet.

Philip coughed loudly.

"Who are you?" said a valet coming noiselessly out of an adjoining room.

"My name is Masters," said Philip. "And I have an important appointment with Lord Nasing at 7 o'clock."

"Well, I should advise you to hook it," said the valet.

"Listen, my friend," Philip was beginning, when Lord Nasing strolled into the room in the wake of his man. He was tying a white necktie at the summit of a broad slip of shirt front.

"You're there!" said Philip, relieved. "I thought it was very strange if you'd forgotten me."

His greeting so affected the valet that the valet disappeared into the next room to conceal his sense of humor.

Lord Nasing dropped the ends of his necktie. Then, having considered the situation, he laughed. There was nothing else to do.

"Oh!" said he. "You're the young man that's got charge of the Corner House affair."

"I am," answered Philip very drily. He had been called "young man" just once too often that day, and Lord Nasing was the final offender.

"What have you done?"

"Are you engaged for dinner?" Philip asked him, as if at the sword's point.

"N—no," said Lord Nasing, quite unused to these tactics from his legionaries.

"Well," said Philip. "Come along and dine with me at the Savoy, and I'll tell you there what I have done. I'm too exhausted to talk till I've got some Burgundy inside me."

Silence reigned for a space in the council chamber.

"Straker," Lord Nasing called.

"My lord?" the valet appeared.

"My coat. Mr. Masters has been good enough to ask me to dine with him at the Savoy."

"If you don't mind," Philip added, "we'll go to the grill room, as I'm not dressed."

He was strangely enthusiastic in his new profession. He reckoned that he was succeeding. And certainly his exit in company with Lord Nasing from the Brent Building gave currency to a rumor among the innumerable staff that he was.

The reception of the pair in the grillroom of the Savoy, where Lord Nasing was well known, amounted to a triumph. Philip ordered the wine, and drank most of the first bottle before the peer could begin.

"And now," said he over the soup, "I'll tell you what I've done. Well, I've spent about a hundred and eighty pounds."

"You're a costly luxury," said his lordship. "No wonder you ask me to dinner."

"Not at all. I'm cheap. In return for that trifling sum I've secured a long signed article by Mrs. Upottery. It will be delivered to-morrow, giving the entire history of her relations with the dead man, and also interviews with signed statements from thirty-one out of the sixty boarders in the house. I've also secured a long article from myself of unique interest. And look here."

He tumbled a heap of rough photographic prints from his pocket.

"Here are photographs of the house; the sewer; the Captain's room, where the murder was probably committed; the stairs; a group of boarders at lunch; the crowds in the street; separate portraits of forty boarders. See this photograph of Mrs. Upottery! Also these photographs of policemen and detectives. Never before, I fancy, has a newspaper had photographs of detectives in the act of detecting. And here, photograph of the Volga—the Captain's last command. Also a collection of portraits of Giralda."

"Good!" said Lord Nasing. "Good. But where's the murderer?"

"All in due course," Philip replied. "All in due course. I have only been at work ten hours."

Suddenly Lord Nasing laughed.

"What's the joke?" Philip ventured to inquire.

"I was just thinking," Lord Nasing answered. "Supposing you are the murderer—you might be, you know!—what a scoop it would be for the Courier in the end!"

"Yes, wouldn't it!" Philip concurred.

At the end of the generous but rapid meal he asked for the bill, and opened his pocketbook to get a banknote. He unfolded his bundle of notes. The note that first met his eye was one for £100, which constituted rather less than half of his entire fortune. He read mechanically the number and date: "E-34 687056 London, 15th May, 1904." And the room began to rock and the world to be unreal. The number of the notes handed to Captain Pollexfen by his employers on the fatal Tuesday had been published everywhere. And this note was one of them! Philip knew the numbers by heart.

He commanded himself, discovered a fiver, put the other notes back into his pocketbook, and paid the bill.

'He read mechanically the number and date, 'E-34 687056—London, 15th May, 1904.' "

CHAPTER XIII.

A Discovery.

Philip's departure from the Savoy grillroom was accomplished with the irreducible minimum of formality; and the cloakroom attendant had a narrow escape of being maimed for life, merely because of a slight tendency toward ritualism in the delivery of the journalist's hat and coat. As for Lord Nasing, abandoned with such breath-taking lack of ceremony, the Emperor Nero, when someone pitched the bed-hangings into the middle of his supper-table was far less astonished than he. Lord Nasing's sole comfort was a moral certainty that Philip must be the criminal himself. Philip bounded into a cab, and told the driver to drive, in an unmentionable manner, to Devonshire Mansions. He drew again the pocketbook from his pocket. Happily the cab was the last word of civilization in cabs, and had a small oil lamp fixed in its interior, so that Philip could examine the banknote thoroughly and at leisure. Not only was there no mistake about the number of the note, but he had another note for a hundred pounds, and that also bore one of the advertised numbers. He thus held in his possession two of the notes which the shipping firm had paid to Captain Pollexfen on the day of the latter's murder. No wonder the hand trembled and he forgot for the moment that he was a journalist and therefore "ipso facto" imperturbable!

Oxwich, who might with advantage have started a school of imperturbability for young journalists, opened to him on the fifth floor of Devonshire Mansions.

"Sir Anthony in?"

"Yes, sir. But he's expecting"——

"I must see him instantly," said Philip. "Instantly!"

Oxwich had a great power of grasping a situation.

"Certainly, sir." And without another word he escorted Philip to the drawing-room. Sir Anthony was walking nervously to and fro, an unrivalled chrysanthemum in his buttonhole. He jumped as the door opened.

"Say, Tony," Philip spluttered out.

"Look here, old man." Sir Anthony stopped him with a rapid flow of words. "Awful glad to see you. But you can't stop here. Josephine has dined with me down below in the restaurant, and she's just gone for a moment to see Kitty, and then she's coming here and we're going to try over one of her songs, and then I have to drive her to the Metro, or she'll be late. She comes on at 9 20. It's a fearful bore, but what can I do? See you afterward, eh?"

"I don't care for fifty Josephines," said Philip, producing his pocketbook. "How do you explain this?" The door opened [illegible]in.

"Here she is," Tony whispered. "Skip, my son!" He glanced at the door and his face suffered a great change. It did not merely fall, it fell to pieces. "Mildred!" he exclaimed.

"My darling Tony?" twittered a fluffily dressed and maturely handsome woman who floated across the room in a maze of chiffon, and then took Tony by the neck. After which, on perceiving Philip, she gave a little "Oh!" of coquettish surprise.

"My friend, Philip Masters," said Tony, disengaging himself. "Phil, this is my sister, Mrs. Appleby."

"I'm always delighted to meet my Tony's friends," Mrs. Appleby asserted, sailing down upon Philip.

It was at once evident that she conducted her existence exclusively in the superlative degree. There are many such women. They invariably remain stationary at the age of thirty-eight, spend the largest possible sums on costumes, and fight eternally against embonpoint. Their husbands are usually dead, and if they have not a wonderful young son they have a wonderful young daughter. Mrs. Appleby had a son, as soon appeared.

"And what are you doing in town?" Tony demanded, with a pitiable effort to be joyous and enthusiastic.

"It's poor Horace," his sister replied, sinking with a sad sigh, but gracefully into a chair. "He's unwell again. He telegraphed for me this morning and I drove to Crewe and caught the eleven express. It doesn't seem to be anything serious, but really something will have to be done. For his age—fourteen, Mr. Masters—he's wonderfully advanced. In fact, his teacher can't keep him back. He tells me he was going into permutations and combinations next week! Just imagine that! But his constitution won't stand it. And I fancy there's something in the air of Blackheath. I shall have to take him away. He looks on you as quite a second father. Tony, dear, and as I"——

Oxwich showed himself in the doorway. He said nothing. He merely interrupted the discourse by gazing at Sir Anthony in a fashion which indicated alarm, regret, impotence, and entreaty. Disturbing sounds were to be heard in the corridor.

"And as I"—— Mrs. Appleby vivaciously resumed.

"Half a second, Mildred!" Tony said, almost blushing, and hurried out of the room, only half shutting the door.

Philip and Mrs. Appleby regarded each other, Philip being burned up with a supressed fever and nearly light-headed.

"And as I always consult dear Tony in these"—— Mrs. Appleby recommenced, with a siren's smile.

"Just so!" said Philip, and left her in order to follow Tony.

"Sister, indeed!" he heard an irate voice. "Then why should your silly Oxwich keep me out?" And his eye caught the last six inches of Josephine's skirt as she whisked magnificently out of Tony's flat.

"Meredith rushed past him down the stairs without a word."

Tony gazed blankly at Philip. Oxwich completely shut the door on Mrs. Appleby.

"I must go after her immediately," said Tony.

"In your place, Sir Anthony, I should delay twenty-four hours," Oxwich remarked in low, respectful tones.

"Impossible, Oxwich."

"If not forty-eight—if not forty-eight!" Oxwich pursued. "Pardon the liberty, Sir Anthony"——

"See here!" cried Philip, careless of being heard, and brandishing his notes. "You paid me these notes on Wednesday morning. Look at the numbers. Take them and look at them. I tell you."

Sir Anthony obeyed, somewhat awed by his friend's virulence.

"Well?" Sir Anthony inquired. "What? Are they forged?"

"I wish they were!" Philip answered. And he explained. Sir Anthony, not unnaturally, was difficult to convince, but after Oxwich had consulted two different newspapers and ascertained that the numbers were indeed those of two notes belonging to the murdered Captain, the Baronet was at any rate reduced to astounded exclamations. By that time they had retreated to the dining room. "Oxwich," he demanded at length, "where did we get these notes?"

"From Miss Fire," Oxwich replied, full of finely controlled emotion. "We had no other hundred pound notes. Miss Fire repaid them to us on Tuesday night. You will remember, Sir Anthony, that you expressed surprise."

"I'd lent her a monkey to get her aunt's husband out of a difficulty, or some rot or other," Tony said quickly to Philip. "That was last week. And on Tuesday she told me she only needed three hundred, and she gave me two hundred back."

"What time was that?"

"What time was it, Oxwich?"

"About midnight, Sir Anthony."

"It is I who must go after her then," said Philip. "And at once!"

"I'll go with you," Sir Anthony muttered excitedly. "This is a most serious thing."

"Serious?" Philip cried. "Why, it's the key to the entire situation! Come on." He snatched the notes.

"It will be difficult to neglect Mrs. Appleby, Sir Anthony," said Oxwich. "She informed me that she had not yet dined."

"Oh! Conf—— Go and tell Mrs. Appleby, Oxwich, that—No, I'll go myself."

He rushed to the drawing-room.

Philip waited perhaps five seconds. It became a moral and physical impossibility for him to wait longer. He fled, ran headlong down the grand staircase of the Devonshire, because the lift was not attending his imperious demand, and disdaining the aid of six porters, shot into a cab. He still held the notes loose in his hand.

HOW TO MAKE THE VERY FASHIONABLE HEDEBO LACE

With Some Exclusive Patterns for Nimble Needlewomen to Work from at a Very Small Cost.

OF all the fashionable needlework fads which have come and gone, nothing more beautiful and durable than Hedebo needlepoint has ever been produced.

The work is so very handsome, and in such entirely good taste, that like the finer classes of drawn work and satin stitch embroideries, it is certain to remain forever in good form, even when the rage for it has been swept away to make room for some new fad.

Hedebo needlepoint is the peasant national work of Denmark, and it is as far superior to other forms of embroidery fancy stitches that have come to us from European countries as point lace is to some cheap imitation. Its variety is wonderful, and therefore its charm is enduring. It is a combination of lace with embroidery stitches, and is done with strong flax thread upon special qualities of linen, so that pieces of Hedebo needlepoint, unless very roughly handled, will last forever.

There is a tremendous vogue for learning Hedebo work, so much so that a sufficient number of teachers cannot be secured to instruct women in the art. In fashionable boudoirs it is the only really smart fancy work, and so many women are endeavoring to outdo one another in the beauty of their Hedebo work that Christmas gifts of fancy work for the coming season promise to be of a more elegant quality than usual.

While the buttonhole stitch forms the basis of Hedebo work, chain-stitching and satin-stitch embroidery are used in connection with it, as well as certain lace stitches, not very unlike Flemish stitch in form and in the method of working.

Each individual figure in the design is outlined with thread, after which it is cut and turned in at the edges, which are then buttonholed. The hollow places thus formed are partly filled in with attractive lace stitches.

One reason for the popularity of Hedebo needlepoint, apart from its beauty, is the fact that this work is less of a strain upon the eyes than are many other kinds of needlework. It is wrought with a somewhat coarse thread and linen of a firm and somewhat heavy weave. The work loses its character if the materials employed are too fine.

The buttonholing must not be done too tightly, and the worker holds her piece of linen so as to work away from herself, a method contrary to that in other forms of fancy work.

When purchasing linen for Hedebo work it is best to ask for "Hedebo" linen or for a slightly coarser linen known as B–6.

The needle must not be fine. Five and six are the best numbers of needles to use, and a sharp, finely pointed pair of scissors are necessary, as well as a "ring stick," on which seven sizes of thread rings can be wound for buttonholing.

Another necessity in doing Hedebo work is the finger shield, of metal or celluloid,

As many of the ready stamped designs for sale in the shops are not adapted to Hedebo treatment it may be necessary to make one's own design. If one has a little skill with her pencil this is not as hard as it seems at first thought, as the motifs are mainly simple cut-outs of circles, crescents and other geometrical figures artistically arranged.

SUNDAY AMERICAN-JOURNAL-EXAMINER PATTERNS NO. 266.

A New Fall Costume That Can Be Easily Made at Home.

GUIMPE effects are more or less the predominating note in many of the latest models and are shown to charming advantage in this costume of Alice blue broadcloth. The waist is of simple construction, fitted by shoulder and under-arm seams, and mounted on a fitted lining which can be omitted if preferred. Deep cuffs may lengthen the sleeve when desired, the turn-back cuffs affording a pretty finish for the shorter length.

The skirt is one of the smartest of the season. It is constructed of seven gores, and allows of smooth hip adjustment, while the lower edge falls in graceful rippling folds. The stitched bands terminating in points at the top add character to the mode, but the skirt may be made up perfectly plain and still be very stylish. Voile, cashmere, serge, foulard, taffeta and pongee are all suitable for reproduction. For 36-inch bust measure, 2¼ yards of 44-inch material will be required for the waist and 5¾ yards for the skirt.

The two patterns for this stunning fall suit have been prepared expressly for the American-Journal-Examiner series and will be mailed to any address for the special "bargain day" price of ten cents.

The waist pattern has been cut in six sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure. The skirt pattern may also be had in six sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist measure.

To obtain these two special patterns just fill out the blank and mail, enclosing the special "bargain day" price of 10 cents, to

An Exclusive Peep Into Newport's "Little Canfield's."

The Rev. Walter Lowrie, rector of Trinity Church, which is the church of the fashionable set, has repeatedly denounced the gambling which is now conducted by his parishioners and their friends on so great a scale and in such a public manner. He has referred to the Bungalow Club by name.

"I felt at liberty to refer to the Bungalow," he said, "because it is essentially a public institution. I don't happen to know, except in a few cases, those who frequent it, but I know that in spite of its large membership it is regarded with distaste in this community.

"The nickname that has been given it of 'Canfield's-by-the-Sea' I believe is a popular verdict of condemnation. Certain it is that no men's club could maintain itself in honor if it should expressly countenance gambling on Sunday afternoons. For my part, I am convinced that this club, and the prevalent spirit of gambling which it has incited have done a far greater injury to Newport than could be done by the worst city government. I pray God it may be destroyed. I should not deserve your respect as a preacher of the Gospel if for any motive I were capable of glossing over such a page."

On another occasion Mr. Lowrie said: "Fashionable gambling games are as pernicious as any other form of gambling. Rich women and men who gamble do not seem to regret their losses, nor do they hesitate to contribute to many good causes and worthy charities. But their contributions are infinitesimal compared with their gambling losses."

The moral which Mr. Lowrie enforced with abundant reasons was that gambling was wicked even when carried on by those who can afford to lose an almost unlimited amount of money. It must occasionally involve directly persons who cannot afford to lose on this scale, and it sets a ruinous example to poor persons, who as servants or ordinary members of the public become aware of the habits of the wealthy classes. Even when the losses are confined to those who have inexhaustible wealth, it is shocking to think that thousands of dollars should be thrown way in an utterly useless amusement when the money could do so much good when devoted to an intelligent object.

It would be amusing, were it not shocking, to think of the society matron at Trinity Church on Sunday morning dropping 25 cents or a dollar into the plate as she sings the familiar hymn:

"Were the whole realm of nature mine
It were an offering far too small"— and then hustling off to the Bungalow Club to drop a thousand dollars at bridge.

Mr. Lowrie is highly praised for his courage and good sense in speaking so strongly and plainly on this subject by the serious and quiet-living members of the colony, but there is no indication that his words will have any effect for the present. Habits of foolish extravagance and reckless gambling have taken hold of the community and are growing worse instead of better.

golden hair and a skin [illegible] milk and roses. Her husband is a thick-[illegible] broad shouldered man, with a bull neck [illegible] looks as if he would like to knock one [illegible] on the spot.

Alexandrina has [illegible] her heart to me. She is profound[illegible] unhappy in her married life, and was forced by her father into wedding the Grand Duke Bernard. He entirely neglected her during the first few years. Indeed, he even showed some dislike for her. On [illegible] very beginning of the honeymoon [illegible] short time was over [illegible] had no further attraction for him.

But when she [illegible] a young shy, silly girl into [illegible] and independent woman, [illegible] fied herself for the [illegible] Her husband found [illegible] the very first time, and it was [illegible] began to [illegible] and her alluring [illegible] day and told her [illegible] she was betraying him. She [illegible] of course, and told a lie, but [illegible]

He began to break [illegible] table. She tried to prev[illegible] was the weaker of [illegible] to submit to his smashing her [illegible] there he found the [illegible] He snapped up the [illegible] off with it; and while he, [illegible] his room, was absorbed in her lov[illegible] Alexandrina, tormented by agonizing [illegible] kept asking herself if she hadn't [illegible]

In the evening [illegible] came to her. He looked as if he w[illegible] to commit a murder, but [illegible] entirely differ[illegible] her almost to death and then [illegible] her to tell about her affair [illegible] although he alread[illegible] he dragged it out of her [illegible] and with cuffs [illegible]

She had [illegible] again now that he [illegible] life did not [illegible] he said not a word to prevent [illegible] took no steps of any kind to restrict her liberty. Gradually she discovered that, on the contrary, he preferred things to remain as they were. When she was sure of that any [illegible] that she had had disappeared entirely. She now enjoys the utmost liberty, but she purchases it only by confessions to her husband.

Alexandrina confessed to me that at first her husband's cynicism filled her with horror and disgust, and that life became a hideous, revolting burden to her. But that there had been hours when his crazy form of jealousy began to exercise its fascination over her.

I had not recovered from the horror of this discovery when my official court physician, Professor Rodi, informed [illegible] that many of the sovereigns and [illegible] of Europe were afflicted with the same mania. He told me that the [illegible] Theologius (the Grand Duke [illegible] of Russia recently assassinated) was a man of the most brutal temper and depraved habits, and he frequently beat his wife (the Grand Duchess Sergius, sister of the Czarina, one of the most beautiful women in any European court. She has preserved a high and noble character amid almost universal corruption and enjoys the sympathy and esteem of the Russian people, even in the present state of revolution.)

I was disgusted by the effrontery with which the Crown Princess of Dalmatia (the Crown Princess of Roumania) carried on her intrigue with my friend Count Zawitsch. In the evening she would sit in the royal box at the opera and he opposite her. He could not speak publicly to a royal princess without receiving permission to do so, but there they would sit and smile and wink at each other just as if they were quite alone in the world. Later I learned that there was very good reason for their familiarity.

Then case after case came to my knowl[illegible] proving the universal corruption of the circle in which I lived, and the con[illegible] forced itself upon me that the only [illegible] was to tear myself away from these associations and [illegible] life anew in some republic—[illegible] or France, or possibly even the United States.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF Buster Brown

Copyrighted 1906 [illegible] Journal Examiner Great Britain [illegible]

by R. F. Outcault

I TOLD you about having a camera Well, I was so successful with it that ma got me a better one. I got to be quite a picture taker. They got up a fair for the benefit of the public library, and I took pictures. Every year they get up a benefit for the public library It needs new books, for during the season the Summer boarders wear out a great many of the books. I went up to the public library one day and I was astonished to see how cheap novels and trashy books were the ones that were worn out, while the really good books were as fresh as ever.

Dear me, how many people read for pastime, just like they play cards or sleep. Anything that gives them something to think about and improves their minds is too much for them. But I can't help it, so why should I care?

Well, the fair was a great success, and I took lots of pictures. You can learn lots of things about people that you never knew before if you take pictures for a while. Everybody wants to look pretty. Nearly all people think they're handsomer than they are. A homely face is just as comfortable as a handsome one—I believe it is more comfortable. I would much rather have a head that was beautiful on the inside than the outside. I have found out one thing; a head that is beautiful inside will grow to be beautiful outside, because a beautiful mind will not allow wrinkles to come; a beautiful mind makes wide open, sweet eyes, because the eyes are the windows of the mind

Once in a while a beautiful face will be found on the front of a head that is almost empty, but that face cannot remain attractive very long. I have found that cameras are pretty hard to fool You cannot hypnotize a camera and make it believe it sees something it doesn't.

I TOOK A PICTURE OF JONES'S BABY

Well, I didn't have [illegible] room to develop my negatives [illegible] I had one of those new-fashioned [illegible]lopers that develop out in the light [illegible] time rolls on we are learning to do all our developing in the light. Nothing good ever developed in the dark. The only honest thing that is done in the dark is sleeping

I took a lot of funny pictures that day. One was a picture of old uncle Joe, who broke his neck in the circus ring. The picture didn't show the break in his neck because his whiskers covered it. He was so bow-legged that his knees didn't show in the picture. Then I took Jones's baby. The Jones nursemaid held the baby while I took the picture. I guess I'm not a success at taking babies' pictures, for that baby didn't look very pleasant. It looked natural, though; it looked so natural that Mrs. Jones would not accept the picture. She declared that her baby seldom cried, and besides, she said her baby was very beautiful, and the picture wasn't.

Did any one ever know a baby that wasn't beautiful Everybody has the smartest and brightest little darling that was ever born. If you don't believe it ask their mothers. If you want to get a person to listen attentively for hours just get his mother to tell about the cunning things he used to do when he was a baby.

Mary Jane was the cashier and took in the money. We turned in quite a lot of money to the fair It is a good thing for needy institutions that there are so many idle people looking for something to do to have fun. These fairs are not for sweet charity, they are for fun. I knew of an amateur comic opera that was gotten up by some society people for the benefit of a hospital that was greatly in need of money. The receipts were $1,006.00 and the show cost just $1,065.00, so you see how much the hospital got. But it was a great success, the papers said so, and several stage-struck society girls and boys had a chance to distinguish themselves.

Oh, charity, charity, what a lot of fun and foolishness is indulged in in thy name! Why, those people even made that hospital pay the $59.00 deficit, which shows how much real charity there was in the thing. But our public library fair really bought a few books. The committee bought them by the yard at a bargain sale.

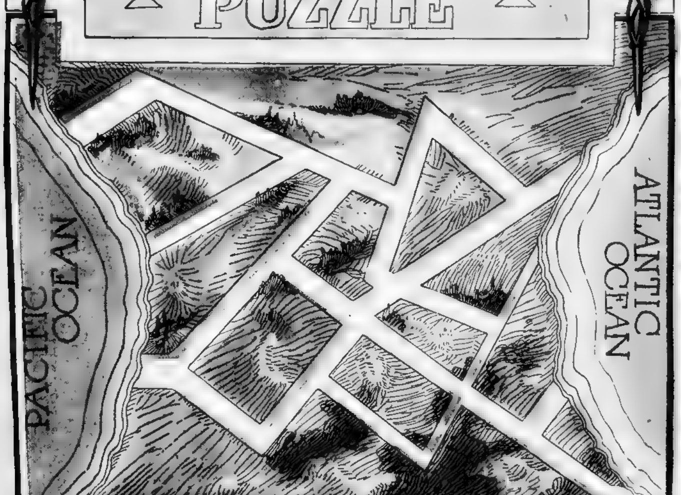
TIGE WAS THE BARKER FOR OUR LITTLE SIDE SHOW

SAM LOYD'S PANAMA CANAL PUZZLE



Uncle Sam is finding that the digging of the Panama Canal is a bigger job than he ever dreamed of. The picture shows the latest surveys, and perhaps some of our puzzle experts can assist in the great undertaking. The white streaks show the desirable working ground, and the problem confronting the Government is to find the shortest cut from ocean to ocean. In proportion to the map a pencil line would be about the width of the canal, so all you have to do is to draw a line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, passing through any of the white spaces you may choose, in order to show the shortest possible route across.

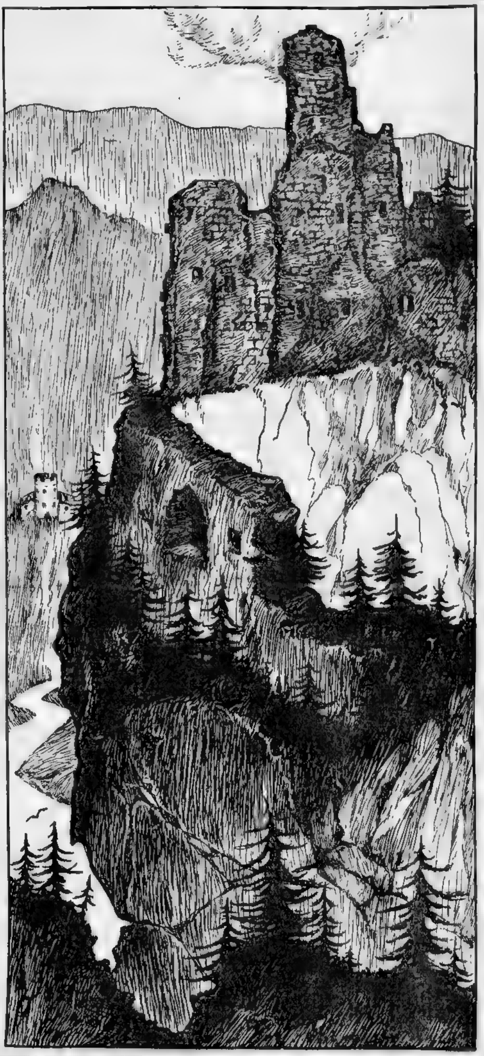
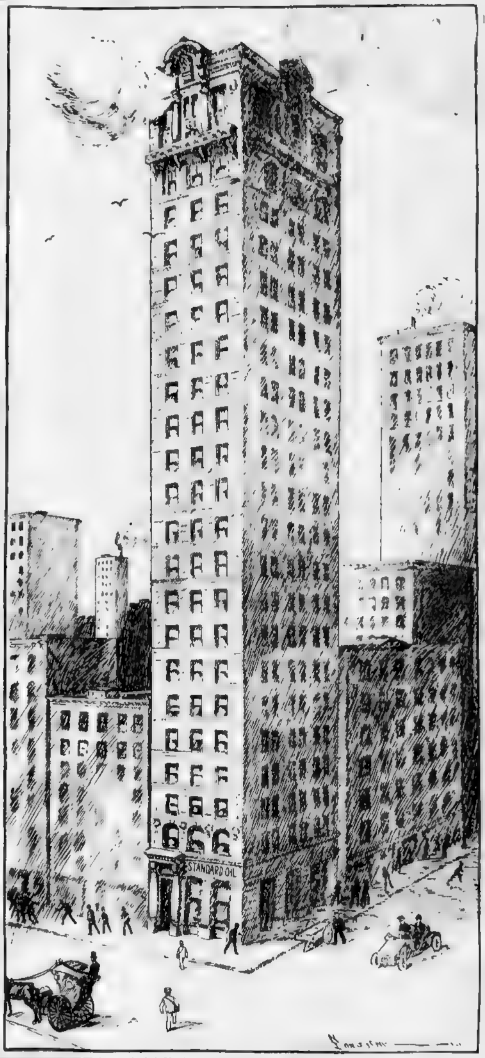
THE OLD



THE NEW



Methods and architecture change. MAN'S SELFISHNESS REMAINS THE SAME. We have won the fight against the Baron with the castle on the hill. We have still to win the fight against the modern Baron with his steel tower and his powerful Trust in Wall Street. The fight is the same, the courage required is the same.

POWER used to rule mankind in the stone castle high on a hill.

Up there the feudal baron lived. In his rough stone hall he ate and drank, planned his murderous raids.

The land all around him belonged to him, THE HUMAN BEINGS ALL AROUND BELONGED TO HIM. They were as much HIS as the pigs in the sty, as much HIS property as the rough wooden plow that scratched the ground, or the thin ox that pulled the plow, often with a man or a woman harnessed beside it.

The road down by the river was the only highway through the baron's domain. There the merchant passed, AND THERE HE PAID TOLL. He was lucky if he escaped with the mere payment of toll. The baron on the hill, in ill temper or unusual need, could and would take everything.

Throughout the country this primitive ruler of the stone castle established his own weights and measures, coined his own money, SWINDLED AS HE PLEASED.

Nobody questioned his power. Below, the poor, ,frightened, half-starved creatures worked for barely enough to keep them alive. The plague devoured them by thousands. Wars devoured them by thousands. They often ate the dead bodies of their fellow-serfs. Eighty per cent of all they produced was not an unusual tax for them to pay.

The woman who could afford a pair of wooden shoes on her feet was exceptional. One rough garment was the only covering of men and women alike.

There was no education, there was no protection.

THERE WAS SEEMINGLY NO HOPE.

Among themselves the barons made treaties, ALL INTENDED TO MAKE ABSOLUTE THE OPPRESSION OF THE POOR, DEFENCELESS CREATURES LIVING DOWN BELOW.

The serf that wandered from his dreadful slavery was branded with a red hot iron. The barons often fastened collars of iron around the necks of THEIR MEN. These iron collars bore the baron's mark.

Thousands upon thousands of human beings slaved, starved, died and were buried with these iron collars on their necks.

THAT LASTED FOR CENTURIES UPON CENTURIES.

It seemed indeed that there was no hope.

But hidden away in those dull hearts there was the SPARK OF COURAGE. In those starved brains and starved bodies, in those crushed and brutalized souls, there was MANHOOD, the power that tyranny has never been able to destroy utterly.

Little by little, year by year, human courage and the human brain fought against tyranny in the old stone tower on the hill.

Finally that tower was torn down. And finally THAT tyranny died.

The tower stands now, stern, quiet, outlined against the evening sky. There are no echoes in the big hall. The grass grows between the stones. The bats fly at night where the rulers of men were once so noisy. War horses are fastened to plows in the valley below. The people in the valley have pulled down the mighty, they have won a very great fight.

But THEY HAVE NOT CHANGED HUMAN NATURE. Humanity has made wonderful progress, it has done wonderful things. The brain of man has invented the cannon that made the knight's armor useless. The brain of man has found the remedies powerful to fight the plague. The feeling of brotherhood in man has discovered in the force of union, solidarity, a power able to fight selfishness.

BUT HUMAN NATURE HAS NOT CHANGED. THE POWER OF SELFISHNESS HAS BEEN TRANSFERRED BUT NOT ABOLISHED.

Government of the many by the few has been modified in its brutality, but, MODIFIED, it still exists.

This government has been moved from the baron's stone tower on the hillside to the counting room of the Trust in the steel building of the great city.

Capitalistic feudalism has replaced military feudalism.

The baron with the bristly beard, the hairy fist, the coat of mail, the long lance and the physical fighting power is gone. There sits in his place, quiet, clean, smooth of face and smooth of voice, another man.

This man is weak in muscle, BUT IRON IN WILL. He has no armed guards around him. But dozens of keen intellects are on his payroll

He controls the steel highway—the railroad—as the old baron controlled the road below his castle.

The new ruler of men OWNS HIS MILLIONS OF HUMAN BEINGS WHERE THE BARON OWNED HIS THOUSANDS.

The baron in the steel office building does not put iron collars marked with his sign on the necks of thousands. He puts his invisible fist of power on the lives, the pocketbooks, THE NECESSITIES of millions.

He takes toll on the steel highway, and every merchant must pay him.

He taxes the lamp, the sugar bowl, and every family must pay him.

In a land where the great majority submit to law, he, like the baron of old, RISES ABOVE THE LAW.

The laws obeyed by millions PROTECT him in his usurpation of power and of wealth, and yet they do not CHECK him in his misuse of power and of wealth.

Greatly improved in peace and in facility of work is the modern baron of industrial feudalism. The old barons fought among themselves, sometimes killing each other and their retainers.

The modern Trust rulers agree among themselves and ALL unite to exploit ALL below them.

Now the question is, are the men of to-day less courageous, less determined to have justice, than those half-starved, brutalized peasants of centuries gone by?

The man of to-day is well-fed. Is he to remain inactive, acquescent in wrong, because his stomach is full, like some pampered lapdog?

The courage of men who lived here before us secured for humanity bodily freedom. There are no iron collars rivetted on men's necks. There are no red hot brands pressed against their cheeks or their foreheads as punishment for wandering away from slavery.

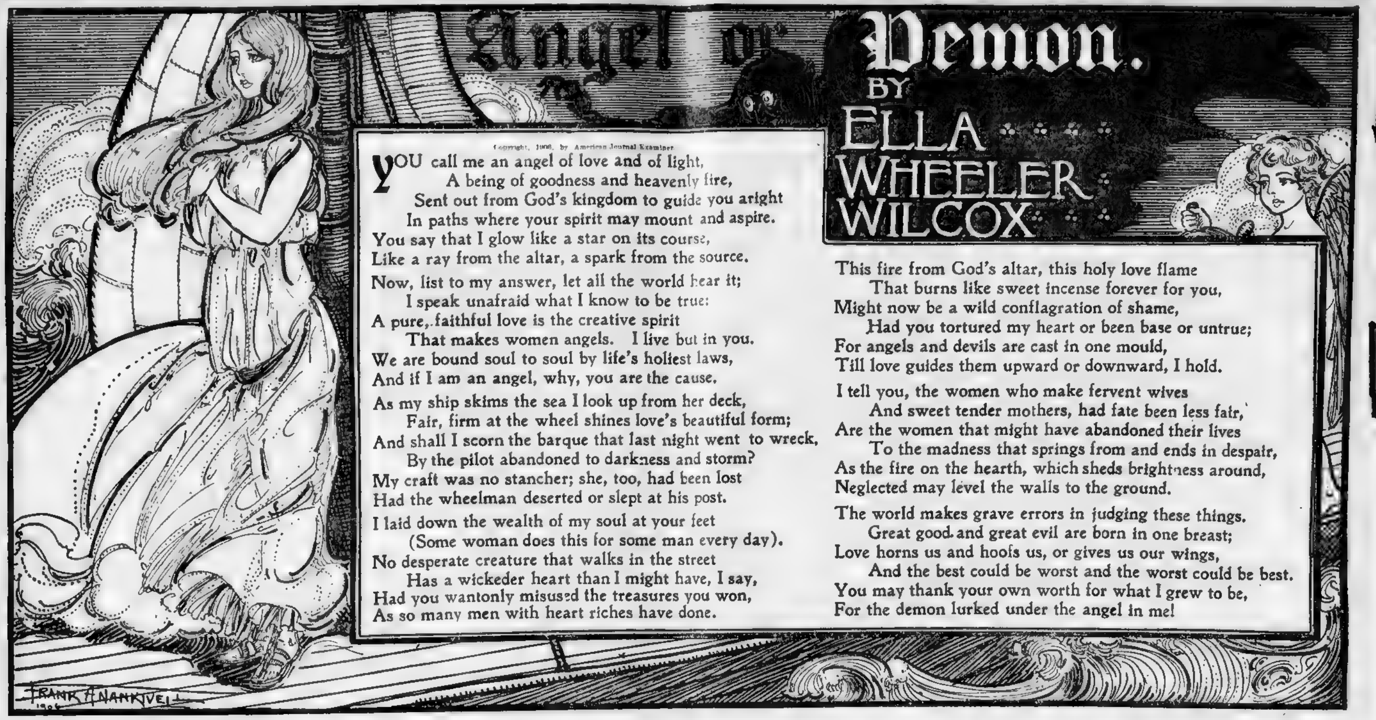
We have a duty as pressing as the duty performed by our predecessors.

THEY achieved freedom for the body. It is OUR duty to achieve freedom of the mind, freedom in government, FREEDOM FROM THE ILLEGAL TAXATION OF THE MANY BY THE FEW, which is the basis of Wall Street feudalism to-day, as it was the basis of military feudalism a thousand years ago in that old tower that you see in the picture.

You who read this are serfs of the Trust. You are taxed without your consent. Your governing power is taken from you and used against you. Your ablest men are bought to defeat your laws and ridicule your protests.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO? Have you in your heart less courage, less manhood, than the poor, beaten, starved, ignorant, mutilated serf of a thousand years ago?

Are you not going to do, in YOUR century, for human freedom, a work as great as that which he did in his?



Angel or Demon.

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal Examiner.

YOU call me an angel of love and of light,
A being of goodness and heavenly fire,
Sent out from God's kingdom to guide you aright
In paths where your spirit may mount and aspire.
You say that I glow like a star on its course,
Like a ray from the altar, a spark from the source.

Now, list to my answer, let all the world hear it;
I speak unafraid what I know to be true:
A pure, faithful love is the creative spirit
That makes women angels. I live but in you.
We are bound soul to soul by life's holiest laws,
And if I am an angel, why, you are the cause.

As my ship skims the sea I look up from her deck,
Fair, firm at the wheel shines love's beautiful form;
And shall I scorn the barque that last night went to wreck,
By the pilot abandoned to darkness and storm?
My craft was no stancher; she, too, had been lost
Had the wheelman deserted or slept at his post.

I laid down the wealth of my soul at your feet
(Some woman does this for some man every day).
No desperate creature that walks in the street
Has a wickeder heart than I might have, I say,
Had you wantonly misused the treasures you won,
As so many men with heart riches have done.

This fire from God's altar, this holy love flame
That burns like sweet incense forever for you,
Might now be a wild conflagration of shame,
Had you tortured my heart or been base or untrue;
For angels and devils are cast in one mould,
Till love guides them upward or downward, I hold.

I tell you, the women who make fervent wives
And sweet tender mothers, had fate been less fair,
Are the women that might have abandoned their lives
To the madness that springs from and ends in despair,
As the fire on the hearth, which sheds brightness around,
Neglected may level the walls to the ground.

The world makes grave errors in judging these things.
Great good and great evil are born in one breast;
Love horns us and hoofs us, or gives us our wings,
And the best could be worst and the worst could be best.
You may thank your own worth for what I grew to be,
For the demon lurked under the angel in me!

A Short Cut to Fame (The Song Writer) By William F. Kirk

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal Examiner.

"SONGS of home," said the Song Writer, "are again hot favorites. We have played the mother songs off the board, and the Geographical Lay is done."

"And what," I ventured, "is the Geographical Lay?"

The Song Writer smiled in his superior way. Imparting information was pie for him.

"The Geographical Lay," he answered, "is the writing of such songs as 'My Old Wisconsin Home,' ''Mid the Green Fields of Virginia,' 'She Is Sleeping 'Neath a Mound at New Rochelle,' etc. If there were more States in the Union, and more rivers, we could keep it up, but the gamut has been run."

I began to understand.

"Furthermore," continued the Song Writer, "coon songs, sentimental songs, and fly songs are all to the bad. My last coon ditty, 'You Have Nicked Your Razor, Rastus, on Your Father's Silvery Head,' didn't sell a little bit. My last sentimental ballad, 'I Stole That Pie to Feed My Starving Sister,' is not in great demand, and is only being sung, so far as I can learn, in such Thespian temples as the Star Theatre, in St. Paul, Minn."

"Have you tried your hand at anything recently?"

"Well," replied the Song Writer, "my first stab at a song of home didn't pan out to suit me. I tried it last week, and only got through one verse and the chorus. At first I thought the title 'Father's Pay Is Garnisheed' would be a knockout along pathetic lines, and I got away with this swell chorus.

"Selling Tickets on the side'walk for a noted problem play."

WE are eating bread and lard,
All the world seems cruel and hard,
Everything around the house has gone to seed,
Mother can't go anywhere,
For she has no dress to wear
Since my dear old father's pay was garnisheed."

That sounds great!" I declared. "What made you pass it up."

"I hated to," said the Song Writer, "but I have a lawyer friend, and when I read it to him he said there was no such word as 'garnisheed,' with the accent on the last syllable. He said 'garnished' was the proper word, so that knocked out my rhyme scheme."

"Hard luck, old man."

"Never mind," he continued, "I tried it again, and this time I have made good. It's timely, this new one. Everybody's hunting flats nowadays, and this lyric, not yet set to music, ought to hit the right spot. Here it is:

"JUST A LITTLE FLAT IN HARLEM, BUT IT'S HOME."

I.

IN the busy, bustling city I am working every day,
Selling tickets on the sidewalk for a noted problem play.
But a ticket speculator has to live the same as you,
So I always journey homeward when my busy time is through
To an 'elegant apartment' on the surface car I roam—
Just a little flat in Harlem, but it's home.

"Just a little flat in harlem, but it's home."

CHORUS:

THERE'S a roach on every tea cup,
There are scratches on the wood,
And the bath tub doesn't empty
Half so swiftly as it should.
But I always strive to reach it ere the glooming starts to gloam.
Just a little flat in Harlem, but it's home.

II.

UP five flights of stairs I scramble when my business cares are o'er,
And I find my darling Sophie waiting for me at the door;
With the ice bill in her fingers, or perhaps (poor little lass!)
Softly sobbing that the Gas Trust has shut off our stock of gas.
How I feel the joy of living as to that abode I roam!
Just a little flat in Harlem, but it's home.

CHORUS:

THERE are fractures in the ceilings,
Every window yawns ajar.
Both the faucets yield cold water
And the plumbing has catarrh.
But I always strive to reach it ere the glooming starts to gloam.
Just a little flat in Harlem, but it's home!

❧ Mirandy on "In-Laws" ❧ By Dorothy Dix ❧

"DID you ever think," inquired Mirandy "how ca'm an' happy, an' peaceable we would all be, an' how well we would all git on ef we didn't have no in-laws? I specs hit would be jest lak de millenium dat Brer Jenkins is always a-preachin' about an' dat de married couples would be lak de turkle doves, a billin' an' a cooin', because dey wouldn't have to be actin' up to show each odder's folks dat dey gwine to do lak dey pleases an' ain't gwine to be bossed by no fambly dat dey had de bad luck to marry into.

"Yassum, ef hit say, dat matches is de Lawd sends us den de devil shorely de [illegible] as in-law an' de saddles on us an' thinks is de mos' which one of her you

'Hit looks lak hit ought not to be dat way don't it? Hit seems lak de two women dat loves a man best ought to kinder take to each odder, but dey don't. De ma's bound dat she is gwine to keep her ey on de wife an' see dat she don't tromple on her son an' de wife, she's set an' determined dat she ain't gwine to let no odder woman boss her house or have more say-so wid her husband dan she has, so dey's des forordained or predestinated to hate each odder from de word go.

"Cose sometimes dey makes a mighty show of bein' lovin' an' affectionate but I se done took notice dat when dey's a kissin' dey's mighty apt to take a bite out of each odder's cheek an' when dey's got dey arms aroun' each odder's neck dey's got a flat iron or a rollin' pin hid in deir petticoats whilst dey waits for a good chance to git in a lick.

"Me an' Ike's ma we gits along mighty well dese days, because we done fought hit out to a finish whar she lets me keep house in my own way, an' use my bes' chainy ev'y day, an' name my babies to suit myself, but befo' we arrived at dat onderstandin' I done los' a lot of my back hair, an' she shed fo' front teeth.

"An' I guess wese bout lak de balance of de mas-in-law, an' de daughters-in-law. De farder apart we lives, de better we likes each odder, an' we never does warm up to each odder as well as when she is in Californy an' I is in Maine.

"Now, you know when me an' Ike was married, I was a mighty personable woman, ef I does say hit myself, an' I had a little money in the savin' bank, an' I knowed how to wash, an' cook, an' iron, an' hit seems to me dat ef anybody got de wuss end of de bargain in dat weddin' dat hit warn't Ike. But dat warn't de way his ma look at hit. She thought dat I ought to be down on my knees thankin' Heaven for my luck in gettin' him all de time dat I warn't waitin' on him, an' ev'y day or two she would segashuate over to our house to look after him, an' kinder put her oar in at paddlin' our canoe.

"Fust hit was one thing, an' den anudder. 'I hopes you don't aggrifret Ike none, Mirandy, becaze he's done been raised a pet,' says she.

"'So is I, 'spons I, 'an' dat's de reason dat he has to be keerful in handlin' my feelin's.'

"'I see you got a new frock, Mirandy. Hit's mighty hard for a man to git along dat has got a extravagant wife,' says she, wid a fetchin' sigh.

"'Dere's notin' for a keepin' a man out of mischief lak havin' to hustle early an' late,' spons I.

"'I'se feared yo'se a wasteful cook, Mirandy, yo' potato peelin's is too thick, an' you lays too heavy a hand on de seasonin'. I don't keep house dat way,' says she.

"'I ain't never heerd of people goin' to git yo' pattern for doin' things,' says I.

"'I hopes you don't make Ike fetch in de coal for you, Mirandy?' says she; 'he ain't never been used to doin' dat.'

"'Hit's shore time he begun, den,' says I, an' dat's de way we scratched back an' forth, ontell my fus' child was bawn, an' den when she wanted to name him Jehosiphant, an' raise him accordin' to her way, I jumped over de bars.

'I reckon you named yo' babies,' says I, 'an run yo' husban' an' yo' house to suit yoself, an' I'm gwine to do de same. An' furdermo',' says I, 'It was Ike dat married me, not you, an' I ain't gwine to put up wid any second-hand bossin. Goodness knows its hard enough to have to stand a husban' widout all his female kinfolks, an' right here an' now is whar I quituates.'

"Yessum, an' dat was de eend. She lef' me alone after dat, an' she never put her finger in my pie no mo' dough she still goes aroun' a groanin' an' a moanin' an' a callin' Ike 'Poor,' lak he was one of dese heah martyrs dat is throwed to de lions an' de beastes —an' me a takin' in wash to help out wid de fambly, an' a coddlin' Ike, an' a savin' him de bes' piece of pork chop on de dish, even when dere ain't enough to go roun', an' I makes out dat I don't eat becaze I done los' my appetite.

"You would think his mother would sort of prognosticate dat I was good to Ike, an' thank me for hit, wouldn't you? But dat ain't de way some mothers is built, an' I specs dat when Thomas Jefferson ties up wid some gal, dat I'll be kinder investigatin' aroun' to see dat she ain't pizenin' him wid her cookin' an' dat she don't waste his money on bead chains, an' silk frocks, an' I'll be feelin' lak chokin' her ev'y time I think how hard he has to work to support her, an' I will fergit all about her gittin' up at six o'clock in de mawnin' to cook his breakfast, an' settin' up till 'leven at night patchin his britches' an' de way she'll have to wrastle wid de red eye when he comes home all tanked up.

"Yassum, mothers is all alike. Dis mawnin' I met Sis Hannah Sue, who had her second bes' bonnet on, an' de mos' mournful look I ever see.

"'What's de matter, Sis Hannah Sue?' says I. 'You looks lak you is made acquaintances wid old man Trouble.'

"'Dat I is, Sis Mirandy,' she spons, 'dat Emmeline Mary has done roped in my Abraham Lincoln at las'.'

"'Shoo, you don't say so?' says I. 'Why, he's been des nigh about crazy to git her for fo' years. She must a taken him to git rid of him.'

"'Sis Mirandy,' says she, 'hit's de cunjer. She never could a took dat pore innercent boy in lak she is ef she hadn't a worked her rabbit foot somehow.'

"'A man dat's forty years ole is ole enough to know wedder he wants to git married or not,' says I, 'an' he's big enough to run away if he don't.

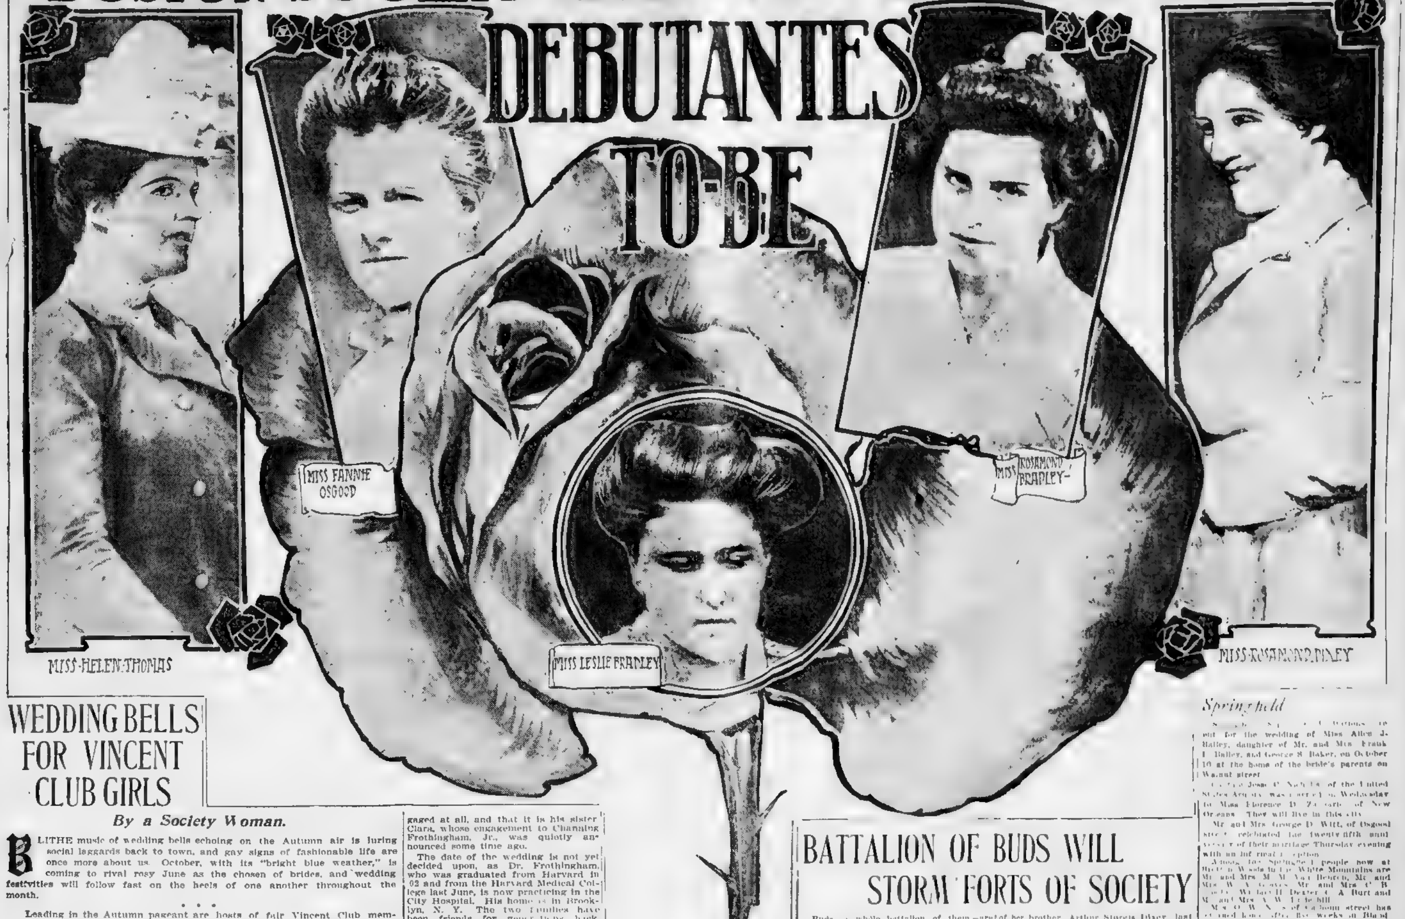
"'Dat chile never would a thought about gittin' married if dat designin' woman hadn't put him up to it.' goes on Sis Hannah Sue.

"'But Emmeline Ma'y is a fine ketch,' says I; but Sis Hannah Sue des shake her head, an' sigh out: 'My poor Abraham Lincoln,' lak he was a little helpless lamb bein' led to de butcher's—an' Abraham Lincoln forty years ole an' weighin' two hundred an' fifty pound, an' de boss of de section gang on de railroad!

"An' dat's what makes me say what I do —dat we'd be mighty happy an' peaceful ef hit warn't for our in-laws, dat's kin' enough to criticise our faults, but ain't kin' enough to forgive 'em."

"When she wanted to name him Jehosiphant, an' raise him accordin' to her way, I jumped over de bars."

BOSTON SOCIETY READY TO WELCOME THESE DEBUTANTES TO-BE



WEDDING BELLS FOR VINCENT CLUB GIRLS

By a Society Woman.

BLITHE music of wedding bells echoing on the Autumn air is luring social laggards back to town, and gay signs of fashionable life are once more about us. October, with its "bright blue weather," is coming to rival rosy June as the chosen of brides, and wedding festivities will follow fast on the heels of one another throughout the month.

Leading in the Autumn pageant are hosts of fair Vincent Club members, among whom are Rosamond Pierce, Dorothy Allen, Caroline Dabney, Rosamond Little, Susan Emmons and scores of others.

October will be ushered in to-morrow with the wedding in St. Paul's Church, Brookline, of Rosamond Pierce, the youngest and prettiest of the startlingly long array of Vincent Club brides-to-be, to "Tom" Barbour of the fine old New York family of that name, and a graduate of Harvard, '06.

Miss Pierce, a tall, lithe blonde, is the third daughter of Mr and Mrs. Dean Pierce of Fisher avenue Brookline, and bears the distinction of being the youngest member of the Vincent Club, or of society even, to become engaged. The ceremony will be performed at noon by the Rev. Leonard K. Storrs, amid a riot of Autumn blooms, and will be followed by a reception and breakfast at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Rosamond, like the groom-elect, is both popular and well placed and as a large contingent of the smart set will have returned to town by then, and as many of Mr. Barbour's relatives and friends from New York are expected, the church will no doubt be filled to overflowing with a large and brilliant array of guests. The bride's sisters, Dorothy, Sarah and Mary, will be among her attendants and she will be a picture in her conventional attire of white liberty and lace, over which will fall a well-nigh priceless veil of lace, a gift of the groom's mother, purchased during a recent European visit.

Susan Emmons Weds Next Month.

Susan Emmons has again surprised her friends by deciding upon an earlier wedding than had been anticipated and October 16 is the date she has selected for her wedding to Irvin McDowell Garfield, son of the late President Garfield.

Miss Emmons is the second daughter of Nathaniel Emmons of Commonwealth avenue, an heiress and pillar of the Vincent Club. Her engagement, which caused such a pleasant flutter of surprise among even the "knowing ones" when announced last Summer, was expected to be followed by a wedding, so the fair Susan has decided to follow the example of her younger sister Polly (Mrs. John Parkinson, Jr) and be married at her father's beautiful country home at Falmouth. Miss Emmons is an exceptionally attractive girl and enjoys unbounded popularity and it is expected that her wedding will be far and away the most brilliant of country weddings for many seasons past.

Mr Garfield, who is a member of the law firm of Warren and Garfield and prominent in the Tennis and Racquet, Union and other clubs, a graduate of Williams '93 and Harvard '96, is now thirty-six years of age and was but a boy of eleven when his father was assassinated. While at Harvard he was prominent in athletics, serving for sometime as an official on the gridiron. After his graduation from the law course, he entered the firm of Proctor and Warren, which is now the firm of Warren and Garfield, his partner, Mr. Warren, having, strangely enough, married the daughter of Secretary of the Treasury Windom, who was a member of President Garfield's Cabinet.

Miss Eleanor Emmons, the oldest of the interesting trio of Emmons's daughters, will be her sister's maid of of honor and the only brother, Nathaniel Emmons, Jr., will be among the ushers.

Another Vincent Club Bride.

Dorothy Allen is another of the Vincent club's interesting coterie of engaged girls who have chosen October for her wedding month and, though the exact date has not been decided upon, it will occur some time during the last week of the month. Miss Allen, whose engagement to Chandler Hovey was announced nearly a year ago, is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Allen of Fairfield street, and has just returned from a Summer's sojourn in Europe.

The prospective bride, though very popular, of fine appearance and always beautifully gowned, cares little for society, which she abandoned to take the training for a nurse at one of the Boston hospitals. She is a clever dancer and sings especially well, all of which makes her a valued member of the Vincent Club. Last winter at the play, "The Merry Marquise," given by the club, handsome Dorothy as the bosom friend of the Marquise made a dashing and interesting cavalier.

Mr. Hovey is at present residing with his sister, Mrs. Edwin Sibly Webster, of Chestnut Hill.

Younger Rotch Sister to Marry.

Cupid has not tangled his affairs so hopelessly as many might be lead to believe by the romantic rumors afloat to the effect that Miss Edith Rotch of golf and tennis fame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rotch of Bay State road, is soon to wed Dr. Channing Frothingham, Jr., and that on the same day her younger sister, Clara, will plight her troth to Chandler Ferguson.

Their brother, Will Rotch, Jr., who came up from Worcester Tuesday to cast his vote, is authority for the statement that Miss Edith Rotch is not engaged at all, and that it is his sister Clara, whose engagement to Channing Frothingham, Jr., was quietly announced some time ago.

The date of the wedding is not yet decided upon, as Dr. Frothingham, who was graduated from Harvard in '02 and from the Harvard Medical College last June, is now practicing in the City Hospital. His home is in Brooklyn, N. Y. The two families have been friends for generations back and the courtship of the young pair developed while Dr. Frothingham was at Harvard. Both the Rotch girls are prominent in athletics, and as amateur dancers have few rivals in the Vincent Club, of which they are leading members.

Miss Edith Rotch, who is petite, pretty and graceful, was a representative in the national tennis championship in Philadelphia last Spring and won successes in the recent Newport tournaments. The family is still at the Summer home at Nonquitt, where the girls are enjoying to the full outdoor life and sports.

Middlesex Hunt Show Coming.

Femininity—the strictly society element as well as the sporty, which will include the women of the Myopia and the Norfolk County clubs, will be on in force at the Middlesex Hunt show October 13 at the Kennels in South [illegible].

Howard Stockton, the well known sportsman, has offered a cup, and Rodolph L. Agassiz, Captain Samuel Parker of the Governor's staff, A. W. Stedman, Frank Lee, J. F. Farren and Harry Pratt McKean will act as judges.

Alexander H. Higginson and Frederick P. Sears are on the committee and it is already assured that the meet will be the most successful of the Hunt's Autumn events.

The prolific bird has again been visiting the homes of Boston ultras, leaving a son with Mr. and Mrs. William Austin Wadsworth (Elizabeth Perkins) of Beacon street, who also own a home on Madison avenue, New York, and a country estate at Geneseo; and a daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Porter, Jr. (Henrietta Wigglesworth), who are occupying the Dr Rotch cottage at Manchester.

SOCIETY GIRLS RESTORE COMPLEXIONS WITH MUD

Scores of Boston's sunburned and [illegible] superlatively smart set at Lenox, Islesboro, Newport and other exclusive resorts have found [illegible] amusing [illegible] Autumnal diversion.

They have been dabbling in what might be classed as one of the [illegible] and through the miraculous agency of mud—common, ordinary, every day mud—they claim to be banishing the last brownish left by the ravages of the sun, and proclaim it an unrivalled cosmetic.

Taking the "mud-treatment" for tan, freckles and the complexion generally has all the appearance of rehearsal for a minstrel show and after the fair, or rather, the unfair ones have donned their mud-masks it would indeed be a wise girl who knows her own chum.

And the object of these "mud larks"? Just ask Eleanor Sears, "Betty" Porter, Marie and Bessie Lee, Alice Bolt, Clara Shattuck, Dorothy Forbes, Hannah Stevenson, Abigail Adams and dozens of other Boston girls who have had their face [illegible] in this most modern [illegible] of fashion, and who will [illegible] the smartest functions [illegible] brows like the snowdrift [illegible] the swim gloriously [illegible]

[illegible] of Boston beauty seekers were [illegible] hour Professor Winsor [illegible] under his guidance at the Vilosoph[illegible] in Huntington Chambers recently, [illegible] the black mud, which is the idea [illegible] could be had in tons from Boston [illegible]

BATTALION OF BUDS WILL STORM FORTS OF SOCIETY

Buds—a whole battalion of them—are preparing to advance upon and storm the forts of [illegible]

[illegible] of the fair [illegible] several [illegible] for bearing the [illegible] is the divine right of [illegible] array.

[illegible] advance guard of the dazzling [illegible] Helen Thomas, a fair [illegible] of the [illegible] type. She is [illegible] daughter of Mr and Mrs Washington B. Thomas of Gloucester street and [illegible] as she is pretty. She is [illegible] with a graceful slender figure, brown [illegible] eyes. Though lacking [illegible] vitality and brilliant coloring [illegible] her sister Margaret, Miss Helen is pronounced by many as far [illegible] she excels [illegible] of outdoor sports, golf, tennis, riding [illegible] she has lost none of the [illegible] femininity which has always been [illegible] of charm.

Miss Thomas spent the Summer with her parents at Pride's Crossing as usual. During the early Summer the house was greatly enlarged and improved, and a perfectly appointed music room added, for both the Misses Thomas are devoted to music.

Dainty Elinor Quincy, with [illegible] looks and an ample fortune back of [illegible] will no doubt be quite as much of [illegible] as was her sister [illegible] Mrs. Frederick Russel Nourse. Miss Quincy spent several months abroad with her mother when a visit was made to [illegible] for the purpose of purchasing some [illegible] exquisite gowns to be worn by the [illegible] bud during her presentation season. Miss Quincy is winsome and vivacious with fine eyes and hair and a charming [illegible] She rides and drives to perfection and is an excellent linguist. It is expected that Miss Quincy will [illegible] at the Somerset [illegible]

Another of the winter's fairest buds will be Miss Rosamond Dixey, whose [illegible] will [illegible] owing to the death of her brother, Arthur Sturgis Dixey, last year. Miss Dixey, who has been with her parents at their Lenox villa [illegible] the greater part of the season [illegible] of the continent [illegible] She is an excellent horsewoman and has the gift of leadership to a marked degree, as was shown by the place she took in the group of Lenox girls the past summer.

Watch Your thirty Feet of Bowels!

YOU have thirty feet of Intestines!

What makes food travel through them?

A set of Muscles that line the walls of these Intestines or Bowels.

When a piece of Food rubs the walls of the Intestines these Muscles tighten behind it, and thus it starts a Muscle-wave which drives it through the whole length of the Bowels.

It should take about 12 hours to do this properly, so that nutritious parts of the food may have time to be digested and absorbed.

But,—If it takes twice or three times that period the food spoils in passing, and becomes as poisonous as if it had decayed before being eaten.

Now, the cause of delay (Constipation) is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel Muscles.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weakens these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg Muscles.

"Physic" like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Soda, Mineral Waters, simply flush-out the Bowels for the one occasion only.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

But this is different with Cascarets.

Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man.

They act like exercise.

A Cascaret produces the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce.

Exclusive Society Girls MAKING CORRECT FIGURES FOR THEMSELVES

How Newport Society Girls May Look Doing the Athletic Stunts Taught by Lucia Gale Barber

"People dwell too much on trivial things and not enough on earnest or vital things. Relaxation is not inertia, but the power to completely let go of one thing and take hold of another. Breathing is the finest and subtlest of the physical functions. Correct breathing, with muscular exercise, is a preventative of disease, and in many cases a curative," says Lucia Gale Barber

PHYSICAL CULTURE ADDS TO BEAUTY OF NEWPORT GIRLS

Newport, September 29. Physical culture is the most generally followed fad of the younger set of Newport society [illegible]. As a class they are much more athletic than the men who are prominent in the world of fashion. Not only do they take to swimming, golfing, tennis and all the outdoor sports adapted to their sex, but indoor exercises are equally in favor.

Boston girls in the Newport set lead the cottage colonists in athletics. It was Mrs. Lucia Gale Barber, a Boston woman, who made physical culture the fashion in this Summer abode of the tremendously rich. Her class is the most exclusive ever known here. It includes in its membership such society girls as Miss Edith Deacon, Miss Alice Potter, Miss Louise Scott, Miss Adele Bull, Miss Blanche Oelrichs, Miss Nina Morgan, Miss Edith Colford, Miss Vera Gilbert, Miss Sadie Jones, Miss Constance Warren and Miss Thaw.

The health and beauty of these young women are the best testimony to the value of exercising the muscles. Clear skins, bright eyes and lithe limbs are their certificates of fitness. Mrs. Barber instructs her pupils at the Griswold mansion on [illegible] and has for patronesses very prominent society women.

Exercise for the Body Works Great Improvement in Mind.

In a statement to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter Mrs. Barber said:

"Briefly stated, if rightly directed, the [illegible] of bodily exercise are [illegible] steady nerves, an improved complexion, brighter eyes, a more direct and [illegible] graceful movements and self-control are among the benefits.

"But it is better to exercise under intelligent guidance than 'running wild' [illegible]. As the twig is bent the tree [illegible] well [illegible] mind always. The work I [illegible] the ideally natural [illegible] limbs arouses the [illegible] develops [illegible] and gives strength and grace to the body. It also imparts [illegible] of living.

"It is important to realize that [illegible] depends upon the amount of oxygen taken into the lungs. Oxygen vitalizes [illegible] when touched by pure, fresh air. The sympathy between the brain and the lungs is so intimate that a change of thought will change the rhythm of respiration, and a change of respiration will change the thought. For example, rapid upper chest breathing produces mental agitation; slow, deep breathing preserves equanimity of thought. Reversed, mental disturbance will produce rapid breathing.

Music of the Great Masters Is Used as an Accompaniment

"The logical inference of the correspondence between breath and nerves is that by thorough control of respiration we may very largely control mental conditions. An optimistic, happy state of mind stimulates the nerve centres and causes the lungs to demand deep draughts of oxygen.

"For this reason regular breathing should be taken to the suggestive accompaniment of music. It [illegible] hope, courage, [illegible]. Healthy nerves make for healthy minds and morals. My work is always serious, whether in Newport, Boston or elsewhere. Physical culture is exhilarating, but has nothing in common with frivolity."

The music used by Mrs. Barber as an accompaniment for exercises and as an illustration of the instruction she imparts in her lectures is purely classical. She takes her themes from such masters as Mozart, Mendelssohn, Bizet and Chopin.

Mrs. Barber is a persistent advocate of sunlight and fresh air. When possible she has her pupils' exercise in the open. In pleasant whether they use the veranda of the Griswold mansion.

SCHWABS TO BE IN SOCIETY AT NEWPORT NEXT SEASON

AMONG the interesting news of the week has been the story that Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Schwab are planning to spend next season at Newport, occupying a large cottage for entertaining purposes. It is fancied in social circles that the Schwabs are to join the advanced class of society climbers with plenty of money and a great willingness to spend it.

MISS MARGARET G. CHAPIN has closed her Newport campaign to return another season. Great success attended Miss Chapin's first season at Newport as mistress of a bachelor girl establishment. She had the Weaver cottage near Elm Court. She is the daughter of the late Lindley Hoffman Chapin, by his first wife, who was Miss Gilbert. As a young girl she lived with her stepmother, the widowed Mrs. Chapin of Tuxedo Park, who was Miss Van Auken, a stepdaughter of the late Judge George Andrews. Miss Chapin will spend the coming Winter in Paris.

NOVEMBER 3 has been set as the date of the wedding in London of John Ford, First Secretary of the British Legation at Copenhagen, and Miss May Cavendish Bentinck, daughter of Mrs. George Cavendish Bentinck, who was Miss Elizabeth Livingston of New York, twin sister of Mrs. Ogden Mills of Newport, New York and London. John Ford is the son of the late Sir Francis Clare Ford, who died while British Ambassador at Rome.

Maxine Elliott, who arrived at Newport in a private car, was the guest over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald de Koven at the de Bham villa. Monday evening Mrs. de Koven gave a box party at the Newport Opera House to see Miss Elliott in "Her Great Match." Miss Elliott also made short calls upon Mrs. "Reggie" Vanderbilt and Mrs. May Brady Hall. Among the audience at the opera house Monday evening no woman was more admired than Mrs. F. H. Wiswell, who was in pearl gray satin with hand-embroidered lace and ornaments of pearl earrings.

Charles A. Childs, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Childs, gave a dinner for thirty [illegible] Tuesday evening. Among [illegible] were Miss Edith Deacon, Miss [illegible], Miss Edith Colford, Robert [illegible] Jr. and Henry [illegible]. Later [illegible] evening Mr. Childs took his guests to the Newport Opera House.

Colonel John Jacob Astor and his son [illegible] arrived Tuesday evening and were driven to Beechwood, where Mrs. Astor awaited their coming, having already been advised by telegraph from her son before landing in New York from the other side that he would arrive Tuesday evening. Vincent Astor will re-enter St. George's School, which opened Wednesday.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr, who are soon sailing for Europe, have had their silverware insured for $5,000 and stored for safe keeping.

Prince Del Drago of Italy is at the Greer cottage on Catherine street. Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt closed Beaulieu to-day and returned to New York. Colonel and Mrs. Charles L. F. Robinson and Miss Edith Wetmore left Newport for New York Monday, from which place they sailed on Wednesday for Europe, being joined by Arthur T. Kemp. They are to be met on the other side by the steam yacht Norseman for a trip of eight or nine months around the world as far East as Japan.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Karrick Riggs (Pauline Oothout) of Paris and London have gone to New York from summering at Newport. Max Agassiz's schooner yacht Kirin, which went out of commission at Newport this week, will be stripped and taken to Castle Hill Cove for the Winter.

Veritable "Klein Week" Most Notable of Season

THREE PLAYS BY ONE AUTHOR RUNNING IN BOSTON AT SAME TIME IS AN HISTORICAL EVENT.

FOR the first time in Boston's recent theatrical history, or, to be explicit, since the early days of Augustus Thomas, there are to be three great plays at as many different theatres, all the work of the same author, Charles Klein. The biggest event of the season is the opening of "The Music Master," with David Warfield and his original New York company, at the Majestic Theatre. The other Klein plays are "Daughters of Men," at the Colonial, and the "Lion and the Mouse," at the Park. It is a veritable Klein week

From a musical standpoint, the week is notable also. Sam Bernard returns to the Hollis, this time with a sequel to his great success, "The Girl from Kay's," and it is called "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer." Georgie Caine is with him. Then at the Tremont Theatre, Bostonians get their first view of the new De Koven-Ranken-Stange romantic opera, "The Student King." This has a clever story, is of almost grand opera proportions, and is wonderfully costumed. The old favorites return also, "The Old Homestead" to the Boston Theatre, and "What Happened to Jones" being revived by John Craig's company at the Bijou. At the Bowdoin Square Theatre the attraction is "The Peddler," and at the Castle Square it is "The Other Girl."

The Four Mortons, in "Breaking Into Society," return to the Globe, and Lottie Williams in "My Tom Boy Girl" will enliven the Grand Opera House. For the combination houses there are the "Champagne Girls" at the Columbia, "The Lid Lifters" at the Lyceum, and Fred Irwin's Majestics at the Palace. The Old Howard, Keith's and the Orpheum present entirely new vaudeville bills. Park Square roller skating rink opens Monday with new [illegible]

Majestic Theatre

Last night at the Bijou Theatre, New York city, David Warfield closed his remarkable engagement of three seasons. In every respect this run has been the most noteworthy in the annals of American theatricals. Great successes of former days have never played a third successive season in New York or done the nightly business that Warfield's record shows. It is seldom, too, that an artistic triumph, although pleasing and gratifying to intelligent theatregoers, ever scores what is termed in theatrical parlance a "financial knockout."

The play tells an interesting story in a direct way, and in its development presents a character study that makes the American stage better for Warfield's creation. "The Music Master" is a comedy drama in three acts, written by Charles Klein. Warfield's powerful acting has vitalized the play and made the character of Herr von Barwig pulsating with life and tender with human sympathies. Throughout it all the guiding hand of the master of modern stage craft, David Belasco, is seen.

Mr. Belasco announces only a limited engagement of his star at the Majestic Theatre here. The local engagement will begin to-morrow night and continue for four weeks.

Hollis Street Theatre

Sam Bernard will be welcomed back to Boston Monday evening at the Hollis Street Theatre in the first metropolitan production of his new musical farce, "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," which has been especially written for him by Harry B. Smith, the music by Ludwig Englander. Although the play is an entirely new one, with new story and new music, it is, as its title suggests, a sequel to Mr. Bernard's former great success, "The Girl from Kay's." Hoggenheimer, to whom in the old play all things were a "sufficiency," comes to us now a middle-aged man, with a young son who has fallen in love with a penniless American shop girl. Hoggenheimer leaves London for New York determined to break off the mad infatuation of the young man, but fails dismally. Instead, he winds up, after many ludicrous adventures, by adopting the young girl and accepting his son as her suitor. Miss Georgia Caine has the vivacious role of the young actress, and other principals are Percy Ames, Edwin Nicander, Ivar Anderson, A. C. Kraus, Marion Garson, Catherine Hutchinson, Josephine Kirkwood, Edith Whitney and Flossie Hope. The engagement is for three weeks only, as Mr. Bernard is scheduled soon for a long run in New York City. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Tremont Theatre

Henry W. Savage will divide his time this season between what he considers the two finest musical productions he has ever made—Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" and De Koven's "The Student King." "The Student King," which comes to the Tremont Theatre on Monday will, it is promised, be a delightful musical surprise. The composer of the music is Reginald De Koven, and what more need be said. The story and lyrics are by Frederic Ranken and Stanislaus Stange. The story has to do with the adventures of a poor student, Francis, elected according to an ancient custom in the sixteenth century, to be king for a day during a carnival in Prague, the Princess of Tyrol arrives upon the scene with her court to sign a marriage contract with Rudolph, the real King of Bohemia, but, keeping her incognito, she falls in love with the Student King and he with her. Francis, although believing himself to be the son of a poor fish-wife, is in reality the heir to the throne, having been stolen in his cradle by a crafty and scheming councillor. Many amusing complications follow, and the student and the princess are about to depart when suddenly he is arrested. The king, however, discovers the secret of his birth and consents to his marriage with the princess, finally abdicating in her favor. While there is a vein of sentiment and romance in the opera, the keynote is jollity and there are many very laughable scenes. As for the music, Mr. De Koven is of the opinion that it is the best work he has ever done, not even "Robin Hood" excepted.

Lina Arbarnell, to whom has been allotted the role of the princess, comes crowned with laurels from the Metropolitan Opera House. William C. Weedon, the student king, is a tenor of deserved popularity, and Alexander Clarke leads the comedians.

Boston Theatre

"The Old Homestead," that dear New England idyl, comes to the Boston Theatre to-morrow evening for a fortnight's engagement. It has been presented so many times in Boston that it has become as familiar almost as a family hearthstone. It is the acme of realism and presents the truest and most graphic picture of unpretentious country life that was ever drawn. It is interesting to note that the cast of "The Old Homestead" is as strong this season as last, including William Lawrence, Horace Rushby, Charles H. Clark, Fred Clare, William Daly, Frank Knapp, Margaret Bryer, Anita Fowler, Laura Bradford and Vera Knapp. The double male quartet, which as usual is a feature, includes William Daly, J. T. Cokins, Roy Purviance, Charles Ingoldsby, Walter C. White, James Leahy, Gus Kammerlee and Fred Clare. "The Palms" will be sung by Walter C. White, with Miss Anita Fowler for organist. There will be Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

Keith's Theatre

Lovers of vaudeville have been having a series of feasts at Keith's of late. The bill for this week gives every indication of being up to the highest standard. Valerie Bergere's annual engagement is always one of the events of the year. It will be doubly welcome this season, because she is to play the best character she has ever done in the daintiest playlet she has ever had—O'Chika San in "His Japanese Wife." Seldom has an act made such an instantaneous hit with the Keith patrons as "Clasie's Dream," as played by Fred Walton and his clever company.

For several years past the Fays in "Thaumaturgy" have had a great measure of success in fooling the great mass of the American public. Now the skeptics are to have the laugh on the believers, for the Phays in "Flamaturgy" will expose the methods of the Fays in a most effective, and also laughable, manner. Other features of the bill will include Princess Trixie," most intelligent of equines, who was at Wonderland the past Summer; Dave Lewis, Dutch humorist; May Belfort, delineator of song stories; the Gems, English entertainers; Redford and Winchester, jestive jugglers; the Rooney Sisters, Lily Seville, English comedienne; Hughes and Brown, conversational comedians, McGrath and Paige, banjoists, and Daly and Devere, Irish comedy skittists.

Orpheum Theatre

Success for Manager Williams's Orpheum continues to be shown by the large audiences and the rapidly increasing number of subscribers for regular seats each week. The reserved seat plan is one of the strong factors in the popularity of the Orpheum. One of the features of this week's bill will be the last appearances in vaudeville previous to his starring tour of Robert Hilliard. Mr. Hilliard comes with a well selected supporting company to present a little play called "As a Man Sows." Ed Blondell, the farce comedy star, is another notable, and will be seen with his company in the amusing sketch, "The Lost Boy." Kennedy and Rooney will appear in a singing and dancing act, and Mlle. Marquis's ponies from the New York Hippodrome will add another interesting feature. Rice and Prevost, whose "Bumpty Bump" act created so much merriment last week, continue their engagement, making their last appearance this season, and Stuart Barnes, the singing comedian, will be heard in some notable selections. The bill also includes acts by Melville and Stetson, comedians; the four Gregorys, hoop manipulators, the two Pucks and new pictures for the vitagraph.

Colonial Theatre

To-morrow evening "The Daughters of Men," Charles Klein's latest success, will begin the second and last week of its engagement at the Colonial Theatre. The play has met with sincere approval from Boston audiences during the past week and the concensus of opinion expressed is that Charles Klein has another popular success. The play portrays class hatred and the gradually widening gulf between plutocracy and the people. The subject is intensely interesting, and the cast is the strongest seen in Boston in years, individually and collectively. Mr. Klein has chosen for his theme, the ever interesting contest between capital and labor. The portrayal is vivid and realistic, and it is with difficulty that the spectator realizes that he is witnessing a genuine thing. It is truly American and appeals alike to the unprejudiced supporters of both sides of this all-important question.

Park Theatre

"The Lion and the Mouse" at the Park Theatre still continues to win great popularity, and the attendance has been so large that in order to accommodate the crowds desirous of seeing Klein's interesting play they have been compelled to put the orchestra under the stage at every performance. This is the fifth week of the present run, totaling in all nine weeks which Klein's interesting play of politics and finance has held the boards in Boston. Its success has been a well deserved one, for everyone who is interested and keenly alive to the influence wrought upon American politics to-day by the trusts and the army of finance cannot help but be interested in "The Lion and the Mouse." The company comprises Arthur Byron, Gertrude Coghlan, Malcolm Duncan, Grace Thorne, Joseph Kilgour, A. S. Lipman, Mabel Mortimer, W. H. Barton, P. S. Barrett, Eliza Mason and Ada Curry.

Castle Square Theatre

Playgoers who visit the Castle Square during the coming week with the expectation of obtaining three hours of uninterrupted enjoyment will not be disappointed. "The Other Girl," one of the latest and best of Augustus Thomas's comedies, will there have its first Boston production at popular prices, and in its mirth-provoking scenes and ludicrous situations it is called Mr. Thomas's best play. Its action takes place in New York, and its plot centres around the exploits of a well bred pugilist who [illegible] New York [illegible]. The title role will be played by Miss Thais Lawton, with Mr. Hansel as the Rev. Dr. Bond, Mr. Albion as the prize fighter, Mr. Kent as a bright young reporter, and Mr. Waldron, Mr. Wade, Mr. Hull, Miss Bradley, Miss Lasche and Miss Brandt in the other characters.

Bijou Theatre

"What Happened to Jones," by George H. Broadhurst, which John Craig's company is to present this week is another of those excellent farces in which the Bijou Theatre patrons take genuine delight. Mr. Craig had considered another play of a different type for this week and had so announced; but there have been many requests for a continuation of this present style of play. Mr. Craig intends always to give his patrons just what they most want. The piece has more than its share of humorous situations and [illegible] characters. Grand Opera House [illegible] comedienne, Miss Lottie Williams, in the second edition of her [illegible] play, "My Tom Boy Girl," by Charles E. Blaney, will be this week's attraction at the Grand Opera House. The story deals with life among the masses of the big cities, and the trials and temptations of young people who are subjected to the pitfalls of every big community. Virtue is triumphant in the end and vice receives [illegible] a strong moral is to be drawn from the play. There is a novel and sensational effect in the third act which is the acme of scenical realism and mechanical skill. Fifteen complete sets of elaborate scenery are required. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Globe Theatre

Acme of musical comedy excellence and novelty is combined in the newly constructed melodious frivolity, "Breaking Into Society," by Lee Arthur and Robert B. Smith, with music by Gus Edwards, which the Four Mortons, Sam, Clara, Paul and Kittie, bring to the Globe on Monday. "Breaking Into Society" is a satirical potpourri of mirth and melody and affords them ample scope for their versatility and singing and dancing. They are supported by [illegible] curtain until the fall. The usual matinees will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Columbia Music Hall

Of course there is no plot, no sense, no cohesion, no attempt at any story; just a quiet, wonderful performance; fun, noise, wild, strange, fascinating, irresistible. An essential feature is the personality of its girls. They are the women of America, sweet, slender and stately, with small feet, tiny hands and beautiful figures. The show is a decided novelty, an opera in two acts, dealing with China, and entitled "Wu Th[illegible]"

Palace Theatre

"Charlie" Waldron will present this week Fred Irwin's Majestics, with a big chorus. The two extravaganzas, "Down the Line" and "For Girls Only," contain [illegible] situations, songs and [illegible] McGee is assisted by Ray Wallace Anderson, Jeanette Lansford and Ina Sturgiss. In the olio are Harvey and Walker, Gertie, the girl with the diamond tooth; Fay and Lutz, German artists; the Majestic Trio and the Watson sisters, dancers.

Brockton Fair

At the Brockton Fair, Oct. 2, 3, 4 and 5, the biggest of its kind in the East, there will be a great stage show, a horse show, the lady with the somersaulting automobile, Roy Knabenshue with his airship, and a great muster of the firemen of New England on the last day. The people who attend the fair in automobiles will have every attention and an enlarged park space has been provided for them, also a [illegible]. On Monday Boston roller skaters will be given a chance to resume that popular recreation when the Park Square Roller Skating Rink will open. Extensive improvements have been going on, and [illegible] habitues will find a revelation in the shape of [illegible] into a mirrorlike surface. This floor contains 72,000 square feet of the most perfect skating surface of any amusement auditorium in the world to-day. The 3,000 pairs of roller skates have been given new rollers and otherwise overhauled in general. A military band will render concerts every afternoon and evening. Three sessions are scheduled daily, the first from 10.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m., for beginners. The other sessions are from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 7.30 p. m. to 10.30 p. m.

It will be the policy of the management to provide competent instructors for ladies and children visiting the rink unattended.

TO OWN A BOSTON HOME GIVES ONE THE WORLD-WIDE STAMP OF RESPECTABILITY SAYS MARY YOUNG

Mary Young's Climb Up the Ladder to Genuine Fame

By Eleanor Ames.

"OWNING [illegible] in Boston [illegible] table [illegible] lobster [illegible] tartar sauce.

"Think [illegible] able to say cal[mly] [illegible] I am a Bostonian. I own a [illegible] thing be more eminently respectable? Why, such a statement would mean a passport to unusual consideration almost anywhere in the world.

"I think," she said, adding another lump of sugar to her coffee, "that it was the possession of a Boston home that has given me courage to play an Ibsen role. You know we have decided to put on 'The Doll's House,' and I am to play Norah. That knowledge has been a mental tonic, and made me forget that I've had no vacation in three years.

"I'm having such a good time studying Ibsen. He demands so much study. There is so much more to do than merely to master the lines. You've got to feel the spirit behind the words."

"Did you see Ethel Barrymore's Norah?" I asked, remembering a certain day when Miss Barrymore had told me her hopes and fears regarding her forthcoming production of Norah.

Just In Love With Norah.

"No, I have never seen any one play her, and that's why I am all the more interested. You see I'm forming my own idea of Norah first hand with no outside influence."

She mixed the salad dressing thoughtfully.

"Do you know," she said, "I love Norah because I am in sympathy with her. She married young, just as I did, and she had two children, just as I have, and she was so intensely natural and human. Only I am sorry she didn't have the happy life I have, and I can't forgive her for going away and leaving her children. Still, perhaps if her life had been as happy as mine, there wouldn't have been any 'Doll's House' written. Playwrights seldom see any great dramatic possibilities in perfect happiness."

"Then you are perfectly happy?" I asked, emboldened by her mood to lift the lid of her heart a bit.

"As happy as any woman should ever hope to be," she replied, enthusiastically. "I have the most splendid husband in the world, and my two beautiful boys, and an absolutely devoted mother and and my Boston home," she finished, laughing, her merry brown eyes twinkling and her cheeks dimpling.

There are two very beautiful adjectives that apply to Mary Young more honestly than to any other woman I ever met. They are 'lovable' and 'winsome.' There are any number of other descriptive words you can apply to this charming little woman, but, above them all, these two should be given supremacy.

Shines in Varied Roles.

A couple of years ago I was talking with a New York theatrical critic about player folk.

"Right in Boston," he said, "you have one of the most capable actresses in America, and one of the most versatile, Mary Young."

He was right.

As a matter of fact, while you all love Mary Young, you don't really know her tremendous capability, and her wide range of versatility. Comedy, emotional roles, tragedy, comic opera—they are all alike to her. She can play an ingenue to-night, leading woman in a roaring farce to-morrow, tragedy queen the day after, and end with singing and dancing her way through a musical comedy.

And, mind you, she will be clever and delightful in each and every place. The average theatrical Jill of many trades is mediocre. Mediocrity is miles away from Mary Young. It has no meaning in connection with any of her work.

Like many other capable actress, Mary Young's heart cherishes a wealth of gratitude for the late Augustin Daly.

"Mr. Daly made me," she says, simply. "There is not a day of my life that I do not bless the memory of that wonderful man."

Protege of Mr. Daly.

Mary Young was only a child of eleven years when Mr. Daly discovered her and made her his special protege.

"She is a clever little creature," he decided. "She has a great future."

He found a place for her in his own company, and such players as Ada Rehan and Mrs. Gilbert and James Lewis took her up and made much of her.

In the serious-minded, level-headed, spritelike child, with the mass of waving brown hair, the exquisite features and expressive dark eyes, they saw great promise. And they helped her generously and lovingly.

Mr. Daly gave her a part in "The Foresters," and she played it successfully for six months. He let her play Puck in "Midsummer's Night Dream." He secured her free tuition in both singing and piano playing at the New York Conservatory of Music.

In London the little girl was given thorough instruction in all branches of Delsarte and dancing and pantomime.

"It was Mr. Daly's theory that every one should learn to dance," said Miss Young, as she "reminisced" of her happy first days in stageland, "and he was such a wise man. Why, not a performance of any kind but you need the knowledge you have of dancing. It teaches ease, grace, poise, expression."

For eight years, besides the regular role assigned her, Mary Young had the understudy to almost every prominent part played in Daly's theatre.

"I seldom had a chance to play them," she confesses, "but at the same time think of the training."

Wedding Crowns Romance.

With the beginning of her career at Daly's, a romance budded in Mary Young's life which blossomed four years later into her marriage with John Craig, then a member of the same company, which has proved the most ideal of matches.

"It doesn't do any harm to talk about our marriage, does it?" she asked. "Don't you think the public is getting over that idea about losing interest in actors and actresses as soon as they marry? Anyway, it seems as if everybody must know by this time that I am Mrs. Craig. Just think, I was only a little bit of a girl when I married, less than sixteen. Would I let a daughter marry so young? Well, you see, I have no daughter, but if I had and she could get as good a husband as I did, why, I'd want her to marry him just as soon as she could."

On St. Patrick's Day.

St. Patrick's Day is the red letter day of Mary Young's calendar. It was on March 17—never mind the year—during a rehearsal of "The Foresters," that she first saw John Craig.

It was four years later, also on the 17th of March, that she was married to him. Their devotion has been rarely beautiful. Seldom have they been separated, and often when they could not get engagements in the same company, Miss Young's versatility has permitted her, by changing from one line to another, to sing comic opera roles in another theatre in the same town where her husband was playing.

Mrs. Craig's two sons, bright, sturdy little chaps, are almost idols in her sight. It is a treat to see her trim little figure marching along between the two boys, who gaze on her with a proud love.

"All the other boys think you're our sister," they say to her sometimes, "and we let 'em think so, 'cause they'd never believe you were our mother if we told 'em so. Why, the other day when we called you 'mother' they laughed and even when we crossed our hearts, it was true, they thought we were joking."

The Boston home which makes Mary Young feel so "eminently respectable" is not, strictly speaking, in the confines of Boston, but it's near enough to get the proper and satisfying atmosphere. It is a big, delightful, roomy house between Swampscott and Marblehead that is nearest the Beach Bluff station.

"Craigholm" is as well adapted to Winter use as to Summer, but the journey back and forth to town is of sufficient length to deem it advisable to close it when Winter winds begin to howl, and come nearer to town. At present Mr. and Mrs. Craig whizz back and forth between "Craigholm" and the Bijou Theatre in their motor car.

Draws Line at Motor Wheel.

"You have called me versatile," Mrs. Craig declared, "but let me say to you that my versatility ends at the steering wheel of a motor car. I never have, and I never shall run my own car. All I can do is to hold my breath while the chauffeur runs it. And I look upon any person who successfully runs one as possessed of some superhuman power."

Mr. and Mrs. John Craig showed themselves to have unusual pluck this season when they took their company to the Bijou Theatre and asked their friends to climb the stairs to see them. But the firm hold they have on the public—which is something deeper than mere popularity—justified the venture. For the first week after they left the Globe, where they had played during the Summer, and went to the Bijou, people seemed a bit bewildered, but they soon located them, and the cosey little theatre soon smiled with friendly faces and rang with welcoming applause.

Mary Young is the ideal leading woman for a stock company. She splendidly fulfills the requirements she declares a woman in that position must have.

"There is such a close relation between the members of a stock company and the people," she explains, "that so much is demanded of the players. It is not an indifferent set of actors playing to people they don't know and may never see again. "The players are looked upon as personal friends, and the people demand, and rightly, that they should be the right kind of friends.

"Day after day, people come to see us, and bring others to see us. They grow to like us, and their interest extends beyond our ability as players into our private lives.

In Domestic Company.

"We must be the right kind of folks, you see, good, honest, straightforward folks, sincere and earnest. You have no idea how carefully managed a stock company has to be. You can't play everything. You have to choose the best of plays, for in your audience are families, young girls, young boys, children, and you want the influence the best."

"Then the problem play is impossible?"

"Unless wisely chosen, yes. There are problem plays and problem plays." The present company at the Bijou is remarkably and happily domestic. Nearly every one is married—Mr. and Mrs. MacLarnie, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey; that dear woman, Kate Ryan, and handsome Mrs. Wade, whose husband is at the Castle Square. Dainty, pretty Miss Riker is about the only single member.

Mary Young works ceaselessly. At 8 in the morning she has breakfast; at 8:30 she steps in the auto and spins away to the theatre; she rehearses all the morning; at 12:30 she goes to a certain corner table, which is reserved for her, in a nearby restaurant, at 2 o'clock she plays a matinee; from 5 to 7 she rests and studies, and at 8 begins the evening performance.

For three years, in Providence, San Francisco, back to Providence, then to the Castle Square, the Globe, the Bijou, this has been her daily program.

Some way Mary Young finds a little time for social life. Had she the leisure, her social duties would be arduous, for her birth would give her position. Coming of one of the finest old Knickerbocker families of New York, she is related to many people of prominence, Mrs. Choate, wife of the former Ambassador to England, being a kinswoman. She takes much interest in patriotic matters and has recently become a member of Mrs. Charles Bond's Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Bowdoin Square Theatre

"The Peddler," a cleverly written comedy drama with much sensationalism will be offered at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. It has never before been seen here at popular prices. The story tells of the adventures of Abe Jacobson, a kindly dis[illegible] old peddler whose wayward son is led to commit crime by a "Bowery Th[illegible]." After many adventures the young man is reformed and makes a good husband for a worthy girl [illegible]. The [illegible] are brought to justice and there is [illegible]. The scenes are pictures[illegible] settings of New York places, including Herald square at night, Union square, Pell street with its Chinese inhabitants, and a typical New York pawn shop. Harry Brooks will have the leading role of Abe Jacobson and Raymond Bond the character of Sammy Jacobson.

Sunday Concerts

British born Bostonians are taking a special interest in the concert at the Colonial Theatre this evening by the Black Dike Band, which is now making its first tour on this side of the Atlantic. The benefit is to be given to the British Charitable Society. The band has a peculiar record on the other side of the Atlantic, where it has won a phenomenal amount of prizes in competitions. Its prizes are worth more than $40,000 in American money.

A great laughing show has been arranged for the Globe concert to-night. The four Rianos, novelty acrobats, in "Jungle Life in Africa," May Duryea and Charles Deland, in "The Imposter," Wealch, Mealy and Montrose, acrobatic baseball players; Alf Grant and Ethel Hoag, in "A Little Bit of Everything," Orth and Fern, in a musical trifle, "Sign the Book," Sibloom and Grovini, cyclists; the Althea Twins, Bogart and Doma, Martin Thorpe and Raynor, the Globoscope and others will make up the bill.

The usual concert will be given this evening at the Bowdoin Square Theatre. The bill is headed by Emmet Devoy and Company and the famous Dalrala. Murphy and Willard and other strong cards will also be in the bill.

For this evening at the Majestic there is offered the Four Nightons, Nat Haines, the burnt cork artist, May Duye and Charles Mortimer, Alf Grant and Ethel Hoag Welsh, Mealy and Montrose, Professor Dubois and his Human Monkey Adam, Selbina and Grovina, the Althea Twin Sisters and the Majestiscope. Seats for the Sunday night concerts at the Majestic can be secured any day during the week.

A strong list of attractions is included in the concert programme at the Orpheum this evening, when the principal stars of the last week will be seen for the last time.

Outdoor Pleasures

Next week the great Brockton Fair will claim the attention of amusement lovers. This year the Old Colony Railway Company, which operates two routes to Brockton, one by way of Mattapan, the Blue Hill Reservation and Randolph, the other by way of Neponset, Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook, has made especial plans to relieve the steam train congestion. Round trip tickets will be sold at the office of the passenger department, 300 Washington street, for $1, which will also include the admission to the grounds.

One of the most interesting exhibitions ever held in the Maritime Provinces is now taking place at Halifax. To enable persons from New England to visit it the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company is issuing Autumn excursion tickets, good for thirty days, and also to stop over anywhere between Yarmouth and Halifax at the low round-trip rate of $9. The excursion rates also apply to all other points. Now is the most delightful season of the year to visit the charming Annapolis Valley.

The wind-up of the season on round trips to picturesque Gloucester and rugged Cape Ann will start promptly at 10:15 a. m. this forenoon from the north side of Central wharf—weather permitting.

There is no sport comparable to the deep-sea fishing afforded passengers by the steamer King Philip, which, under the command of Captain Edward Dixon, finds its way daily and Sunday, starting at 10 sharp, to the fishing grounds. Lines, bait and chowder are being furnished free to purchasers of round trip tickets.

Aster and golden-rod colors are reigning tints out in the enchanted region of the "Great Blue Hill" of Milton; and no ride trolley wise hereabouts can be compared with that afforded by the "reservation route" cars of the Blue Hill Street Railway Company from either the Dudley street terminal or Mattapan square.

Coming Music Events

The first of the series of auction sales of seats for the coming series of public rehearsals and concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra will be held to-morrow in Symphony Hall, beginning at 10 o'clock. The sale to-morrow will be confined to the $18 seats for the public rehearsals. On Tuesday, beginning at the same hour, the $10 seats for the rehearsals will be sold. The $18 seats for the concerts will be sold on Thursday and the $10 seats on Friday. Intending bidders should remember that the sales this year are likely to progress much more rapidly than they have in the past. Dr. Muck is on the ocean and will arrive in New York some time next Tuesday. He will come directly to Boston. Practically all the members of the orchestra are back in town and have reported for duty. The prospects for the season are very bright, not merely in Boston, but everywhere the orchestra gives concerts.

Leoncavallo, the famous composer, is to visit America this season for a tour of eight weeks in the United States and Canada. His Boston appearances will be at Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, October 21, and Sunday evening following. Mr. Leoncavallo is probably best known in this country as the composer of the opera, "Pagliacci," but in Europe his other operas are highly appreciated. The orchestra for these concerts will come with Mr. Leoncavallo and is the one which he directs at the La Scala Opera House in Milan. The programme here will include selections from the various operas, and will be given in concert form with orchestra and soloists.

Stage Notes

A Teutonic friend of David Warfield met the actor recently in the lobby of the Belasco Theatre. Warfield's German acquaintance was accompanied by a fellow-countryman, recently arrived. Introducing the new arrival to the actor, the man from Liepsic was very effusive and Teutonic in speaking praises of Warfield and his fame. Said he: "Mr. Warfield iss now adt the pinochle off fame off American acting."

Phillip Leventhal, a Boston boy and an old time hustler of New York Journals, has gone on the stage as "The New York Newsboy and Bootblack Tenor," comedy singer and change artist. He has "made good" in every engagement and deserves success.

A week from Tuesday Manager Farren will have a monster cakewalk on the Columbia stage after the regular evening's show.

Ben Hur, the giant python at Austin & Stone's Museum, is now an object of unusual interest. This is the feeding season among big snakes, and Ben is daily enjoying a feast which is rapidly adding to his avoirdupois. He is now of enormous size and at the end of the week will be weighed. His skin is daily becoming more beautiful.

Three of the jolliest old jokers in town this week will be found at the Boston Theatre. They are Cy Prime, "nigh on to eighty"; Seth Perkins, the other of "the two boys," and dear, old Uncle Josh himself, all at "The Old Homestead."

George Smithfield of Boston is now playing character parts with the Avery Strong Company, under the management of W. C. McKay. Mr. Smithfield hails from the North End.

A. H. Woods's new sporting comedy drama, "Ruled Off the Turf," with George Mack, a local favorite, in the star part, that of Jack King, a jockey, is next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House. Mr. Mack will be assisted by a group of graceful "show girls" in his musical numbers.

Gertrude Coghlan is not recognized by many of the passengers on the Winthrop boat when she takes it at night to return to her home after the performance of "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Park Theatre. She is intensely fond of life at the seashore, and she has found great enjoyment in the September days at Winthrop, coming to Boston only when it is necessary to begin her preparation for the evening's performance.

The new protean sketch of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane will be a feature at Keith's next week.

Charles Klein was one of the most watched persons in the Colonial Theatre last Monday evening after it got spread abroad that the author of "The Daughters of Men" was in one of the boxes.

There are almost a score of song hits in "Breaking Into Society," the clever comedy in which "The Four Mortons" will again be seen this season.

Yvette Guilbert will not confine herself to chansons of past generations when she come here with Albert Chevalier, but she will give some of the latest Parisian repertoire. Albert Chevalier is the singer who introduced the London coster to American audiences, and Bostonians will recall the time when he appeared originally at the Hollis Street Theatre with the songs which he made famous.

* * *

In the original cast of the Broadhurst farce, "What Happened to Jones," to be given this week at the Bijou Theatre by John Craig's company, two of the leading characters were played by George C. Boniface and Ellen Berg, who afterwards became the wife of Robert Edeson, and who died about a year ago.

Society Shines in Brilliancy of Autumn Days

SOCIETY FLOCKS HOME FROM ABROAD

Returning Steamers Bring Back Bostonians from Foreign Ports.

SOCIETY begins to face homeward and the incoming vessels from foreign ports are laden with those who have summered abroad. Among those returning on the Ivernia, which landed Wednesday evening, were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibson of Beacon street and their two interesting and pretty daughters, Rosamond and Ethel, who have spent the entire Summer in travel abroad. They were met at the pier by the son of the house, Charles Gibson, who has made fame for himself in his latest book, "Among French Inns," and has figured conspicuously in the smart affairs of the past Newport season.

The Gibsons have opened their town house for the Winter. Sallie Lawrence, who went abroad with her parents, Bishop and Mrs. William Lawrence, in the early Spring, but was having such a royal good time that she couldn't think of returning as soon as they, was also a passenger on the Ivernia. The Misses Alice and Marion Haskell, Miss Martha Peabody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Peabody, Jr., who went over with her father to attend the boat race; Robert Amory, Jr., who returned to resume his studies at Harvard; Mrs. A. D. Chapin and R. W. Chapin, Mrs. W. C. Endicott, mother-in-law of Joseph Chamberlain; Richard S. Mason, Master Carl T. Mason, Miss Mason, Miss Mary T. Mason, George Mixter, Miss E. H. Nichols and Miss Emily Hornblower.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mason Sears (Caroline Bartlett), who passed the latter part of the Summer at Bar Harbor, are at their Pride's Crossing estate for a few weeks prior to opening their Commonwealth avenue residence. Mrs. Neal Rantoul (nee Saltonstall) of Fairfield street and Beverly Farms with Mrs. W. G. Rantoul of Salem and Mrs. R. H. Stevenson were at the Mount Washington, Bretton Woods, the past week. Mrs. George P. Gardner and her daughter, Miss Katherine Gardner, were also at the Mount Washington during the week.

Miss Gardner was among the most prominent of the debutantes of two seasons ago and among her other accomplishments runs her motor car herself with all the skill and ease of a professional. The Gardners are touring the White Mountains, and if the weather proves favorable will extend their trip several weeks. Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears and daughter Helen are of the Gardner party. Soon after their return the Sears will sail for Europe and will spend the coming Winter in Italy.

Among the many Boston motorists abroad who have recently been heard from are the Robert Dawson Evanses of Gloucester street, who, with Mrs. Evans's mother and sisters, Mrs. David Hunt and Misses Abby and Belle Hunt, sailed for Europe last April, were recent arrivals at Hotel Splendid, Aix-les-Bains from Switzerland. They have spent the entire Summer in touring Europe, covering nearly the entire continent, and expect to return to America late in October.

Mrs. James Lowell Putnam, who before her marriage was Eleanor Robeson of New York, with Mr. Putnam, was among the recent arrivals at Tuxedo Park, where they make their headquarters at the Tuxedo Club.

Mrs. Putnam has scores of friends at this exclusive resort, and is kept busy attending the hospitalities given in her honor. Mr. and Mrs. Austin Gray are at the Newbold cottage, Tuxedo, for the remainder of the Autumn. Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston and Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer Robb are also of the fashionable Tuxedo colony.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Cushing (Ethel Cochrane), who returned in the early Spring from an extended stay abroad, and who have been the guests of the Robert Cushings at their Newport villa throughout the Summer, are to spend the coming Winter in New York. Mr. Robert Cushing will close his Newport home the coming week, and will sail for Europe the latter part of October. Mrs. Blair Fairchild, Mr. Cushing's niece, is closing her villa at the same time and will go to Washington for the Cobb-Postlethwaite wedding, after which they will stay in New York for a short time before sailing for Europe, where they will remain until next Fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Bliss of Commonwealth avenue, who sailed recently for Europe, will spend the Winter in Italy and France.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Ro[illegible] have closed their cottage at Jamestown and have opened their Commonwealth avenue home.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham, who have added so much to the gayety of the Lenox season by their [illegible] entertainments, are entertaining a house party at their [illegible] fashion [illegible].

Mrs. Forbes Conant, who has been at her Nahant cottage the past season, is at her town house for a few days prior to going with her sister, Miss Helen MacNichol, and a party of friends to camp in the main woods until the last week in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis C. Bishop (Gertrude Pell), who have been at Saratoga the past month, are now at their country place at Mt. Kisco, N. Y. Mrs. Bishop's sister, Mrs. Eben Wright, and Mr. Wright are still at their Nahant cottage. Their daughters are with Mrs. Pell at her country place Lsopus on the Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sturgis Codman came up from their Summer home at Beverly Farms Tuesday to their Gloucester street residence, where they will remain until after placing their young son at Groton, when they will join the Lenox colony for the remainder of the Autumn season. Professor Reginald Heber Howe, Jr., who has been travelling abroad with his father, the Rev. Reginald Heber Howe, and Mrs. Howe, has returned to his home in Concord.

Much to the delight of her host of friends Miss Mary G. Clifford has returned to her home on Harrishoff street, Roxbury, looking refreshed and radiant after a Summer abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. J. DeForest Danielson have concluded their Newport season and are at their estate in Medfield, where they will spend the Autumn, not returning to the Commonwealth avenue residence until after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Edward Smith of Beacon street, who has been travelling abroad during the Summer, will return early in November.

Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Allen, who have been making an auto tour through France and Switzerland, are expected home the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brimmer Inches have closed their Nahant villa and are at their country place at North Grafton.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Minot of Bay State road returned to their country estate at Dover last week from a tour of New Brunswick.

Poultney Bigelow Investigates Panama Canal Again

[illegible] whole maritime world [illegible] the digging of the [illegible] by the United States Government.

[illegible] civilized world is [illegible] a loud [illegible] the incompetence of the [illegible] who are handling the [illegible] contract.

Poultney Bigelow, who has spent many years in the study of [illegible] and labor problems [illegible] in 1905 went [illegible] the digging [illegible] Panama Canal to investigate [illegible] of his investigations were published in a [illegible] January of this year, [illegible] inefficiency of the [illegible] the work.

His attack [illegible] the attention of the Federal government, which, through the [illegible] issued a statement which [illegible] Mr. Bigelow's [illegible] he had [illegible] but a superficial examination of the ground.

The Cosmopolitan, therefore, sent Mr. Bigelow back to the scene of the Panama Canal, and in the September and October issues is an attack which is a scathing denunciation of the horrors accompanying the work of the digging of the canal.

In 1880 De Lesseps, the great French engineer, started to dig across the Isthmus of Panama. Ten years later the organization went into bankruptcy and the French Government sentenced to varying terms of penal servitude many a noted financier and politician for political jobbery, bribery and other heinous crimes in the eyes of good government.

It is to be inferred that, since inefficiency and political jobbery are accompanying this country's attempt to dig the canal, the same results will follow—imprisonment, penal servitude, for those who are guilty.

You, every man and woman in this country, who are taxpayers ought to take an active, vital interest in this canal. It means commercial supremacy to this country, a commercial supremacy which no other nation, even in the remotest degree, can approach. It means joining the two great oceans, the Atlantic and Pacific—and it means, when it is successfully completed, what you are seeking for—commercial prosperity.

But do you want to fail as De Lesseps failed—do you want this nation the laughing stock of the world? Or

Do you want to have it said that the work was finished honestly, quickly and efficiently, and with as little of the attendant horrors of death and disease among those working in a swampy, tropical country as possible? Little or no effort is made yet toward draining the land, whereon the workmen are COMPELLED by the government to live, of the reeking, filthy swamps that exude the most terrible of diseases—tropical fevers.

If you are a MAN, and a real citizen, you will read Poultney Bigelow's article, "PANAMA—THE HUMAN SIDE," in the October Cosmopolitan, and then act as befits a citizen.

What Life Means To Me

By Upton Sinclair

The author of "The Jungle," which startled the world with its exposure of the Beef Trust crime, tells Cosmopolitan readers what life means to him. He feels that he has a mission in life which "The Jungle" has only in part fulfilled. In the October Cosmopolitan he tells what his work shall be, and how he has accomplished the part already done.

FORTUNES FOR ALL WHO INVEST NOW

Dispatcher Can Catch Fastest Trains Between Stations and Prevent Collisions.

FACTS ABOUT THE ELECTRIC SIGNAGRAPH & SEMAPHORE.

Gives the train dispatcher constant and complete control [illegible] every train on his division.

Enables him to stop any train at any desired point.

Makes head-on and [illegible] end collisions impossible.

Saves thousands [illegible] and millions of dollars now [illegible] annually in wrecks.

Reduces operating expenses to railroads millions of dollars annually now paid in salaries to [illegible] operators, tower men and for maintenance of inadequate block and [illegible] system.

Gives absolute privacy to party telephones, no matter how many instruments are on one wire.

Railroad Adopts System.

ONCE in a great while—probably not oftener than once in a lifetime—there appears an opportunity to make a great deal of money in a very short time.

In the history of finance nothing has been so productive of real enrichment, safe and conservative—where the money is doubled, tripled, quadrupled, while the principal lies secure and intact—as is offered in the stock of great electrical monopolies.

Such an opportunity is here now and far-sighted investors see another such financial whirlwind as was the Bell Telephone and Edison Electric.

All electrical devices have proven immensely profitable. Patents issued by the United States Government constitute a legal and absolute monopoly. Stock in the Bell Telephone Co., which sold at 50c a share, has since brought $4,000, and every $100 invested at the company's organization has since brought $200,000 in dividends. The Edison Electric Stock started at $100 a share and went to $1,000 in one year. There never was a serious failure of any electrical company.

The Electric Signagraph and Semaphore occupies a field as distinct as the telephone and electric light. The railroad and telephone companies are already placing orders for the instruments. The United States Government is taking steps to compel all railroads to use safety devices to prevent wrecks. Congress has appropriated $75,000 for this work.

The Electric Signagraph and Semaphore has no competition. Its patents are so broad and sweeping that no other similar device can be put on the market for 17 years. It has an absolute monopoly. The Government's action really means that the railroads must install the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore. The U. S. Government compelled the railroads to install air brakes—that made millions of dollars for the stockholders in the Westinghouse Co. The Government compelled the railroads to equip all cars—freight and passenger—with automatic coupling devices—and the stockholders in the Janney Automatic Coupler grew rich. There was only one efficient air brake—only one acceptable coupler—there is only one practical system to prevent collisions—the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore. The 300,000 miles of railroad in the United States must be equipped with safety devices. The Electric Signagraph and Semaphore is to be leased at a price which will net the Company $5 per signal post per month. One post will be required at least every two miles. When the 300,000 miles of railroad is so equipped it will mean an annual output to the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore Company of $9,000,000.00.

The Electric Signagraph is also the only instrument that will give privacy to party telephones, and for that reason offers have been made by both of the great telephone companies to lease the Signagraph at a rental of 25c per month for each instrument. One instrument is required for each telephone on a party line. The majority of all telephones in America are upon the party system. The Independent Telephone Co. and the Bell Co. have about 13,000,000 telephones. If all were equipped with the Electric Signagraph, and all subscribers to party telephones will willingly pay 25c a month to get private service, the annual profit to the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore Company would be [illegible], which—including the profits to be derived from the railroad companies—would total [illegible] a year.

Arrangements are now being made to begin manufacture. Orders have already been placed. It is confidently believed that 10,000 instruments for the railroads—one-twentieth of what is actually required—and 300,000 for the telephones—one-fortieth of the total number of telephones—will be in operation within a very few months. This will mean an annual dividend on the total capitalization of 75 per cent. When such earnings are made, $75.00 can be paid annually for every $35.00 invested at this time.

There is no question about the demand for the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore. Orders have already been received. This may be the last chance to buy this stock at the 35-cent price.

Subscriptions may be made with the understanding that the money paid on them will be returned if your investigation does not convince you that this company and its possibilities are all that are claimed for it. Requests to cancel subscriptions and return remittances must, however, be made within 10 days of date of subscribing.

Parties residing outside of Chicago who contemplate purchasing sufficiently large blocks of stock may, upon communicating with the undersigned broker, arrange to have all their expenses paid to Chicago and return in order to make complete investigation.

THE UNION PACIFIC R. R. CO.

[illegible] of THE ELECTRIC SIGNAGRAPH AND SEMAPHORE CO. [illegible]

Henry I. Flavin.

THE [illegible] From [illegible] the Signagraph and Semaphore may be better [illegible] in the United States. [illegible] the railway companies [illegible] to the extent of $9,711,000, without considering claims for injuries and deaths. [illegible] the Signagraph must come into virtually universal use because practical railway men and mechanics regard it as the wonder of the age, and railway managers must adopt it for reasons of economy alone, if not from a humane desire to prevent loss of life.

Saves $3,000 a Month on Each Division.

One prominent official of the great Pennsylvania Lines said the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore could be operated at less expense than it now costs him for night telegraph operators. The General Superintendent of one of the largest railway systems, having their general offices in Chicago, said the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore would [illegible] the most perfect block system [illegible] the world and would save $3,000 a month for each division. This is [illegible] the expenses [illegible] what it will save in [illegible] wrecks [illegible] the system.

Large Railroad Orders System.

The [illegible] Northwestern & Pacific R. R. Co. has already ordered [illegible] to be installed on its entire system [illegible].

A [illegible] suburban electric road operating near Chicago will also install the Signagraph and Semaphore as a train signal system. The instruments are of great importance in the rapid control of electric cars, and many roads will undoubtedly soon adopt them. With their use it will be unnecessary for cars to stop for orders, as they are now required to do.

Would Have Saved 35 Lives.

The terrible wreck on the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad at Adobe, Colorado, last March, would have been prevented had the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore been in operation on that division. The telegraph operator at Adobe was asleep and failed to answer the call of the train dispatcher. Orders to the train to take the siding at Adobe and await a train from the opposite direction could not be delivered. Both trains were demolished and thirty-five lives were lost.

There are an average of 500 railroad collisions every month in the United States all of which can be prevented by the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore.

Works Like the Telegraph.

A system of semaphores is distributed at intervals of one and a half miles along the track. Each one is connected with the train dispatcher's office in such a way that that official can operate any of them at will, which is done without the necessity of using any extra wires, the telegraph wire being utilized without in any way affecting the telegraph circuit.

If the dispatcher wishes to stop a train at any point along the road, all he needs to do is to turn the indicator on the dial in his office to the point which connects with the semaphore where the train is to be stopped, touch the button, and the semaphore is raised to the danger position. At the same time a red light is shown on the dispatcher's board showing him that the signal is in place. The phones connect each semaphore post with the dispatcher's office so that the conductor of a stopped train can at once receive new orders. Moreover, the agents at stations along the line have control of the semaphores on either side of them, so that if they see a train running by under wrong orders they can stop it at the next semaphore. The train dispatcher's attention is called to a semaphore raised by an agent along the line by the ringing of a bell in the dispatcher's office.

The mechanism of the new device is extremely simple, being operated in the same manner as a telegraph instrument, by electricity obtained from half a dozen dry cells at each semaphore post. No other system places the train dispatcher in constant communication with all trains on his division. The Electric Signagraph and Semaphore is thoroughly protected by seven broad, sweeping patents.

Other Uses of the Signagraph.

It is often necessary to send private telegrams to certain offices without other operators knowing what passes over the wire. Unless separate wires are provided for each office no instrument in the world except the Electric Signagraph will accomplish this. Stockbrokers, board of trade operators, and other concerns requiring absolute secrecy in their operations can use the Signagraph at a tremendous saving in installation and [illegible].

Gives Privacy to Party Telephones.

On party telephone lines as many as 30 and 40 telephones are often connected with one wire and so, when the bell of one rings all ring, and when one person talks the other patrons of the line, if they are so minded, can overhear the conversation. The Signagraph permits the cutting out of all other telephones than the one that it is desired to retain in the circuit.

Backed by Railroad Men.

The experts of many of the great railway systems of America have thoroughly inspected the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore. These men represent the signalling and operating departments of such companies as the Pennsylvania Lines, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Illinois Central, the Union Pacific, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, and a great many other equally well known lines. Some of these experts have placed their own money in the stock of the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore Company.

The experts are convinced of the wonderful money saving opportunities offered in the [illegible] of the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore Company. They see the demand for the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore. They know how important such a system is to all railroads, and without any other [illegible] than is offered any other investor, they put their money into the company. Their intimate knowledge of railroading and the wonderful capabilities of the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore convinced them of the great possibilities of this business. These men know how badly needed such a system is by all railroads, and their examination of the instruments proved that at last a system has been invented which would satisfactorily meet every requirement.

Company's Organization.

The Electric Signagraph and Semaphore Co. is organized under the laws of Arizona. The par value of its shares is $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable. There is no preferred stock. Any share is equal in voting and earning value to any other share. It is the opinion of the officers that the money realized from the sale of the treasury stock now offered will be amply sufficient to establish the business upon a profitable basis.

In addition to those named below the stockholders will select four directors. The officers already chosen are Mr. Jean F. Webb, President; Mr. Jean F. Webb, Jr., Secretary and Treasurer, and Mr. Michael Finnerty. These gentlemen constitute the Board of Directors. All reside in Denver, Colo. The Messrs. Webb are the inventors of the Electric Signagraph and Semaphore, in addition to being the inventors of a number of other valuable devices.

They recently sold the Pneumatic Cyanide Process to the Colorado Iron Works Company, the largest manufacturers of ore machinery in the world, for $265,000.

Mr. Finnerty is president of the Dillon Gold Mining Co., of Cripple Creek, Colo., one of the richest mines in the United States.

The fact that the company is to be officered by such men of high integrity and recognized ability as these, in addition to the four directors whom the stockholders themselves will select, assures proper and successful management.

There is no bond or mortgage debt. No lien upon any of the earnings or stock. The earnings will be divided equally for each share. Every protection is offered the small stockholder. His interests will be as carefully protected as those of the large stockholders. There are no sub-cellars in this company's organization. The most thorough examination will convince all investors of the safety of their interests.

Nothing has been said in this article to mislead. The statements are made in as conservative a manner as possible. Everyone must realize the tremendous possibilities of railroading, and that while less than 100 years old it has probably made the most gigantic strides of any industry. But the money in railroading has been made in manufacturing equipment and not in operating the roads. Just see what small dividends are paid by the leading railroads as compared with that of Westinghouse Air Brake, American Locomotive Works, Union Signal Co., etc., etc. No railroad company manufactures its equipment—engines, cars, switches and other appliances are bought of the manufacturers.

The Pullman Co., which pays dividends in excess of leading railroads, rents the cars to the railroad companies.

Another Big Advance Soon.

There is only a limited amount of stock offered at the present price of 35 cents a share. An advance of at least 40 per cent will take place shortly. Installment subscriptions will be accepted upon the following special conditions: One-fourth of the entire subscription to accompany the application and the balance to be paid in three monthly payments. If for any reason, the payments are not completed, stock will be issued for the amount paid at the price in effect at the time the subscription is made, irrespective of any advance which may subsequently be made. No subscription for less than 100 shares will be accepted.

A discount of 5 per cent is allowed on all subscriptions when accompanied by remittance for full amount.

All remittances for stock and requests for further particulars, including cards of admission to the working demonstration of the Signagraph and Semaphore, should be made to J. Renwick Preston, National Mortgage & Bond Co., 524 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Remittances should be made either by draft (New York or Chicago exchange), registered letter, express or postal money order. Personal checks will not be accepted. All who can arrange to do so are urged to call and see these wonderful instruments in operation. There is nothing to withhold or hide in this proposition. Everything is open and above board.

"I ACCEPT LEAGUE'S CALL."

—MORAN

Welcomes Nomination for Governor by Independence Convention.

ITS PRINCIPLES ARE HIS OWN, HE DECLARES

District Attorney John B. Moran has accepted the nomination for Governor by the Independence League of Massachusetts.

He was nominated by that organization at its State convention in Faneuil Hall a week ago last night, which proved to be one of the most enthusiastic gatherings in the political history of the State

Letter of Acceptance.

In his letter of acceptance Mr. Moran says

To the members of the Independence League of Massachusetts

Gentlemen—Duly appreciative of the confidence placed in me, I hereby accept the nomination for Governor by the convention of the Independence League of Massachusetts, of which I have been formally notified.

I am familiar with the declaration of purposes which are incorporatd into your constitution, and I find them not only consistent with my own political opinions, but almost identical with them. The charter which governs your local organizations bind them to the following great political principles.

First—Public ownership of those utilities which in their nature are monopolies.

Second—The enactment of laws which will give the people absolute control of their public servants in office.

Third—Direct nomination by the people in place of nominations by cliques and party bosses.

Fourth—Laws to abolish the corrupt lobby and punish bribe givers and bribe takers.

Fifth—The abolition of discrimination in railroad rates; good roads to facilitate the transportation of farm products to profitable markets, and pure food laws.

Recognition of Labor.

Sixth—Recognition of labor unions in all legitimate efforts to properly regulate the pay and working hours of working people.

Seventh—Careful and expert scrutiny of all proposed legislation affecting working people and the general public, to the end that acts against their interests may not be passed before their purpose is understood.

Eighth—The protection of legitimate capital, and denying the right of existence to criminal and oppressive trusts.

Ninth—The election of United States Senators by the people.

Another organization has already nominated me, because its members approved of my official conduct, and I have accepted its nomination as I now accept yours, because we are advancing on parallel lines, and as you have chosen to place in my hands your standards it is not for me to refuse either the duty or the honor conferred by your choice.

I have disavowed, thereby, no allegiance to the great party of which I am a member. Such allegiance as any party has a reasonable right to claim of its adherents, I have given to the Democratic party. But I refuse to be a party slave.

Party a Means to an End.

The patriotic citizen's end is just government, his means is the party which most nearly proposes to do the things in government which he thinks are just. The man who always mistakes the means for the end cannot be wholly a good citizen, even if the mistake is one of the head and not of the heart.

You seek to promote a reasonable independence in political action among our citizens of the established parties. I believe that our fellow citizens ought to be emancipated from the party serfdom which they endure from habit and thoughtlessness. Such party serfdom aids selfish, designing and unpatriotic men and agents of the great quasi-public corporations to secure and hold control of our government. But I do not think that there ought to be political anarchy, in which all men give no consideration to party ties. We have not yet devised a means so convenient of expressing the will of the majority as through government parties. They have become a fundamental part of our unwritten constitution and should be cared for by the citizens as a mechanic cares for his tools. We cannot maintain our party organizations without some coherence among its members.

That the duty we owe our country, our State and city is paramount to that which we owe our party should ever be borne in mind and should be our guide in political life.

Our motto should be:

"For our party when right,

Tech Freshies in Rush Rout Sophs; 3 Ducked in Pond

Hot Battle, but Short, Near Hotel Lenox; Victors 140 Strong, Foes 40

The yearly rush between freshmen and sophomores at Tech last night resulted in the overwhelming rout of the sophomores. Five of them were captured by the freshmen. Three of these were escorted to the pond in the Public Garden and thrown bodily into the water.

The rush came at the close of the annual dinner and social meting of the freshman class at the Tech Union. While the dinner was in progress sophomores waylaid three freshmen, bound and left them in the rear of the Allen gymnasium. At 10 o'clock the freshmen, 140 strong, marched out of the union. As they reached Dartmouth street the sophomores in flying wedge formation hurled themselves against the column. The contest waged, working along, opposite the Hotel Lenox. Here the sophomores, who numbered only fifty, were routed and five captured.

The captives were taken to the institution grounds and put through "stunts," ending with a demand to give the class yell of the captors. Two did this, but the other three refused. These were marched to the Public Garden and "soused." Then the freshmen marched to the Tech Chambers and disbanded.

RICHER BY $24,000,000 IN BIG IRON DEAL

New York, Sept. 29.—In the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., yesterday morning, E. H. Gary, representing the United States Steel Corporation, and James J. Hill, owners of iron ore lands commonly known as the Great Northern ore properties, signed contracts which in effect lease the ore lands to the Steel Trust.

Associated with Mr. Hill in the lease is J. W. Longyear, a man unknown to Wall Street or to the financial world of the United States. Nevertheless, as an immediate result of the agreement he will come into royalties of at least $24,000,000. Mr. Longyear owns 30,000,000 tons of ore.

SAYS CHAMBERLAIN HAS LOST SPEECH

London, Sept. 29.—Reynolds' Newspaper published a report insisting that in spite of denials Joseph Chamberlain, formerly colonial secretary and the foremost exponent of a policy of protection for England, has, owing to his recent illness, lost his power of speech and will never again participate in public life. If the report be true, it means the death-blow of protectionism in England.

Pedestrians on Crowded Street, Horrified, Watch C. E. Durgin's Auto Injure Victim.

BEWILDERED, HE STOOD FACING ON-COMING DOOM

Before the horrified gaze of hundreds Otto Fleischner, aged fifty-five, married, living at No. 81 Crescent street, Cambridge, assistant librarian at the Boston Public Library, was struck and terribly injured yesterday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock at Huntington avenue, Boylston and Dartmouth streets, by touring car, No. 16,606, the property of Charles E. Durgin, No. 2 Strathmore road, Brookline. Mr. Durgin and Chauffeur Albert Freeman, of Coolidge Corner, were the occupants of the car. Freeman is attached to the garage at No. 58 Winchester street, Brookline. Mr. Fleischner was at once removed by Mr Durgin in his automobile to the City Hospital.

At the hospital late last night the surgeons stated that Mr. Fleischner was very seriously injured; that he was then resting quite comfortably, but that it would be impossible to tell what the outcome would be.

Mr. Fleischner's injuries consist of a compound fracture of the right thigh, three ribs of his right side broken, contused wounds on his head and internal injuries.

At the time that Mr. Fleishner was struck he was crossing the street. He is declared to have become bewildered when he saw the big automobile bearing down upon him. One light of the machine was found to be badly broken when it was seen in the garage at No. 58 Winchester street, Brookline, by a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter last night. Mr. Durgin won the auto about a year ago in a newspaper contest. His initials "C. E. D." are on a plate in the front of the car.

Auto Running at High Speed.

Dr. H. S. Pomeroy, of No. 543 Boylston street, who witnesesd all, gave the following version of the accident:

"Suddenly I saw this big car whizzing out from the city proper, and I wondered whether it was going straight out Huntington avenue or going to turn into Dartmouth street. With a sharp swerve, it swung into Dartmouth street.

"Crossing the street at the time was Otto Fleischner. He saw the auto in an instant and lost control of himself. He started ahead, and if he had kept on he would have escaped the machine.

Body Frightfully Bruised.

"Then he stopped just as suddenly. He hesitated, then started backward and it crashed into him. I saw the wheels pass over his body.

"I hastened to him and with the aid of other spectators, assisted him to his feet. He was unconscious and collapsed. We worked on him until he regained consciousness.

"Then he said, 'I'm gone. Get me somewhere quick.' We tenderly placed him in the auto that ran over him and had him conveyed to the City Hospital. I saw on hasty examination that his leg was broken in two places, he was injured internally, and his body bruised in a frightful manner at reckless speed and much faster than the law allows."

HELD FOR ATTACKING WOMAN WITH KNIFE

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Josephine Roy is in a serious condition at the Sisters' Hospital, the result of an attack alleged to have been made on her with a butcher knife by Joseph Boisvert, a boarder, who was about to be married. The police arrested Boisvert, who was hiding in an ice chest in a Lincoln street grocery.

PETERS STRONG FOR TARIFF REVISION

Senator Andrew J. Peters accepted the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eleventh district by announcing that he is opposed to the domination of the government by either "rogues or demagogues." He is for tariff revision and Canadian reciprocity.

THIEVES LOOT DORCHESTER HOME OF $1,500 IN GEMS

Investigation of a mysterious jewelry robbery at the home of George S. Rowbotham, president of the Bay State Belting Company, who lives at No. 111 Ocean street, Ashmont, is being made by the police of the Dorchester station.

While the profoundest secrecy is being maintained both by members of the family and the police regarding the facts of the robbery it is known that the theft amounts to at [illegible] $1,500 and possibly may reach [illegible]

Mrs. Rowbotham declined to give the slightest information about the robbery when a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter called at the house last night.

Wanted Facts Kept Secret.

"If [illegible] jewels have been stolen, the police can tell you," she said. "I have nothing whatever to say about the matter."

According to Lieutenant Hall of the Dorchester station the family made a particular request that the facts of the robbery should not be made public. A description of each of the missing articles has been given to the detective bureau.

The theft occurred while Mrs. Rowbotham and members of her family were [illegible] yesterday afternoon. They left the house about one o'clock and returned a few minutes before six o'clock. On going to her room Mrs. Rowbotham discovered that some one had been through her dressing table.

She found first one and then another jewel case empty. Knowing that the jewels had been in their accustomed places when she left the house she [illegible] a systematic search. She failed to find the slightest trace of the jewels. The servants could not help her out in the least.

Heirlooms Missing.

Among the missing articles are several family heirlooms that are highly prized.

Captain Hunt of the Dorchester station detailed several of his best men on the case. It is said that the officers have clues which will probably result in an arrest to-day.

The Rowbothams are very prominent in Dorchester society and their home is one of the handsomest in the district. The few facts of the robbery that leaked out caused a sensation in the neighborhood.

OFFICER FOILS ATTEMPT TO ROB MALDEN CONDUCTOR

Four shots were fired by Patrolman John Shea of Malden at two passengers on a Boston & Northern car bound from Boston to Melrose at 12:30 this morning. The men, who were suspected of trying to rob Conductor A. C. Smart, refused to halt after leaving the car, when ordered to do so by the patrolman. So far as known, none of the shots took effect. They jumped off the car at Ferry and Belmont streets, the Malden-Everett line, and fled in the direction of Everett.

They were first noticed by Conductor Smart shortly after the car left Boston. Neither was under the influence of liquor, so far as he could judge. Both, however, pretended to be intoxicated. They pretended to quarrel and when Smart interfered, began to quarrel with him. They jostled against him, and were beginning to use him roughly when the car reached the Malden-Everett line.

Patrolman Shea, who was on the sidewalk, noticed the commotion, and started toward the car. The two men jumped off and ran. When told by Smart that he suspected they were planning to rob him Patrolman Shea called to the men to halt. They kept on running and he drew his revolver and fired.

First Expedition to Start from Newport News, Va., to Make American Intervention Effective --- Funston Will Seek to Pacify Insurgent Bands

FEELING AT HAVANA IS ISLAND WILL REMAIN A U. S. COLONY

Secretary of War Taft has cabled for the immediate landing in Cuba of a United States army of occupation. It is to enforce the military government proclaimed by him yesterday and of which he is now the head.

President Roosevelt sanctions the invasion and 5,600 soldiers will be rushed to Secretary Taft's aid.

War Department orders to move at once have been sent to the commanders of the battalions selected for the First Expedition, which is to mobilize at Newport News, Va. The Government is ready to quickly send reinforcements until its Cuban corps numbers 10,000 men. Forty thousand soldiers will be landed on the island if necessary.

The Rock Island, Ill., and Springfield, Mass., arsenals have been ordered to rush arms and ammunition to the point of embarkation.

Fifty-six hundred United States troops were ordered to Cuba to aid Secretary of War Taft in maintaining himself as military governor of the island, but eecution of the order is in doubt owing to sudden change in government plans.

The United States cruiser Prairie sails from Boston for Havana to-day with 192 marines and 163 bluejackets aboard. The battleship Rhode Island is ready to leave the Charlestown Navy Yard for the same destination at a moment's notice, and work to fit the battleship Georgia for Cuban waters is being rushed day and night.

While no fighting by United States regulars, sailors and marines is expected in Cuba, Secretary Taft had prepared to maintain the authority over the island proclaimed by him on the battlefield if necessary.

President Roosevelt attended the target practice of the North Atlantic squadron off Barnstable, Cape Cod, yesterday, and was constantly in touch with Secretary Taft through wireless telegraphy. General Bell, chief of staff at Washington, objected to the execution of the War Department order sending an army to Cuba until it received Presidential sanction.

1,200 Marines to Land To-day.

It was expected that United States Army would disembark in Cuban ports within ten days. A big fleet of transports was ordered to Newport News to take them aboard.

Boston fruit steamers Admiral Sampson and Admiral Schley, due here within a few days, have been impressed by the government for the service.

Twelve hundred marines will be landed at Havana to-day from American warships in the harbor. They will guard the capital until the army arrives.

Brigadier-General Funston, U. S. A., has been ordered to the rebel camps to induce the insurgents, if possible, to surrender their arms and accept the Taft government until a new president of Cuba can be elected and permanent peace brought about.

Washington dispatches state that the United States Army may have to fight Cuban rebels and others who are likely to oppose the Taft provisional government, as no positive information has yet been received indicating that the insurgents will give up their munitions of war and recognize the authority of this country..

Secretary Taft issued a proclamation to the Cuban people, assuming the governorship after President Palma and his cabinet resigned.

TAFT PROCLAIMS HIMSELF GOVERNOR; MARINES LAND

Havana, Sept. 29. The Cuban Republic is now a thing of the past. United States marines are already on guard in this city. 1,200 more will be landed from American warships in the harbor at daybreak, and 5,600 United States troops are under or-

TAFT RULES; FUNSTON TO TRY TO PACIFY ISLAND

SECRETARY of War William H. Taft has proclaimed himself Military Governor of Cuba.

President Palma and cabinet resigned because the American Peace Commissioners deprived them of authority.

General Funston has been ordered to tour the rebel camps and ask all insurgents to surrender arms.

ders to proceed here as fast as transports can convey them.

These conditions are the end of the efforts to Secretary of War Taft and Assistant Secretary of War Bacon to restore peace in Cuba.

Brigadier-General Funston, U. S. A., is going with other Americans to the camps of rebel armies and endeavor to get them to give up arms and go peacefully home.

The feeling is strong here that the Republic of Cuba has ceased to exist forever, and that henceforth Uncle Sam will rule the island as a territory or a colony.

The idea is entertained in some quarters with a feeling of relief, in others with bitterness. While it is believed that the majority of Cubans will accept intervention by the United States as disinterested action for the good of Cuba, there are others who are already murmuring against the surrender of independence.

Fateful Hours for Cuba.

While peace is expected, whether the Republic is re-established through the election of a new president, or by the United States remaining in authority, it is fully realized that the future of the island is uncertain and that these are fateful hours for Cuba and its people.

If the Rebel armies refuse to accept the Taft government as new and absolute authority, war may be resumed and the United States army and the insurgents will be the belligerents.

Havana is quiet to-night, but a feeling of suspense pervades the city. Secretary Taft has sought to avoid giving offence to that class of Cubans who prefer civil war and a republic to peace and foreign rule. He delayed landing a big force of marines and sailors until they had a chance to reflect upon the situation. His proclamation declaring himself provisional military governor is commended by all classes of Cubans as being temperate and conciliatory. The Cuban flag is still flying over Government buildings, and will so continue under the Taft administration.

Marines Guard Treasury.

Thirty United States marines are guarding the treasury building to-night. They are the only armed men yet sent ashore from the American fleet. In the morning there will be a big force landed and encamped at Camp Columbia. It has been planned by Secretary Taft to garrison the city at once that any disorder may be suppressed quickly.

An alarming dispatch was received by Secretary Taft from Manzanillo, in the province of Santiago. It stated that the Palma men in that vicinity threaten to oppose American rule. No such threat has come from the rebel camps. Major Ladd has visited General Pino Guerra, General Loynaz del Castillo and other commanders of the insurgent army encamped not far from the hacienda of United States Minister Morgan at Marianao, and it is understood that he brought back reassuring reports. It is said that the insurgent commanders and their men are satisfied with the news that Palma and his cabinet have resigned and that American rule is to last no longer than is necessary to establish peace and hold a new election.

Most of the friends of revolution are jubilant. Many Palma men are downcast and defiant. One task for the United States is to prevent reprisals. General Jose Gomez and other Cubans jailed by the Palma government as rebels will be released and asked to sign an agreement binding the insurgents to lay down their arms.

Secretary Taft's proclamation that he had assumed the reins of government was widely circulated in this city and copies will be posted in every part of the island. [illegible] of a new government. But most Americans and many of the most influential and far sighted Cubans do not believe that peace can continue if Cubans are left to govern themselves. Another revolt is predicted if American government is withdrawn.

Resignation of Palma.

Secretary Taft did not take over the government until President Palma had left Cuba without a head. The end of the first Cuban republic came when the Cuban Congress, in joint session, heard read the resignations of President Palma and his Cabinet. There was a heated debate between Senors Zayas, Manduley and Tamayo, and Congress voted to appeal to Palma to reconsider. In resigning, Palma said Secretaries Taft and Bacon had deprived him of authority, and that he acted as a patriot in quitting his post. When called upon by a Congressional deputation, he said his personal dignity forbade his reconsidering his action.

It was after this that Secretary Taft issued his proclamation to the Cuban people. It reads:

"The failure of Congress to act on the irrevocable resignation of the President of the Republic of Cuba, or to elect a successor, leaves this country without a government at a time when great disorder prevails, and requires that, pursuant to a request of President Palma, the necessary steps be taken in the name of and by the authority of the President of the United States, to restore order and protect life and property in the island of Cuba and in the islands and keys adjacent thereto, and for this purpose to establish therein a provisional government.

Seeks Only Peace.

"The provisional government hereby established by direction and in the name of the President of the United States will be maintained only long enough to restore order and peace and public confidence and then to hold such election as may be necessary to determine those persons upon whom the permanent government of the republic should be devolved.

"In so far as is consistent with the nature of a provisional government, established under the authority of the United States, this will be a Cuban government conforming as far as may be with the constitution of Cuba. The Cuban flag will be hoisted as usual over the government buildings of the island; all the executive departments and the provincial and municipal governments, including that of the city of Havana, will continue to be administered as under the Cuban republic; the courts will continue justice; and all laws, not in their nature inapplicable by reason of the temporary and emergent nature of the government, will be in force.

Must Report to Taft.

"President Roosevelt has been most anxious to bring about peace under the constitutional government of Cuba, and has made every endeavor to avoid the present step. Longer delay, however, would be dangerous in view of the resignation of the Cabinet.

"Until further notice, the heads of all departments of the central government will report to me for instructions, including General Alejandre Rodriguez, in command of the rural guard and the other regular forces, and General Barlos Ro'off, treasurer of Cuba. Until further notice, the civil governors will also report to me for instructions.

"I ask all citizens of Cuba to assist in the work of restoring order, tranquillity and confidence."

The Cuban Congress has dissolved and now the United States is ruling Cuba just as it did after the surrender of the Spaniards after Admiral Cervera's fleet was destroyed and the army of defence surrendered at Santiago.

able reason a most important wireless message failed to reach the White House on the battleship Missouri or on the Mayflower.

As Secretary Taft's [illegible] it was believed that the need of an American army in Cuba was urgent and the [illegible] twelve hours [illegible] troops [illegible] ordered to move before the [illegible] of supreme authority was raised. Then a modified order was put on the wires by war department telegraphers and the army chiefs fumed and chafed over the delay. The officials suffered the first nervous chill of the Cuban campaign.

To Move Without Delay.

At 10.45 o'clock to-night Assistant Secretary Oliver got a message from the President that relieved all minds. The President ordered the army to Cuba. He had received word of the predicament while on the Mayflower en route back to Oyster Bay and hastened the reply that sent army trains in motion. The text of his message is withheld but the War Department states that the President had endorsed the move to comply at once with Secretary Taft's call for troops.

The War Department has lately sent them orders to move the troops to Newport News without delay. By to-morrow most, if not all, of the commands will be on the way to that port.

Another command is directed to the commandants at the Rock Island, Ill., and Springfield, Mass., arsenals to rush arms and ammunition to the point of mobilization. The arsenals have been expecting this order and guns and cartridges enough for a short campaign are ready for shipment at an hour's notice.

The following is the official statement issued by the War Department this evening:

"The Secretary of War has wired the President recommending that the first expedition should come to Cuba. All the preliminary instructions for the chartering of transports, securing railway transportation and the preparations of the troops have been given. Department commanders have been directed to notify troops composing the first expedition to prepare and hold themselves in readiness at a moment's notice. The following will compose the staff of the expedition.

"Chief of staff, Lieutenant Colonel W. W. Wetherspoon; general staff corps assistants: Major William A. Mann, general staff corps; Major F. J. Kernan, general staff corps, Major D. D. Gaillard, general staff corps; Captain George W. Read, general staff corps, Captain Charles T. Menoher, general staff corps, Captain John W. Furlong, general staff corps.

"Military secretary, Captain William G. Haahn, artillery corps.

"Engineer officer, Major William C. Langfitt, engineer corps.

"Inspector general, Major M. E. Groble, inspector general department.

"Chief quartermaster, Major C. B. Baker, quartermaster's department.

"Assistants—Captain A. W. Butt, quartermaster's department, Captain W. H. Horton, quartermaster's department, William C. Wrenn, quartermaster's department, Captain James E. Normoyle, quartermaster's department; Major J. C. Cabell, [illegible] Infantry, Captain S. S. Smiley, Fifteenth Infantry.

"Chief commissary, Major Harry E. Wilkins, commissary department, depot commissary, Captain H. C. Cole, commissary department.

"Chief surgeon, Colonel Valery Havard, medical department, medical inspector, Lieutenant-Colonel Blair D. Taylor, medical department.

"Chief ordnance officer, Captain William H. Tschappat, ordnance department.

"Chief signal officer, Captain William Mitchell, signal corps.

"Chief paymaster, Colonel Charles H. Whipple, pay department.

"Judge advocate, Major Blanton Winship, judge advocate general department.

Composition of Expedition.

"The following officers have been telegraphed for by Secretary Taft: Major Jefferson R. Keen, medical department; Captain Frank McIntyre, Nineteenth Infantry.

"Composition of the first expedition follows:

Fifth Infantry, Colonel C. D. Cowles, commanding, Plattsburg; 11th Infantry, Colonel Albert L. Meyer, commanding, Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming; 17th Infantry, Colonel John T. Van Orsdale, commanding, Fort McPherson, Ga.; 27th Infantry, Colonel William T. Pitcher, commanding, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; 28th Infantry, Colonel Owen J. Sweet, commanding, Fort Snelling, Minn.; 11th Cavalry, Colonel E. D. Thomas, commanding, Fort Des Moines, Iowa; 15th Cavalry, W. N. Wallace, commanding, Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.; 14th Battery Field Artillery, Captain George G. Gately, commanding, Fort Sheridan, Ill.; 17th Battery Mountain Artillery, Captain George L. Irwin, commanding, Vancouver Barracks, Wash.; 18th Battery Mountain Artillery, Captain E. M. Blake, commanding, Vancouver Barracks, Wash.; 2nd Battalion Engineers, Major W. C. Langfitt, commanding, Washington Barracks, D. C.; Company I, Signal Corps, Captain George S. Gibbs, commanding, Fort Omaha, Neb.

Total Force of 5,652 Men.

"There will be two battalions with regimental headquarters and band, thirty-six officers and 855 enlisted men from each regiment of infantry and cavalry, one machine gun platoon for each regiment, 21 enlisted men. Each battery will consist of five officers and 120 enlisted men.

"Battalion engineers 15 officers and 418 enlisted men.

"Signal company, three officers and 15 enlisted men.

"Medical department, 36 officers and 371 enlisted men.

PRAIRIE SAILS TODAY, AND RHODE ISLAND WAITS ORDER

Amid the booming of guns that will belch forth an official farewell and the cheering of hundreds who will "see them off," the United States cruiser Prairie will steam from the Charlestown Navy Yard on high tide at 9:30 a. m. to-day, bound for Cuba, with 192 marines from Newport, Portsmouth and Charlestown Navy Yards, all commanded by Lieutenant F. Halford of the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Captain H. O. Dunn will command the Prairie and she will sail with her full complement, 108 blue jackets.

With steam up, two months' stores safely encased aboard and extra ammunition and arms in the magazine, the United States first class battleship Rhode Island is waiting the order that will send her speeding to Cuba. It is liable to come from Washington any minute.

The United States battleship Georgia is being rushed into fighting trim and made ready for sailing orders. Though but just put into commission and not having her full crew quota yet, blue jackets, ammunition and stores are being rushed aboard.

Stores Rushed Aboard.

All was bustle, bustle and activity at the Navy Yard from sunrise until sunset yesterday. Blue jackets and marines, with their natty uniforms laid aside, donned workingmen's garb and pitched into the preparations.

Stores were rushed into the hold, big guns were polished until they glittered in the sunlight, anchors and chains were drawn aboard and ammunition and small arms stowed in the magazines.

Hundreds of friends, fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers, flocked to the Prairie all day to give the boys a send off. Sweethearts were there in profusion.

In the midst of all the warlike preparations everybody who was going to sail seemed happy. All were anxious for a change of scene and a little excitement. Gossip on what the chances were of getting into a fray was the predominating conversation.

Rhode Island Is Ready.

Admiral Snow, commandant of the navy yard, when seen by the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter yesterday, said:

"The Prairie sails at 9:30 to-morrow morning. All preparations will be finished to-night.

"The Rhode Island is ready to sail in an instant. I have received orders from Washington to have her in readiness, and she is liable to get orders at any time during the day or night.

"The Georgia will be ready to sail, if ordered to, just as soon as we can rush preparations to fix her up."

Captain H. O. Dunn of the Prairie said: "We are going to steam direct into Havana harbor and land the 200 marines we have on board. I do not know how long my ship will stay in Cuban waters."

PRESIDENT KEPT POSTED BY WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Although President Roosevelt was intensely interested yesterday in observing the target practice of the North Atlantic squadron off Barnstable, Cape Cod, his mind was constantly on the Cuban situation, and he was kept in touch with Secretary of War Taft at Havana through wireless telegraphy.

While on the way from Oyster Bay dispatches were received by him on the Mayflower. He got them via the Wellfleet and Highland Light stations, and after rounding Cape Cod and getting to the waters off Barnstable, where big guns boomed, a 1,000 words dispatch from Secretary Taft came to Provincetown.

The President ordered it transcribed at that point from the code and sent a torpedo boat up to Provincetown for the message. The fleet boat raced away at top speed, but Mr. Roosevelt got impatient and soon ordered the Mayflower to steam up the long arm of the cape to meet the messenger boat on its return.

PRESIDENT GIVES ORDER FOR DISPATCH OF TROOPS TO CUBA

Washington, Sept. 29.—President Roosevelt has approved the War Department order sending a United States army to Cuba in response to Secretary of War Taft's cablegram, asking for troops to support the government he established when the Republic there came to an end.

Although the War Department sent rush orders to the commands selected to comprise the invading corps, definite instructions to move could not be forwarded until President Roosevelt himself sanctioned the step. He was in Massachusetts waters witnessing the target practice of the North Atlantic squadron, and for some unexplainable reason a most important wireless message failed to reach the White House on the battleship Missouri or on the Mayflower.

The Massachusetts Breweries Company have moved into their new and handsome offices at 80 Arch street, near by their old headquarters. This new location is excellent, convenient for the trade and dispatch of business. The offices are very light and well equipped with increased facilities for the handling of their enormous business. **

3 DIE, SCORE HURT IN CRASH OF TRAINS.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 29.—Three persons are known to be dead and about a score hurt in a rear-end collision to-day on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Edlington fifteen miles south of here. A fast passenger train crashed into another train which was being held for orders. Failure of the air brakes on the moving train is believed to be the cause of the smash. It is known that the signals were properly set, but they are on a curve and the engineer could not see them any sooner than he could see the standing train.

The rear or seventh car of the Long Branch train was driven forward with such force that it tore its way almost entirely through the next, or sixth car. This in turn was smashed through ten or twelve feet of the fifth car. The victims and most of the injured, curiously enough, were found in the sixth car, not in the one which was struck first.

Doors, windows, sections of car roofs and 200-pound couplings were strewn for a rod about the spot where the collision occurred. Clothing and handbags littered the tracks and the grassy embankments on either side.

W. T. A. FITZGERALD TO BE NAMED FOR REGISTRAR.

Will Get Nomination for Temple's Place as Reward for the Throwing of Ward 7 Vote for Dixon In Senatorial Fight

The deal by which the vote of Ward 7 on Tuesday was thrown to Edward W. Dixon of Ward 6 in the Senatorial contest with Daniel J. Kiley of Ward 8, will be consummated Monday evening at the Democratic County convention, when the Mayor delivers the nomination for Register of Deeds, the position held for years by Thomas F. Temple, to William T. A. Fitzgerald, the Ward 7 leader and former president of the city committee.

The convention will be held in the Y. M. C. U. Hall on Boylston street at 7:30 in the evening, and will be called to order by President of the Democratic City Committee William F. McClellan of East Boston, who is also the president of the County Committee.

Alderman William J. Hennessey of Ward 20, who has been a candidate for the position, will undoubtedly withdraw before the nominations are made as W. T. A. Fitzgerald has the pledges of every ward in the city except Wards 8 and 24. The Ward 24 delegation would have been for Hennessey if he stayed in the field, while Ward 8 has no use for either candidate.

After Seavey's Scalp.

The place is worth $5,000 a year, and this year the election will be for five years.

To-morrow night's convention may be the last county convention to be held in Suffolk, and the beginning of the end of the county ring, which has controlled all the courthouse jobs for over a quarter of a century, Frank Campbell, clerk of the Superior Civil Court, and District-Attorney John B. Moran being the only men to secure an election in the face of this powerful opposition.

Mayor Fitzgerald in yesterday's issue of his weekly announces his intention of going after the county ring, and especially Sheriff Fred H. Seavey, who is a close friend of Martin M. Lomasney. Sheriff Seavey's term expires next year.

To Renominate Campbell.

The Democratic convention of Monday night will renominate without a contest John P. Manning, clerk of the Superior Criminal Court, Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Superior Civil Court, and John Noble, clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court.

At the Republican county convention Wednesday evening, that party will nominate Clerks Noble and Manning, and the present Registrar of Deeds, Thomas F. Temple. Attorney Frank Keezer is a candidate for Campbell's office as clerk of the Superior Civil Court.

GENERAL M'ARTHUR MAY GO TO CUBA LATER AS GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Washington, Sept. 29.—Lieutenant-General Arthur MacArthur, who now commands the Pacific division, may go to Cuba if the conditions there require any such officer as a governor-general, in which case General Funston would undoubtedly remain in charge of the military forces. General MacArthur is anxious to go to Cuba, if the conditions there shall ultimately require a high ranking military officer for administrative purposes.

COUNTERFEIT DIMES FLOOD MAINE CITY

Waterville, Me., Sept. 29.—This city is flooded with counterfeit ten-cent pieces. The coins have a new appearance and the edges are not milled. They are slightly heavier than the genuine.

Stand by the old honest Dentifrice, and your teeth will stand by you.

BROCKTON IS READY FOR ITS BIGGEST EVENT, FAIR.

Knabenshue and His Airship, Vanderbilt and His Horses, and Scores of Attractions, Point to Broken Records

Brockton, Sept. 29.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Brockton Fair on Tuesday next. It will continue for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The management may believe that this will be the greatest fair ever held here.

The stellar attraction will be the horse show. Both Alfred G. and Reginald Vanderbilt, as well as Mrs. John Gerkin, are to exhibit their finest horses. The driving competition for women, to which entries are made at time of showing, always attracts a strong field of young sportswomen. Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston and Newport, last year won $100 in gold as first prize.

Trotting and pacing races take place every afternoon, and some of the fastest horses of the turf have been entered.

The firemen's muster this year will be the best ever seen here. Last year it was the biggest in New England's history of the handtub sport.

Roy Knabenshue, the airship man, is here. To-morrow he will be getting his machines into working order. He may make an ascension before the fair formally opens on Tuesday.

A new exhibition that is expected to thrill the crowds will be given by Mlle Yvonne D'Arcy in her somersaulting automobile. In this she flies through space, turns completely over and lands on a platform.

HOLD MACK FOR BEATING WIFE TO DEATH.

Jamaica Plain Man Under Arrest, Charged with Brutal Crime in Bronxville, N. Y.

PRISONER SAYS WIFE FELL FROM HER BED

George J. Mack, aged twenty-nine years, formerly of No. 292 Amory street, Jamaica Plain, and until last September engaged in the liquor business in Centre street with William Leonard, is under arrest at Police Headquarters, charged by the police of Bronxville, N. Y., with having caused the death of his wife in the Halfway Inn, in that town, last Wednesday. Mack declares that he does not know how the woman met her death. He came here from New York yesterday morning, and was arrested by Policeman W. D. Hewitt, of Station 13, Jamaica Plain, while in bed at his former home.

Dispatches from Bronxville state that Mrs. Mack was beaten to death. Neighbors who missed her broke into the room where her body was found on Friday morning. As Mack had disappeared the police sought him on suspicion.

Admits Quarrel With Wife.

Mack admits having a quarrel with his wife and says that she fell out of bed. He left the room after the quarrel. He says he returned some two hours later and that she was still lying on the floor. Then he packed his grip and went to New York, leaving there by a steamer on Friday night. He arrived in Boston yesterday morning and went to his home where his mother, brother William and sister reside. His arrest followed.

Mack declares that he has forgotten what happened during the quarrel and after it. He says that he left Jamaica Plain with his wife last Summer. They camped for a time near Salem, N. H., and later he went to Bronxville, where he bought the Halfway Inn.

Never Heard of Marriage.

William Leonard, of the liquor firm of Leonard & Nagle, of Amory street, Jamaica Plain, said to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter:

"George J. Mack until just a year ago was associated with me in business. I never knew of his marriage. Mack is well connected here and his family is respectable and well to do. He is a cousin of G. L. Gebhardt, the Roxbury brewer.

RISKED LIVES TO SAVE FRIEND'S DOG

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—An overzealous regard for the life of a dog came near resulting in the deaths of two men at Gloucester. The dog belonged to Lewis Tighe, and while swimming in the Delaware River, it became exhausted. As it appeared to be drowning, George Hart, a deck hand, sprang overboard to its rescue. Hart had not gone very far when his heavy clothing weighed him down, and he was in peril. As he called for help William Strouse jumped to his aid, and Strouse found the task too much for him.

In that predicament Tighe, the owner of the dog, found that it was up to him, and he managed to get both men ashore, very much exhausted. The dog was also saved.

2 CUBAN SPIES CAUGHT IN NAVY YARD.

Had Snapped Photos of Big Guns in Portsmouth, Va., Barracks.

ARRESTED, EJECTED, RETURN IN DISGUISE

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 29.—Two Cubans were caught snapping photographs of field guns and other ordnance here to-day. Detective Catchins, a secret service agent attached to the office of Commandant Berry, discovered the two suspicious looking strangers manipulating their cameras and arrested them.

When examined it was plain that they were Cubans. They admitted this. The plates in their cameras, three of which had been exposed, were smashed and thrown overboard. The undesirable visitors were then ejected from the yard.

A few hours after they returned again, disguised with heavy false beard, and sought admission to the confines of the yard. They were again detected, however, before they had been admitted and ordered away from the station. They are believed to be members of the Cuban Junta. In consequence of this discovery a strong cordon is guarding the yard and the battleship Texas to-night.

When the Texas gets away from the Navy Yard Sunday she will carry the biggest supply of ammunition taken from this station in many a day. Field pieces are being loaded on the battleship to-night. A heavily augmented watch force is guarding the station and the yard to-night.

ROUSED BY INSULT, BISHOP REFUSES TO SAY MASS.

Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 29.—Although the officers in charge of the convention of L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, held at this city, gave out the statement that Bishop Harkins did not celebrate high pontifical mass on account of the inclement weather, Bishop Harkins in an interview with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day, said that he refused to do so because of an insult offered to the Archbishop of Boston in resolutions read before the association. Bishop Harkins said:

"I was invited to celebrate mass at St. Anne's Church at the convention, and was assured that there would be no religious topics discussed. Upon arriving in Woonsocket, however, I learned that at the instigation of editors of French newspapers resolutions had been presented protesting against the appointment of bishops in dioceses where the French were in largest numbers who were not of that nationality. When I arrived at the church I asked to see a copy of the resolutions, but it was not forthcoming. I was told, however, that the resolutions had been read but not adopted. As this was a violation of the promise that had been made that there would be no religious matters discussed I returned to Providence."

TRADE MARK

'DR.' SINCLAIR IS FOUND GUILTY, 3D TRIAL.

Will Be Sentenced on Wednesday for Causing the Death of Miss Annie Russell.

JUDGE BOND EXPRESSES HIS THANKS TO THE JURY

"Dr." John Sinclair was yesterday found guilty of giving illegal treatment which resulted in the death of Annie M. Russell of Charlestown in February. The jury returned the verdict at 10:35 a. m., having been out since 3:30 p. m. Friday.

Sinclair took the verdict coolly. He had evidently steeled himself for an adverse decision. He did not change expression or exhibit the slightest emotion.

This was the third trial of the defendant. The first trial resulted in a disagreement. The second trial showed that "Dr." Walter Clark had meddled with the jury, which was the reason the judge gave for keeping the third jury off the streets while this trial was in progress.

"In this class of cases," said Judge Bond in discharging the jury, "there is apt to be bribing. In addition to the defendant there are a number of persons interested, both men and women, who will do anything to secure the release of the defendant. They will pick out the poor men on the jury and offer them money. The poor men serving on the jury know that it's wrong, but it is a great temptation to them, especially those who receive a small daily wage and have families to support.

"I agree that your verdict is a just one, and I have not any doubt that Turner, Clark and Sinclair were in this illegal business. These cases are the hardest kind of cases to try, and I want to thank you as you have done your work well. It is a pleasure for any judge to preside when he has jurors who are honest, conscientious and intelligent, and my hope is that the jury next month in trying this sort of cases will do as well as you have done."

The judge then dismissed the jury. Judge Bond announced that he would not pronounce sentence until Wednesday, at which time Attorney Clarence Rowley, for Sinclair, will file a motion for a new trial. The time for filing exceptions has been extended until October 22.

NIGHTROBE ABLAZE, MAN BADLY BURNED

Dentist's Clothing Catches Fire From Gas Jet in Room.

Dr. Ernest Wing, aged twenty-three years, an office associate of Dr. F. F. Roby, a dentist, No. 88 Boylston street, was painfully but not dangerously burned last night through his nightrobe catching fire from a gas jet. The doctor had just taken a bath when his night robe caught fire. He did his best to extinguish the flames while calling for help. People in the house rushed to his aid. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath

Bad Odor of Indigestion, Smoking, Drinking or Eating Can Be Instantly Stopped.

Sample Package Mailed Free.

Other people notice your bad breath where you would not notice it at all. It is nauseating to other people to stand before them and while you are talking, give them a whiff or two of your bad breath. It usually comes from food fermenting on your stomach. Sometimes you have it in the morning,—that awful sour, bilious, bad breath. You can stop that at once by swallowing one or two Stuart Charcoal Lozenges, the most powerful gas and odor absorbers ever prepared.

Sometimes your meals will reveal themselves in your breath to those who talk with you. "You've had onions" or "You've been eating cabbage," and all of a sudden you belch in the face of your friend. Charcoal is a wonderful absorber of odors, as every one knows. That is why Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are so quick to stop all gases and odors of odorous foods, or gas from indigestion.

Don't use breath perfumes. They never conceal the odor, and never absorb the gas that causes the odor. Besides, the very fact of using them reveals the reason for their use. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges in the first place stop for good all sour brash and belching of gas, and make your breath pure, fresh and sweet, just after you've eaten. Then no one will turn his face away from you when you breathe or talk; your breath will be pure and fresh, and besides your food will taste so much better to you at your next meal. Just try it.

Charcoal does other wonderful things, too. It carries away from your stomach and intestines all the impurities there massed together and which causes the bad breath. Charcoal is a purifier as well as an absorber.

Charcoal is now by far the best, most easy and mild laxative known. A whole boxful will do no harm, in fact, the more you take the better. Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal and mixed with just a faint flavor of honey to make them palatable for you, but not too sweet. You just chew them like candy. They are absolutely harmless.

Get a new, pure, sweet breath, freshen your stomach for your next meal, and keep the intestines in good working order. These two things are the secret of good health and long life. You can get all the charcoal necessary to do these wonderful but simple things by getting Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. We want you to test these little wonder workers yourself before you buy them. So send us your full name and address for a free sample of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges. Then after you have tried the sample, and been convinced, go to your druggist and get a 25c box of them. You'll feel better all over, more comfortable, and "cleaner" inside.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 50 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

"The public may be astounded to learn that politics, favoritism and graft are wrecking the public school system of this city, as far as the teachers are concerned."—Statement of Mrs. E. Kettelle, in defense of her mother who was suspended as school teacher.

WOMAN SCHOOL TEACHER OUSTED; MORAN TO PROBE CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY

Daughter of the Dethroned Instructor Wages Vigorous Campaign in Quest of Justice

For her mother's sake, Mrs. Edith Merrill Kettelle of the Kettelle School of Design, Boylston street, yesterday started a campaign, using all the resources at her command, to bring to justice certain persons who, she says, have been persecuting her aged parent, Mrs. Achsah M. Merrill, for many years a teacher in the Henry Vane School, West Roxbury.

In answer to Mrs. Kettelle's request District Attorney Moran will to-morrow begin an investigation of conspiracy charges which Mrs. Kettelle brings against Francis A. Morse, master of the Robert G. Shaw School, and Assistant Superintendents of Public Schools Walter S. Parker, Maurice P. White and Mrs. Ella F. Ripley.

Mrs. Kettelle saw the district attorney in connection with the charges yesterday, and he made an appointment with her to meet him at his office in the Pemberton Square Court House at 10:30 a. m. to-morrow.

TEACHER WHO SAYS MOTHER IS VICTIM OF INJUSTICE

Posed Yesterday Especially for the Boston Sunday American.

Seeks "Man Who Dares."

"Failing to get a square deal from the School Board," said Mrs. Kettelle to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter yesterday, "I have gone to the 'man who dares,' and he will see me through.

"My mother's case will now be heard in the courts, and then the public may be astounded to learn that politics, favoritism and graft are simply wrecking the public school system of this city as far as the teachers are concerned.

"My mother has taught school in West Roxbury for nearly twenty-eight years. She is now under suspension.

"Last January she was reduced in rank from first to second assistant, and her salary was cut down. I claim that the reduction in rank and salary were illegal because she holds tenure of office under a State law of fifteen years ago, which provided that first assistants should retain their positions 'during good behavior and efficiency' and not 'during the pleasure of the board,' as the law reads at the present time. The School Board has been unable to prove my mother either ill-behaved or inefficient.

Demands Reinstatement.

"Because she made charges against her official superiors, Superintendent of Public Schools Stratton D. Brooks on September 11 last suspended my mother.

"In a letter to Mr. Brooks I asked him to revoke the suspension for these three reasons: First, that it was detrimental to the school to have one of its regular teachers absent at the beginning of the school year; second, that it was detrimental to Mrs. Merrill because the suspension placed her in a false position as a person under reproach, no charges having been made against her; third, that it was detrimental to the general service, as being intimidative to free speech and would induce teachers to allow grievous wrongs in the schools without daring to raise a voice of protest.

"My mother now demands these three things—reinstatement, reimbursement of financial losses by the action of the School Board last January in reducing her rank and salary, and exoneration of all charges made against her by Mr. Morse and other school officials."

OLD ORGAN SOLD TO TAMMANY MAN

The organ in the old Vine Street Church, Roxbury, the present Ward 17 ward room, which was installed at a cost of $3,000, has been sold to Marx Angelevitz, a member of the Tammany Club of that ward, for $400. The order for the sale of the organ was offered in the Board of Aldermen by the Tammany chieftain, Alderman James M. Curley.

The organ, which originally cost between $15,000 and $20,000, was purchased from the trustees of Music Hall by Mayor Quincy in 1898 for $1,000. Quincy's purpose was to give the Ward 17 people the music of the great masters rather than the popular ragtime airs. It cost $1,000 to move the organ and another $1,000 to put it in order. The Ward 17 people refused to take kindly to culture, and after half a dozen concerts the organ fell into disuse.

HUNT CHINESE SMUGGLER OFF NEWPORT

Mysterious Yacht Sighted Near Cuttyhunk May Have 33 Celestials Aboard.

Dispatches to the BOSTON AMERICAN from Cuttyhunk, Mass., report that a yacht, suspected of being the smuggler Frolic, which one week ago sailed from Placentia Bay, N. F., with thirty-three Chinamen aboard, who are seeking illegal admission into this country, passed there yesterday in tow of a tug.

The mysterious boat was apparently bound across the bay to Newport. This schooner came in from the eastward last night and seemed to be undecided where to go.

A man, supposed to be an officer in disguise, has been at Cuttyhunk until Friday night, when he mysteriously left. It is thought that he went to Quick's Hole, where it is believed that he had a tug hiding with which to chase the Frolic should he sight her. It is thought that this officer is now chasing the schooner to identify her.

Every foot of the North Shore is being patrolled by United States immigration officers.

Patrol the North Shore.

It is just seven days since the Frolic slipped out of Placentia Bay with her cargo of Chinamen. Under weather conditions such as those of the last seven days, it is just one week's sail from Placentia Bay to Cape Ann.

Colonel George B. Billings, commissioner of immigration of the port of Boston, and Augustus P. Schell, Chinese inspector for the New England district, together with many other officials from the immigration office, were yesterday near Marblehead.

These officials have arranged a complete patrol for that entire coast. Every lighthouse keeper and all of the coast guards are watching the horizon for the schooner Frolic.

Has a Wily Captain.

The much-sought craft is in charge of a very wily skipper, for a sharp lookout has been kept for her several days now and not one of the lookouts has positively identified any vessel he has seen as the Frolic. Many suspects have been sighted, but usually it has soon been apparent that the elusive Frolic has yet to be seen and positively identified.

A yacht and a cutter were sighted yesterday off Cape Cod and at first it was thought that the Frolic had been found. They were lost sight of after passing the shoals, heading leeward of Vineyard Haven.

Inspector Hinckley of New Bedford has been at Provincetown for twenty-four hours supposedly seeking Frolic clues.

BOSTON CLUB'S GIFT TO DUTCH UNVEILED

Amsterdam, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The tablet presented to the Reformed Church at Delfthaven, South Holland, by the Congregational Club of Boston, commemorating the sailing of the ship Speedwell in 1620, and as a recognition of Dutch hospitality, was unveiled yesterday. Rev. Irwin Brown delivered the invocation, and the choir of the Scotch church at Rotterdam supplied patriotic music.

The Boston Board of Aldermen has refused to grant the Boston street railway trust locations for an elevated structure in the West End.

The Aldermen for the first time in many years have stood between the people and the railway trust.

The railway trust has decided to apply to the railroad commissioners for the locations the Aldermen refused to sanction.

If they grant the trust this right, a cruel blow at the small property owner, will Governor Guild remove the commissioners?

That is a fair question, Governor Guild. Will you remove the commissioners if they truckle to the trust?

LABOR'S SLOGAN, "MORAN AND BROWN," SWEEPS BAY STATE

Independence League Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor Rouses Enthusiasm Among Wage Earners, Who Appeal For United Support of Champion.

Organized labor throughout Massachusetts is rallying to the support of E. Gerry Brown, Chairman of the Committee of Fifteen of the Wage Earners' Club of Massachusetts, past president and present secretary of the Brockton Central Labor Union, for Lieutenant-Governor. It is already strikingly evident that he will receive the solid support of trades unionists, without regard to party.

The advice of the American Federation of Labor—"elect your friends and defeat your enemies"—could have no stronger application than here at the present time, When Mr. Brown, himself not only an eloquent speaker, skilled campaigner and man of unimpeachable character but a representative of the workingmen of the State, is pitted against Lieutenant-Governor Draper, whose active opposition to the organization of workingmen is well known.

The plain people of the State could have found no stronger man for Lieutenant-Governor than E. Gerry Brown. Labor leaders of the State have united in issuing a call to working people generally to support him at the polls. Besides this action, at many meetings of Central Labor Unions and other councils of organized working men resolutions have been passed indorsing his candidacy and calling upon all friends of labor to do the same.

"Moran and Brown" is the slogan with which the united workingmen of Massachusetts, irrespective of party affiliations, will go into the fight this year.

It will be a strong slogan. The workingmen of Massachusetts will not forgive Governor Guild for rewarding President Dana of the Senate with a Superior Court judgship for his assistance in defeating the Overtime Bill any more than they would forgive and forget Governor John L. Bates' action in vetoing the same bill. They see in Moran, who stands for their principles, a candidate for whom they can consistently vote. And E. Gerry Brown, as his running mate, inspires them to enthusiasm and activity.

The "Flying Wedge" that defeated Bates will be repeated this year, but with even greater force. That all precedents in Massachusetts will be smashed and that E. Gerry Brown will be the next Lieutenant-Gvernor of the State, is the firm belief of united workingmen.

TAUNTON JOINS HOST OF UNION RALLY TO BROWN

Taunton, Sept. 29. Labor officials, members of the Wage Earners' Club and workingmen generally are highly elated over the opportunity they are to have this year to demonstrate by their votes that the people can stand together. President Charles G. Kidder of the Central Labor Union, who is also president of the local branch of the Independence League, said to-day:

"The opportunity of the labor man to vote for one of his own people has come in the nomination of E. Gerry Brown of Brockton to run for lieutenant governor with John B. Moran. Every workingman in Massachusetts knows his record. I don't see how one of them can fail to vote for him."

At a meeting of the Wage Earners' Club on Friday night, at which Mr. Brown and Dennis Driscoll, of Boston, Massachusetts secretary of the American Federation of Labor, were speakers, this sentiment found full and free vent in the reception accorded the Independence League candidate for Lieutenant-Governor when he entered the hall and when he spoke.

Executive Committeeman Thomas Houston of the Wage Earners, who is himself a candidate, with labor's endorsement, for the Legislature from the Fourth Bristol Representative district, had this to say: Brown is the candidate of the workingmen There can be no question that Mr. of the State. The convention, to which I was a delegate, and which was two-thirds wage earners, was almost unanimous for him. The people will be for him to winning numbers at the polls. There is no reason why any consistent labor man should not support Gerry Brown heart and soul."

TRADE UNIONISTS' VOTE OF LOWELL IS SOLID FOR BROWN FOR SECOND PLACE

Lowell, Sept. 29.—All the labor unionists of Lowell are with E. Gerry Brown for lieutenant governor. They feel sure the Independent League candidate can win—something no candidate other than a Republican has ever done in the State—and they are pledging to support him to a man, without regard to whether they are Democrats or Republicans.

Joseph F. Convery, president of the Lowell Trades and Labor Council and of the Lowell Wage Earners' Club, is enthusiastic in his indorsement of Brown.

"I hear nothing but words in his favor as I go about among the working men of the city," he said to-night. "His record is well known to every labor man. He has never had a word said against his character. His ability to fight against Lieutenant Governor Draper, the unfair employer, is unquestioned. His ability to hold the office of Lieutenant-Governor is as certain. The workingmen of the State believe in him, and I believe they will demonstrate their belief on election day by electing him. The labor vote of Lowell is with him solidly."

IT WILL HELP YOU
PE-RU-NA
FOR CATARRH IN ALL PARTS OF THE SYSTEM
IT RELIEVES COLDS, COUGHS GRIPPE AND ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

Recommending Pe-ru-na to Her Friends.

Mrs. Celeste Covell, formerly President of the Betsy Ross Educational and Benevolent Society, writes from 1432 Harrison street, Chicago, Ill.:

"Only those who have suffered with influenza and have been cured can appreciate how grateful I feel that such a splendid medicine as Peruna has been placed at the door of every man and woman. I only wish that all knew of its fine qualities.

"In cases of catarrh of the stomach and head I have seen some remarkable cures through its use. I consider your Peruna the finest remedy on the market and worthy of the confidence of all good people."

Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Alice J. Bordner, 1[illegible]1 Maple Ave., Harrisburg, Pa., writes:

"I have found a cure in Peruna. I cannot recommend Peruna enough. I also thank you for your kind attention to me. I am as well as could be ever since I began taking Peruna."

A Letter to the Public.

Mr. Tefft Johnson, 19[illegible]9 85th street, Bath Beach, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"In all my experiments with medicines in the effort to improve a condition impaired by overwork, I have found nothing that has done so much good as Peruna. As a tonic it is grand.

"I take pleasure in recommending it to professional people and to the public in general."

Praise for Pe-ru-na.

Miss Ella L. Matthews, box 111, Hill City, Tenn., writes:

"From experience I have decided that there could be no greater medicine in the world than Peruna. I am ever ready to praise Peruna to my friends."

Labor Appeals for Support of League Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor

To Labor Me[illegible] Massachusetts:

The sug[illegible] frequently made by representative bodies of labor men [illegible] litical parties should give recognition to our men and [illegible]res has borne fruit in the platform of principles adopted [illegible] he Independence League convention and in its nomination [illegible] E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant-Governor.

His recor[illegible] trade unionist, and the work he has accomplished, [illegible]ng and too well known to warrant any attempt at even [illegible]tline.

The imm[illegible] object at the present time is to secure an expression of [illegible]on from those who know of him and his work as to his [illegible]lity and capability to represent our cause on the public platf[illegible]rm and in the office of Lieutenant-Governor, for which he [illegible]minated.

It is am[illegible]he possibilities that the Republican party will nominate [illegible] consistent opponent of all that we have asked—Eben S. Draper, the present Lieutenant-Governor—and it is our d[illegible]re as it is, or should be, the desire of every worker that E. Gerry Brown as a labor representative may have the larg[illegible] opportunity to defeat him.

FITCHBURG LEADERS SEE FOE IN DRAPER AND CALL ON LABOR TO ELECT BROWN

Fitchburg, Sept. 29.—The nomination by the Independence League of E. Gerry Brown for Lieutenant Governor has met with much satisfaction among the labor element in this city. Every union man in Fitchburg is opposed to Eben S. Draper. The Iron Moulders' Union is especially against him, because of his unfair treatment of their members.

Charles W. Tinkam of this city, president of the Moulders' Union and financial secretary of the Central Labor Union, said to-day that he was for Brown first, last and all the time.

Oscar A. Gabriel, president of the Barbers' Union, said: "For twenty-five years we have been unable to elect the right Lieutenant Governor for the laboring man, but at last the time has come when the right man has appeared in the person of E. Gerry Brown. Of course we're with him."

Joseph D. O'Keefe, president of the Central Labor Union and of the Carpenters' Union, said: "In my opinion the League is for purified politics. I think the choice of Mr. Brown is for the best interests of all labor men. He has been the champion of labor for twenty years."

John J. Sweeney, President of the Cigar Makers' Union, said: "E. Gerry Brown is enthusiastic in labor's cause and for many years has been an indefatigable worker to better the wage earners. He will have their votes."

William J. Deighnan, former President of the Central Labor Union and Secretary of the Cigar Makers, said: "The Independence League nominees, in my opinion, are the true friends of the laboring men, and a new and square deal in politics will begin when both Moran and Brown are elected."

W. R. Linehan, secretary of the moulders, said: "In my opinion John B. Moran and E. Gerry Brown will secure the vote of every union man in this city."

James O'Neil, president of the Independence League and a well known labor leader, said: "The strength of Moran showed up in this city Wednesday night when Moran carried the caucuses by a two to one majority. Every labor man in this city is highly pleased with the indorsement of Brown throughout the State by the unions, and all trades unionists in this city will make a strong effort to secure his election. The labor men would throw their votes into the air rather than vote for the enemy of labor, Eben S. Draper."

MORAN LEADERS AGREE ON CONVENTION PROGRAM

Ex-Mayor John P. Feeney, formerly of Woburn, but now of Ward 10, for temporary chairman.

Mayor John P. Kane of Lawrence for permanent chairman.

George Fred Williams to nominate John B. Moran for Governor.

Charles S. Hamlin to second the nomination of Moran.

That is part of the program agreed upon yesterday at a conference of District Attorney Moran's close friends at historic Room 8 in the Quincy House.

Those at the conference which followed dinner were District Attorney Moran, George Fred Williams, Granville S. MacFarland and ex-Mayor John P. Feeney. The situation was thoroughly discussed and the details of the convention gone over.

The conference was in session for more than two hours. Much attention was paid to the Republican party over Governor Guild and the agitation of Eugene N. Foss, together with the record of the Republican administration on Beacon Hill, all going to show that the conditions for Democratic success were never more encouraging.

Willias to Name Moran.

District Attorney Moran was a good listener to all that was said at the conference, only occasionally offering a suggestion, but although pointing out the importance of the responsibility placed upon him by the Democratic party.

Features of the platform were gone over and the ideas of the candidate are to be carefully considered in making a declaration of principles.

The chairmanship of the convention having been declined by Mr. Williams, his duty will be to present the name of the district attorney for Governor.

Mr. Williams's speech placing Mr. Moran in nomination will be along new lines entirely, taking into consideration State issues to a large degree and particularly the corporation problem now so prominent in legislation and also in the political situation.

Chairman Quincy, who will call the convention to order, will yield control of that body to the one delegated by the Moran delegates. The Moran people feel that inasmuch as the responsibility rests upon them they should have the entire control. Mr. Quincy sustains this contention.

For Attorney General.

By a peculiar coincidence, the conference was held in the same room where Quincy, Corbett, Fitzgerald, Donovan, Kennedy and Keliher in days gone by used to hold forth as "the Board of Strategy" and shape the destiny of the Boston Democracy and incidentally the affairs of the party in the whole state.

There are three candidates now being urged for the Democratic nomination for attorney general. They are Frank S. Richardson of Essex, James H. Vahey of Watertown and Judge D. L. V. Moffet of Boston. Richardson appears to have the inside, having been an original Moran man.

The Democratic State Committee meets at the Revere House next Wednesday at 2 o'clock P. M. The committee on resolutions will then be announced as will also the permanent chairman and other offices of the convention which is to be held the next day.

WANT JOHN P. FEENEY TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN OF STATE CONVENTION

District Attorney John B. Moran's friends want John P. Feeney as temporary chairman of the Democratic State convention, which will nominate the public prosecutor of Suffolk County for Governor of Massachusetts.

After Chairman Josiah Quincy of the Democratic State Committee read the primary returns which showed that Mr. Moran would have such an overwhelming, resistless support in the convention as to make it folly to even suggest another man's name to the delegates, he said that he would fight no longer against the District Attorney's nomination.

Forman notice of this was taken yesterday when Jeremiah J. McCarthy, a delegate from Ward 10, wrote Chairman Quincy as follows:

"As it has been stated by the present chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee that it is your purpose to put no obstacles in the way of the organization of the committee next Monday by Mr. Moran's friends, I beg to say that on your opening of the convention as chairman of the State Committee, I shall in behalf of Mr. Moran's friends offer a motion that Mr. John P. Feeney be made temporary chairman of the convention."

QUINCY WILL NOT RESIGN UNTIL THE CONVENTION MEETS

Josiah Quincy, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, when asked if he was going to resign his place as chairman, said:

"I shall not impede the progress of Mr. Moran's candidacy for Governor. The people have declared their choice. As to resigning, I shall not do so until the convention meets, or probably at the meeting of the entire State Committee."

"Is it your intention to bolt?"

"Certainly not. I never thought of such a thing and shall accept the verdict of the convention."

Thomas A. Mullen, once Mayor Quincy's secretary and now member of the Boston Schoolhouse Commission, said:

"My vote and voice are with District Attorney John B. Moran for Governor. He won the nomination fairly, and I believe he can be elected Governor."

G. LORING BRIGGS DECLARES HE WILL NOT BOLT MORAN

G. Loring Briggs of Brookline, an opponent of District Attorney John B. Moran, denies the statement that he intends to bolt. He said to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter:

"It is no such thing. I opposed John B. Moran for the nomination as I had a perfect right to do. He is now the choice of the majority of the Democrats of the State as the results show and I obey the will of the majority just the same as I would expect the Moran men to do had the conditions been reversed. If I was a bolter, do you think I would be supporting George Fred Williams's candidate for the State committee?"

SCHOFIELD, DARED TO RUN, WILL STAND FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

Senator George A. Schofield, of Ipswich, was dared into running for Congress in the Sixth District against Congressman A. P. Gardner, son-in-law of Senator Lodge.

Somebody down in Essex county said Schofield was trying for the county commissionership and was afraid to run for Congress. He says he will now run, even if he gets only seven votes.

FURNITURE MEN USE SEAL FOR ASSOCIATION.

Emblem Will Be Displayed in Stores for Benefit of Customers.

OFFICERS SAY PLAN HAS PROVEN SUCCESS

Several of the largest house furnishing houses in Boston, forming what is known as the Home Furnishers' Association of Massachusetts, declare that after six months' existence, they have one of the strongest and most equitable retail merchants' associations in the country. A seal has just been adopted and enlarged reproductions of [illegible] will be displayed in the establishments of the firms who who are members of the association.

The president of the association is [illegible] Osgood, and [illegible] McLeod is treasurer. The organization is maintained principally for the benefit of retail dealers and their customers.

The principle of co-operation, the greatest good to the greatest number, and the promotion of the welfare of the retail furniture trade through its protection of the customer and his interests, forms the basis of the organization.

Every plank in their platform is a sound principle in itself, embracing the protection of their patrons, affording them not only courteous but strictly honorable treatment, and as further evidence of their honesty of purpose, it is provided that in the practice of individual business policy by a member, where such member is found guilty of improper practices, taking unfair advantage of customers or in any way violating a high standard of moral business ethics, he may be punished by expulsion from the organization.

The purchasing public will, it is declared, receive great benefits through the influence and principles of the association, in which so many of the prominent retail furniture dealers are interested throughout the State.

MORAN'S LIEUTENANTS, VICTORY ACHIEVED, NOW MAKING UP LOST SLEEP

Shrewd Adviser in Moran Campaign for the Gubernatorial Nomination

EX MAYOR FEENEY, of WOBURN

Former Mayor of Woburn, and Active Manager of Moran Campaign in the Field

Remarkable Political Work Done by G. S. MacFarland and John P. Feeney.

Secretary of war for John B. Moran, Grenville S. MacFarland of Cambridge, and general in charge of the forces in the field, John P. Feeney of Boston, are now making up the sleep they lost during the recent fierce campaign before the primaries, at which the forces of the machine Democracy were completely routed.

Now that the battle is over they are content to allow the other members of the Moran cabinet to arrange the terms of the unconditional surrender with Quincy and Sullivan.

Messrs. MacFarland and Feeney are fine samples of the young men in politics. The former is 28 and the latter 34. Mr. MacFarland was born in Salem, N. Y., but came to Harvard for the finishing touches to his education. And he has lived in the University city ever since. He is a natural politician and tactician. He has the faculty of making things happen the way he wants them to happen.

Mr. MacFarland in this Moran campaign has done the engineering and the planning to a very large extent, and is entitled to a great deal of the credit for the result.

Mr. Feeney is a complete contrast to Mr. MacFarland. Where the latter is reserved and calculating, Feeney is breezy and impulsive. Feeney has been the "mixer" of the Moran leaders. When the opposition made claims in certain cities Feeney hied himself speedily to those places and mixed with the knowing ones. While the conservatives were writing essays on pure Democracy and making extravagant claims, Feeney was in some distant city or town making friends. And he made friends wherever he went.

Mr. Feeney is a rare type of the decent hustler. He was mayor of Woburn from 1898 to 1903. He is famous as the "boy mayor" of Woburn, and holds the record for youthfulness as a mayor. After the convention he will continue to have a large hand in the campaign, and is being boomed for chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

BOSTON'S IRISH RUSH TO GREET LEADER O'CONNOR

Half a Thousand Leave Hub Today to Attend Reception and Convention in Philadelphia.

From four to five hundred Irish-Americans of Greater Boston leave to-day to join in the welcome which will be extended to T. P. O'Connor and Edward Blake to-morrow in Philadelphia, one day before the opening of the first session of the national convention of the United Irish League of America. Preparations for the reception to the great exponent of the cause of Irish liberty upon the event of his visit to this city on Sunday, October 2, are already well under way.

The opening of the convention in Philadelphia will take place on Tuesday. Prior to that a mass meeting will be held, at which Governor Pennypacker will preside. Mayor Weaver, the highest State officials, many Congressmen, Archbishop Ryan and many other dignitaries also will be present.

Represent Irish Party.

Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Blake are to attend this national convention of the United Irish League as the special representatives of Mr. Redmond and the Irish party of the British Isles.

The deliberations of the convention will be of unusual importance in view of the certainty that a measure of self government for Ireland is to be introduced in the British Parliament next Spring.

The Boston Central Branch of the United Irish League has been making every preparation to give both Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Blake as well as Mrs. O'Connor, who is an American woman, a memorable reception. The Irish visitors will arrive in this city late next Saturday night. A grand reception is to be held in their honor in the Boston Theatre on Sunday night, at which both Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Blake will speak.

Fitzpatrick Heads Delegates.

Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, national treasurer of the United Irish League of America, heads the Massachusetts delegation at Philadelphia. The committee which is arranging for the gathering at the Boston Theatre is composed of Messrs. Maxwell, M. J. Jordan, M. A. Toland and Mr. Riley.

Among those who will join in honoring T. P. O'Connor and Edward Blake in Boston on next Sunday are Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, other State and city officials and practically all the leading Irishmen and Irish sympathizers in New England.

ABOLISH PENALTY OF DEATH, SAYS NOMINEE.

Democratic Candidate for Governor Declares Capital Punishment an Exhibition of Revenge—Campaign Issue

New Haven, Sept. 29. The Tucker-Page case in Boston led Charles F. Thayer of Norwich, nominee on the Democratic ticket for Governor, to make a campaign issue of capital punishment. He has put an anti-capital punishment plank into his party platform by his letter of acceptance to-day demanding the abolition of the death penalty in Connecticut. He says:

"Death as a penalty is not punishment but an exhibition of revenge. It is barbarous to hang a human being by the neck until dead. The million inhabitants constituting this State have no more right collectively to destroy human life than has each of the individuals separately. The crime for which death is made the penalty is seldom established except by circumstantial evidence and the verdict guilty often rests upon the identity of an individual, both most uncertain factors in a jury trial.

"Justice never can be done the innocent man hanged by the State, nor to his kin, nor can the act ever be atoned. The civilization of the present day demands that all chances of such a wrong be eliminated by a change in the law."

PILES.

Pastor's Wife in Southern City Restored to Health by the Wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure.

We Want Every Pile Sufferer to Test This Great Cure at Our Expense. Send Your Name and Address For a Free Trial Package.

"In 1900 my wife was attacked with piles and suffered from them 4 years and was unable to attend to her domestic work. We tried many remedies but all failed, and she gave up in despair. Mr. Edwin Shaver, of Salisbury, N. C., who was cured with you, Pyramid Pile Cure recommended it as a sure cure to me. I have used 5 boxes of it, and part of a box of salve on my wife, and she has been cured. May God bless you and your remedy. Yours very truly, M. G. Hoskins, Pastor Nottaway, Va., Presbyterian Church."

We want to send you a free trial of this remedy at once, so you can see with your own eyes what it can do.

You cure yourself with perfect ease in your own home, and for little expense.

Pyramid Pile Cure gives you prompt relief. It heals sores and ulcers, reduces congestion and inflammation, and takes away pain, itching and irritation.

After you have tried the sample treatment, and you are satisfied, you can get a full regular-sized treatment of Pyramid Pile Cure at your druggist's for 50 cents. If he hasn't it send us the money and we will send you the treatment at once, by mail, in plain sealed package.

Send your name and address at once for a trial of this marvelous, quick sure cure. Address Pyramid Drug Co., 54 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

AUTUMN OPENING

Of Imported Hats and Exclusive Models of Our Own Designing

OUR semi-annual exhibitions of French Hats and our own clever adaptations and equally charming original designs are widely recognized as the leading fashion events of the season. We have planned this opening display to occur a week later than other houses in order to present our patrons with the very latest Paris fashions. As a result we are enabled to offer for your inspection a unique collection of models, illustrating the latest ideas of the leading fashion creators—Esther Meyer, Caroline Reboux, [illegible] Paulette and Berthe, Georgette and many others.

CHILDREN'S MILLINERY

We are special caterers to the wants of the little folks. The new parlor on Temple Place side, opened last season, and devoted exclusively to the display and sale of TRIMMED HATS for GIRLS AND MISSES, has proved an unqualified success. Here, in comparative privacy, free from the confusion naturally incident to the more crowded sections of the department, mothers can bring their children and make selections with comfort and satisfaction. This beautiful collection of Children's Hats presents the widest range of style, from the simple hat appropriate for school wear to the most elaborate confection of the Paris milliner.

TAILORED AND OUTING HATS

A very comprehensive showing of the best productions of the leading makers of the popular Outing and Tourist Hats awaits your inspection. Also a matchless array of Flowers and Foliages, Feathers, Wings, Breasts, Quills, ornaments of every description. Untrimmed and semi-trimmed hats in French Felts, Velvets, Hatters' Plush, Silk Braids, etc., in almost endless variety.

A cordial invitation is extended to the ladies of Boston and New England to attend this opening exhibition of imported and domestic millinery.

BEAUTIFUL SHOES

$3.00—$3.50—$4.00

YOU are invited to inspect our display of the new Autumn Shoe Fashions. Particularly do we direct attention to the new "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes. Not only will they appeal to your artistic sense, but the very stamp on the sole is our double assurance that the quality is honest through and through. And think what this means when, because of the high cost of leather, so many shoes have been deliberately cheapened to deceive you into the belief that you are getting former values at old prices!

Against this deception the very prestige of the "Dorothy Dodd" trademark is your protection. Its makers cannot afford to lower the standard by which it has achieved the most phenomenal shoe success ever known. If you would have prettier and more stylish feet, let us fit you with a pair of these new "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes. They come in all styles and leathers, and for all services.

Henry Siegel Co. Sewing Machine Club

Three weeks ago to-morrow we said we had won the consent of one of the great Sewing Machine Companies to sell one style of their machines at our own price if we'd conceal the name.

That was winning something—the material something. The ethical part will come to them by and by.

Now, to make the victory as great as possible, we had to conjure the most economical way to market these machines—and, of course, that meant a club.

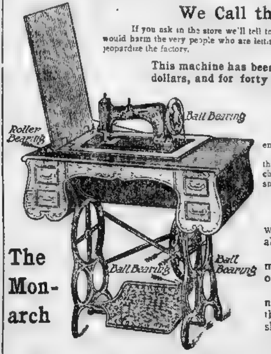
So we announced that a club opened that day.

The rapidity with which members are coming in showed how better methods and real economy were appreciated.

We Call the Machine "The Monarch"

If you ask in the store we'll tell the maker's names, but we dare not print them [illegible] the publication would harm the very people who are letting us help you. The lovers of undue profits would raise a row that would jeopardize the factory.

This machine has been sold by traveling agents for as much as sixty dollars, and for forty dollars—depended on the agent and the chance.



The Mon- arch

Our Club Price Is $23.75

$2 at joining; the other in amounts of $1 a week.

We deliver each member's machine as fast as we can [illegible] the references and test the machines—usually within three or four [illegible]

Each machine is unboxed and tested in every way [illegible] going to you that we may know to a certainty that all parts are working [illegible] The machine is so simple in construction that it will give no [illegible] starts smoothly.

Look Squarely at the Proposition

In appearance, the machine will appeal to any man or woman. The oak case is in Colonial style—pretty now and always.

It is a drop-head construction—Automatic lift—the mere turning of the leaf sinking the head of the machine out of sight and out of the dust.

In construction—oh, if we could just print that name—not a descriptive word would be needed. The machine has the improved lock stitch: has positive feed, self-threading shuttle; automatic bobbin winder—and is

Full Ball Bearing—as the Picture Shows

Coming from one of the great sewing machine factories direct, we can guarantee that parts and repairs can [illegible] gotten.

We send these attachments with each machine. Ruffler with shirring plate, tucker, six hemmers, one b[illegible] one narrow hemmer that sews on lace at same operation, one quilter and all necessary tools.

We are authorized to warrant the machines for five years—which means that if breakage occurs from an [illegible] in manufacture and a break shows a flaw if one ever existed, the machine is fixed for nothing. Better, we guarantee [illegible] machine shall continue to do good sewing—and that's your concern.

We promised only three hundred machines, but this movement is marking an epoch in household economy, and three hundred machines "are not a drop in the bucket"—so we sent for the comptroller of the organization and put it to him [illegible] You've let us give the public a taste of fairness. May we promise a meal?" And, after three hours' talk and a luncheon, he said: "We will furnish machines for your club up to the limit of 50 machines a week."

That isn't enough, but we're grateful. Don't needlessly delay—join now. Sewing machines are sold in basement.

JAMES G. BLAINE, 3D, GIVES UP CLERKSHIP IN BANK TO TAKE UP HARVARD COURSE

GRANDSON OF MAINE STATESMAN, AND HIS MOTHER.

Young Mr. Blaine, who has abandoned a banker's career to enter Harvard, does so at the request of his step-father, Dr. William Bull, a Harvard graduate and celebrated surgeon, who married the divorced wife of James G. Blaine, Jr., father of the young man who, this Fall, takes up his college studies at Cambridge.

Athletic and Ambitious, Grandson of Statesman Is Likely to Shine in College Sports.

James G. Blaine, 3d, enters Harvard this fall upon the urgent request of his stepfather, Dr. William T. Bull, of New York, the celebrated surgeon, and his uncle, ex-Congressman Melville Bull, both of whom are graduates of Harvard. In order to begin his collegiate course, the young man had to give up his position in the Day and Night Bank, Fifth avenue, New York, but was told that he could return at any time.

James G. Blaine is the son of James G. Blaine, Jr. He was born in 1887, a little over a year after his father's marriage to Miss Marie Nevin, a New York society belle and a member of one of the old Knickerbocker families. Mr. and Mrs. Blaine were divorced in 1892 and the following year Mrs. Blaine was married to Dr. Bull. One of the conditions of the divorce was that she was to have the custody of the son. Mr. Blaine is somewhat of an athlete and no doubt will take part in many Harvard games. He is an adept at golf and tennis, while his reputation as a sprinter [illegible]

[illegible] Augusta, Me., three years ago young Blaine was playing tennis with a number of friends one day, when Edward Flinn, a lineman employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, at work on the top of a pole, struck a live wire on which there was a heavy voltage. He fell unconscious, but his body was caught by a cross arm some distance from the ground. Flinn's fellow workmen in their bewilderment did not know how to release him.

Young Blaine took in the situation at [illegible] picket fence, [illegible] feet [illegible] and with the aid of Flinn's fellow workmen carried the [illegible] to the ground. Blaine did not leave him until he was safely [illegible] in the hospital. Flinn finally recovered.

FOUND IN BED, DEAD FROM HEART DISEASE

Quincy, Sept. 29.—Miss Caroline R. Gordon, seventy three years old, was found dead in bed at her room in the Hotel Greenleaf to-day. She had been troubled with heart disease and evidently died very suddenly, as she was lying on the bed fully dressed.

Do Your Meals Fit?

Do You Feel Snug and Comfortable Around Your Waist Line After A Hearty Meal?

Did your last meal taste deliciously good to you, and did you eat all you wanted? Could you have patted your rotundity in glee and felt proud of your appetite and of your good strong stomach? Do you feel rosy now because your last meal gave you no inconvenience whatever? If not, you have dyspepsia in some form, and probably never realized it.

If you have the least trouble in your stomach after eating, no matter how little or how much you eat, there is trouble brewing and you must correct it at once.

Most all stomach troubles come from poor, weak, scanty gastric juice, that precious liquid which ought to turn your food [illegible]

If you have [illegible] your gastric juice is weak. If you have sour risings or belchiness, your food is fermenting; your gastric juice is weak. If you have loss of appetite, your gastric juice is [illegible]. If you have a bloaty feeling or aversion to food, your gastric juice is [illegible]

You need something in your stomach to supply the [illegible] which is scanty, and to give [illegible] to the weak gastric juice. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing.

Now think—one grain of one of the ingredients of these wonderful little tablets digests [illegible] grains of food. They are several times more powerful than the gastric juice in a good strong powerful stomach. They actually digest your food for you. Besides they increase the flow of gastric juice, just what you need to get all the good possible out of everything you eat. You will never have that "lump of lead" in your stomach, or any other stomach trouble after taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Then everything you eat will be digested; it will give you strength, vim, energy and a rosy disposition. You'll feel good all around your waist line after every meal and it will make you feel good all over.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make you feel happy after eating a good, hearty meal. Take one or two after eating. You'll feel fine—then your meals will fit, no matter what or when you eat.

We want to send you a sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets free of charge, so you can test them yourself and be convinced. After you have [illegible] sample you will be so satisfied that you will go to the nearest drug-store and get a 50c box.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 52 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

WONDER GOAT IS BE FEATURE OF ELKS' OUTING.

Brethren of Boston and Malden Are to Go on an Excursion to Saugus Next Saturday, and a Good Time Is Planned

A [illegible] not the least [illegible] of the [illegible] and outing of Boston and Malden lodges of Elks to take place Saturday at [illegible] Park, Saugus.

There is the [illegible] word of Joe Shafer to the effect that this is no ordinary goat. Shafer is putting in his spare time looking out for the advertising of the outing, the notices, placards, posters, transportation, commissary, entertainment, financial, social and other details. He is also the [illegible] man for the racket and the goat is a result of a deep thought stunt he put up.

"This is no common or farm goat," says Shafer, "but the finest goat that ever wagged a beard. I was telling Larry Sullivan about this superior goat and Larry says that the Puck goat that the Knights of St. Brendan had for their field day was a better beast on account of its being able to [illegible] in purest Attic Greek.

"Attic Greek is it? This Kerry goat wouldn't [illegible] with my goat in a conversazione. Say, the things that this goat of mine can do. He's benevolent and protective, being an Elk goat of course. Never mind what we're going to do with him at the outing. Just come along and you'll find out."

Besides this bearded wonder there are to be all sorts of attractions for the Elks and their guests. There will be four good horse-racing events, field and track sports and a baseball contest between Boston and Malden lodges for a silver shield. Both lodges are practising.

It is expected that there will be a large feminine contingent present. In the Elks' circles of acquaintance, pretty girls are as thick as peas in a pod. The fact that there is dancing will probably make all these girls want to be present at the outing.

As the outing is to last from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., there will be arrangements for feeding the multitude. Refreshments from sandwiches up can be procured on the grounds.

THREAT OF LEXOW PROBE FOR BOSTON STIRS POLITICIANS

Searching Inquiry Into Control of City Affairs by Next Legislature Is Probable.

A Lexow for Boston.

That is just what the [illegible], both Republican and Democratic, [illegible] fearing now, and a searching affair it promises to be should the Legislature so decide.

Not only City Hall, but the County Court House ring and a few side [illegible] on the [illegible] commissions [illegible] over [illegible] what the [illegible] governed [illegible] plan is [illegible] the effort being made [illegible] Thomas J. Grady [illegible] the House from Ward [illegible] One of the candidates [illegible] can be [illegible] for Grady, thus [illegible] what he desires, a man of experience to combat the efforts of Representative Martin M. Lomasney should [illegible] direct [illegible] towards City Hall.

So as to give the Lexow [illegible] on the appearance of a square deal, some of the Republican linen stored away in the archives of the departed police commission, the county court house ring and other symbols of graft are likely to see the daylight.

While the Governor's Council is a nice place to recline in leather covered arm chairs, the scene of activity, the place where the battle is to wage the fiercest is to be in the House of Representatives in plain view of the Sacred Codfish.

The recent Riley-Dixon fight for the Senate has left many sore spots, and with Lomasney in the House, there will be something doing on Beacon Hill.

Such an investigation would furnish material for a municipal campaign which the Republicans are anxious to obtain.

"Tom" Grady, as a Representative, would be in a position to fight Lomasney should he seek a Lexow inquiry. Should Grady go to the House he might seek a place on the Metropolitan Affairs Committee, so as to be able to meet Lomasney's attack on the Mayor.

Boston Clubman by Successive Triumphs Now Owns Trophy of the Middlesex Hunt.

In the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage of Massachusetts society people, August H. Higginson, the popular sportsman and Boston society and clubman, mounted on his own horse Owalssa, yesterday won the sixth annual steeplechase meeting of the Middlesex Hunt. The chase was over the new steeplechase course at the Kennels.

This is the third annual steeplechase race that Mr. Higginson has won in succession. In each of the three events he rode his own horses under the assumed name of Mr. Chetland. In 1904 Mr. Higginson won the master plate on his horse, Balford; in 1905 on his horse, Kinnshaw, and again yesterday on Owalssa. The master plate now becomes the absolute personal property of Mr. Higginson.

PAWTUCKET G. O. P. SHY OF CANDIDATES

Pawtucket, Sept. 29. The Republicans have fixed the date of their caucuses and city convention and are now looking around for candidates. The caucuses will be held on October 8 and the city convention comes October 15. The leaders are finding trouble in making a selection of candidates.

ST. PETER'S RECTOR RESIGNS.

At a meeting of the vestry of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Jamaica Plain, last evening, the rector, the Rev. Oscar Fitzland Moore, Jr., read his letter of resignation, to take effect Oct. 15. Mr. Moore has been the rector of the church about three years.

FORTUNE IN COAL

Put your Savings in BRITISH COLUMBIA AMALGAMATED COAL. The investment will give a return of a hundred fold in a short time and provide for you a source of income that will last as long as you live, and increase in value from year to year.

We have only 100,000 shares to sell at the introductory price of 25c. per share. This is the first allotment offered to the public, and it will soon be gone. There never was known an instance yet in the Pacific States where coal mining was a failure. On the contrary, it has always been a great success from a financial point of view.

In three years from now, when at least two of the four great properties will be in operation and producing raw coal on a big scale, these same shares will be worth at least $10.00 per share from the dividends it then will pay, and in seven years from now we fully believe that the British Columbia Amalgamated stock will reach the hundred dollar mark, because by that time all of the four coal properties now controlled by the Amalgamated Company will then be operated on a big scale, and coke ovens will then be in full operation, producing coal and coke on a large scale. It is really from the coke that the biggest profit to the company is to be derived, and it is the intention of the company to erect coke ovens as soon as possible. The profit will increase from year to year as new markets are found for our products, and the enlargement of production will keep pace with the enlarged demand and consumption.

Our coal is a high-class cooking coal, absolutely free from sulphur, and the many assays made of the coal show the following average:

Fixed Carbon	61.47
Volatile	31.42
Ash	3.85
Moisture	3.26
Sulphur	None

The coal generates a heat of 14,000 British thermal units, and is equal to the very best bituminous coal in the United States, such as the Cumberland and the Pocahontas, whose coal averages from 13,000 to 14,000 heat units (British thermal).

British Columbia Amalgamated Coal is the best and safest investment on the market today, and recommended by bankers and merchants.

A SECOND CROW'S NEST

The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company was organized in British Columbia in the year 1896, ten years ago. It was the only coal stock that had ever been offered to the public at large in the Dominion of Canada up to that time. The stock was put on the market in the spring of 1896 and offered to the people at ten cents a share. This first allotment was sold to school teachers, clerks, merchants, doctors, servant girls, carpenters and men and women in all walks of life. This brought about the most cheering and gratifying results, and poor men awoke to find themselves independently rich from a small investment. For $100 one thousand shares were secured, and today this amount of stock has a cash valuation of $325,000, and last year 1000 shares brought a dividend of $10,600 ($10.60 per share). Coal experts and engineers who have seen our properties and those of the Crow's Nest are fully agreed that ours are as good if not better, for the reason that we are 500 miles nearer tide-water (Pacific coast), and our coal is superior for steam, domestic and smithing purposes and fully equal for foundry and smelters' coke. Our company controls 17,500 acres of coal land, estimated by coal experts to contain one billion four hundred million tons of coal, such a vast quantity that the supply would last 400 years at an output of 10,000 tons a day. One engineer has estimated that our land on Coldwater River has a net valuation of one billion five hundred million dollars, with the coal in the ground as a basis of calculation. Our shares will be increasing in value from year to year the same as has been the case with the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company's stock. In the year of 1900 those shares were worth $36.00 from the dividend it then paid. In 1903 it had reached the $100 mark, and in the fall of the same year it sold for $125, and today its market price is $325.

For $250 you can now buy 1000 shares of BRITISH COLUMBIA AMALGAMATED COAL which in a few years will pay you yearly in revenue more than you can earn in any capacity as a salaried man. For $100 you can secure 400 shares, and so on.

Please call at our office or write for prospectus and reports, etc. If you want to secure a block of stock of the first allotment at 25c per share we advise you to act quickly, as we have already disposed of more than one-half of the first 100,000 shares. The next issue will be sold at an advance of price.

We furnish the best of bank references.

MORAN?

Will Moran Be Governor?

I Think So.

Don't You?

The people can be trusted with their own. Intelligent Republicans will unite with the Democratic masses to unseat the bosses and oust the corporations from political control.

This is not a partisan fight.

I am a Roosevelt Republican and with thousands of other Roosevelt men shall vote for Moran.

Democratic admirers of Hearst and Bryan will join us at the polls as they did when we gave Roosevelt a tremendous and unprecedented majority.

Hearst will be Governor of New York.

Moran will be Governor of Massachusetts.

In the next Democratic presidential convention there will be nothing and nobody inside but Hearst and Moran.

Signed,

TIMOTHY W. COAKLEY.

STOCKS ACTIVE PRICES ON RISE MONEY EASY THROUGH SHAW ACTION READING LEADS

Boston Coppers Are Strong, and Some New Records Are Made in the Day's Dealings.

The stock market [illegible] advance yesterday. It was a slight one, but as it followed a similar upturn in prices which occurred Friday prices have had a material advance from those of earlier in the week, when stocks were [illegible] and weak.

Passed 600,000 Share Mark.

The total transactions in New York yesterday passed the 600,000 share mark. The average closing of the sixteen leading stocks was [illegible] higher than on Friday. Only a few net declines were shown at the close. Sugar gained 1¼ to 130, Anaconda [illegible] at 2[illegible], Baltimore & Ohio gained 1½ to 122⅞, St. Paul lost ⅝ to 1[illegible], Delaware & Hudson gained 1¾ to 2[illegible], Norfolk & Western advanced 1½ to [illegible]. Northern Pacific lost 1¼ to 21[illegible], Pennsylvania lost ⅜ to 141⅛, and Wisconsin Central gained 1⅛ to 2[illegible].

The Boston copper shares were again in good demand during the week. The volume of business was slightly decreased yesterday and Friday and was marked by more or less speculative [illegible]. Certain specialties came in for an unusually large share of attention and advanced to new high record prices for the year.

The local copper shares were unsteady at the opening yesterday but became strong after the first hour [illegible] of the strength in New York. Butte Coalition was the strongest feature, many local buying orders appearing. [illegible] has not of late been so [illegible] of this specialty for New York account as was formerly the case. Centennial was also conspicuous, advancing 1½ to 27½ at the close.

In Butte Coalition about 2,000 shares were offered at 40, but the stock nevertheless advanced at that price, making a new high quotation. Shannon was strong and active, closing at 11[illegible], the [illegible] highest price touched [illegible] Telephone advanced [illegible] and [illegible] a net gain of 1¼, closing at 1[illegible]. Osceola gained 1[illegible] to 11[illegible] and Calumet & Hecla rose 1 to 700, but other changes were insignificant.

BIG INTERESTS BUYING ON EVERY BREAK

New York, Sept. 29.—The stubbornness with which insiders continue to buy stocks on every break has disconcerted the trading fraternity in Wall Street. To sell stocks short at present is in nearly every case to lose money.

The breaks are so sudden and unexpected that few traders get any advantage from them. The rebounds are so swift that those who sell short in the break are forced to cover at a loss. The result is that the short interest is not as large as usual at this time of the year.

The insiders are taking the position just now that Europe has begun to buy American stocks and must not be frightened off by any sharp declines. This is a development of the last few weeks and interferes with the plan [illegible] to have [illegible] smash in the stock market early in October. This smash was planned for sentimental effect, but now that the time has arrived when it must be accomplished, if ever, it is found that too many interests friendly to the market would suffer.

Gold in great quantities can still be extracted from Europe because of the tremendous credit which Americans have there. Purchases of stock for European investment are reducing this credit rapidly, but is having the same effect as gold imports, as it reduces the volume of stock that must be provided for in New York. The outlook for the immediate future, therefore, is an irregular market, with a tendency to advance spasmodically.

ELIOT NAMES HARVARD'S NEWSBOY STUDENT TO-DAY

Noted Men Gather to Hear Announcement Which Is First Fruit of $5,000 Fund.

The name of the first Boston newsboy who is to enter Harvard University through winning the newsboys scholarship established by Boston Newsboys Protective Union No. 9,077, A. F. of L., will be announced to-day by President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard.

Only a little over one year ago a $5,000 fund was started for the scholarship by an initial contribution of $100 by the Newsboys' Union. The idea was taken up with enthusiasm. The BOSTON AMERICAN supported it strongly. Then came an examination to decide which newsboy should be selected as the first one to benefit by the scholarship.

The announcement will be made at the inaugural exercises of the scholarship, to be held at 2:30 this afternoon in Ford Hall, Ashburton place. Leading citizens of Boston will attend the exercise.

In addition to President Eliot, the speaker will include Rabbi Charles Fleischer, Coadjutor Archbishop William H. O'Connell, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald and Chairman James J. Storrow of the Boston School Board.

Proposed the Idea.

The presiding officer will be Nathan S. Sodekson, an ex-president of the Newsboys' Union, who proposed the idea of this scholarship. Samuel A. Levine, a member of the union, will read an essay written by himself on "Newsboys."

In addition, the following public men will attend: Judge Harvey N. Baker of the Juvenile Court, General Charles H. Taylor, chairman of the Newsboys' [illegible] General Educational Board; W[illegible] Olin, Secretary of State; the Rev. Edward A. Horton, chaplain of the S[illegible] Meyer [illegible] Dean LeBaron R[illegible] and Dean Edgar Huidekoper Wells of Harvard [illegible] John D. [illegible], District Attorney John B. Moran, First Vice-President James Duncan of the American Federation of Labor, Dennis D. [illegible] of the State branch A. F. of L., Alderman Fred J. Kneeland, Frank H. McCarthy, President Martin T. Joyce of Boston Central Labor Union, John T. Cashman, J. Frank O'Hare, Robert T. Allen, Colonel W. E. Haskell of the Boston Herald, W. E. and E. A. Grozier of the Boston Post, L. M. Hammond of the Boston Transcript, W. R. Fairfield of the BOSTON AMERICAN, James H. Fahey of the Boston Traveler, C. E. L. Wingate of the Boston Journal, Thomas Downey of the Boston Globe, B. F. Keith, the theatrical proprietor; Judge W. B. H. Emmons, Professor Frank Parsons and Henry L. Higginson.

Eliot Well Pleased.

The opinion of President Eliot concerning the fund was expressed in an interview he gave the BOSTON AMERICAN when the matter was first proposed, as follows:

"This plan to establish a newsboys' scholarship is pleasing to me. It indicates that the newsboys of Boston appreciate the advantage of education. It shows they have ambition. It indicates, from the beginning of the movement, that they are quick to comprehend the need of education in ordinary life. They should be encouraged. I shall be glad to have the Boston newsboys as students at Harvard."

RECORD CLASS TO ENTER WELLESLEY

Wellesley College will open this year with the largest freshman class in the history of the institution, over 300 students being registered.

During the past week a large number of them have returned, many of them having examinations and other matters to attend to.

The registration which was to have closed last evening has been postponed until next week so as to give the students which live a long distance from the college a chance to get back.

The college opens Tuesday morning and Dean Pendleton, who is taking President Hazard's place during her absence, will probably address the students in the College chapel in the morning.

RECOUNT OF VOTES MAKES TIE IN WARD 16.

By a recount of the Democratic vote cast in the primary last Tuesday, Councilman John D. McGivern and former Councilman William J. Lyons are tied for one of the Representative nominations from Ward 16. The city committee according to law will decide whose name shall appear upon the ballot. They will act upon the recommendation of the ward committee, which it is said is in control of the Lyons faction. One year ago a similar case in Ward 17, the tie between Thomas F. Curley and Michael J. McEttrick was decided by the ward and city committees in favor of Curley, but McEttrick, running as an independent was elected.

According to the ward returns Lyons won with a vote of 552 to McGivern's 5[illegible] but the recount gives each man 543 votes. Representative John M. McDonald wins the other nomination with a vote of [illegible]

The Election Commissioners when they quit for the day last evening had recounted the votes of ten wards but no material change was shown except in Ward 16 representative vote. The recount of the Kil[illegible]-Dixon vote for Senator in the Third Suffolk district showed but a slight variation from the press returns, Dixon maintaining his lead.

In the vote of Edward P. Barry and Thomas J. Grady for Councillor, the South Boston man who won out by the press returns, showed a net loss on the recount of ninety-six, while Grady lost sixty-three, making a net gain for Grady of thirty-three. The recount is not expected to show enough change to cut down Bar[illegible] lead of over 350. In Ward 9 there was a big change on the vote for State delegation, John Romeo, losing 201 votes on the recount, leaving him but twenty votes ahead of former Alderman David H. Bo[illegible] on the Bowen delegation.

Ward 16 in the Tenth District Congressional contest was recounted and O'Co[illegible] had a net gain of two over Edward Logan.

Monday the Commissioners will recount the vote of Wards 13, 14, 15, 17, 20 and 24 in the Congressional contest, Wards 19 and 22 in the Senatorial fight by which William W. Clarke defeated John J. Bu[illegible] by 42 votes.

VANDERBILT AUTO GOES UP IN FLAMES

Newport, R. I., Sept. 30.—In a $20,000 fire that destroyed the garage of John T. Bergen early this morning, Alfred G. Vanderbilt lost his $15,000 forty-horse power Mercedes automobile. Other machines in the garage were removed to places of safety, but the brakes on the Vanderbilt car were set, and it was impossible to drag the valuable racer from the building in time to save it.

The entire fire department was called to the scene of the fire and the firemen had a hard fight to keep the flames confined to the Bergen garage.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

B. & M. WRECKS DAM TO SAVE TAXES

North Adams, Sept. 29.—In order to save the expense of continuing to pay taxes on an unused property, the Boston & Maine Railroad Company is having a large dam in the Deerfield river destroyed by dynamite. The dam cost about $60,000 and was used for the purpose of securing power for the machinery operated in building the Hoosac tunnel.

COUNTERFEITING OF UNION LABEL, CHARGE

WHAT YOU WANT, Is Your Share of the Profits.
WHY YOU WANT IT, Is Because You Are Entitled to It.
HOW TO GET IT, Invest a Few Dollars in

The Equal Division Prospecting and Development Company

Incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts, with a capital of only $50,000.00, for the purpose of prospecting and developing mineral lands. Most mining properties invite the prospective investor to the West for a personal examination of mines and mining claims, and it is with the greatest of pleasure that we are able to present to our investors a proposition within easy reach of the Easterner. The methods adopted by this company are to send experienced prospectors over the mineralized lands of the Eastern belt, to locate such properties, that will make paying propositions, subdivide those properties into mining claims and develop them just enough to determine their value, then sell them to one of the many mining companies that are always rushing to secure such properties. We have already purchased several acres of just such mineral lands from which we have taken samples, of which the following assays made by State Chemist S. P. Sharples and Prof. Henry Carmichael, Ph. D., are the result.

ASSAYS.

SAMPLES MARKED 0 assayed	$14.47 Gold per ton
SAMPLES MARKED 1 assayed	1.52 Gold per ton.
SAMPLES MARKED X assayed	25.01 Gold per ton
NO MARK assayed	63.32 Gold per ton
SAMPLES MARKED 1XL assayed	32.25 Gold per ton
SAMPLES MARKED 4 assayed	1.24 Gold per ton
SAMPLES MARKED 00 assayed	81.75 Gold per ton
GRAND AVERAGE TOTAL	$32.08 Gold per ton

The original of these assays can be seen at our office.

OUR EXPERT'S REPORT.

After having our expert investigate this property we find in his report that it is very highly mineralized, well timbered, and has an abundance of water, also that the cost of mining and treating this ore will not exceed $3.50 per ton. He also states that while he has visited nearly every mining camp in the United States and Mexico, he has never seen better looking or more favorable formation in his life than this property. He also states that the silver carbonates we have are nearly pure silver and that they have only been found in three or four other places in the world. These carbonates are what made Leadville, Colorado, famous.

With this expert's report, together with the assayer's report, it ought to be conclusive to you, as it is to us, that this is one of the grandest opportunities ever offered to make a fortune, for thousands of dollars can be made on an investment in this company.

There is another feature about this property which we wish to call your attention to. That is, that there is on this belt a large quantity of an exceedingly fine grade of Mica. This, you all know, has come into use very extensively within the past few years by electrical manufacturers, and it is somewhat difficult for them to secure Mica of sufficient size, as they require it from six inches square upwards, and this Mica property of ours carries just the quality and size they need.

It seems that the wealthy and famous Cobalt district of Canada, recently developed, not only touches the New England States, but extends into them, and that rich mineral deposits are being located every day on the American side as well as on the Canadian, and we have been fortunate enough to locate them on this side of the Canadian line.

Few people in New England know that there are several mines being profitably worked here at the present time, one of which is employing upwards of one hundred men, and we understand that recently the Westinghouse people have made some large purchases of mining properties, and are operating them to-day. We do not hesitate to state that in the near future many other large corporations will follow in their steps. Would you not like to be interested in one of our mining claims, when such concerns are looking to buy them, which is bound to be the case, for we know we have the properties that will interest them.

There are certainly some advantages in our methods of operating that one cannot overlook. The original outlay is small, the risk is almost nothing, and, in the event of a lucky strike (which we have already made), the profits will surely be enormous, and, best of all, these profits are quickly and equally divided. There will be no waiting for years, as is usually the case, while the mines are undergoing their slow process of development.

Please bear in mind that this is the first company that has ever given the public an opportunity of this kind, the prospector dividing equally with the investor.

DON'T FORGET that thousands of dollars have been made on an investment of $10.00 in propositions of this kind.

DON'T FORGET that you must venture a little to have more.

DON'T FORGET that one of the biggest mineral belts in the world will be opened up right here in New England within a short time.

DON'T FORGET that we have located it.

If you will call at our office we will show you as handsome specimens of ore as is today or ever has been exhibited in the city of Boston, all of which was taken from this Eastern mineral belt.

You can purchase stock in this company at $10.00 per share, which is its par value. For further particulars call on or write, and make all remittances for the purchase of stock made payable to

THE W. H. JORDAN COMPANY, Fiscal Agents, 24 Milk St., Boston, Mass.

I will sell you 5000 shares in that mine for $100.

and I predict an advance to $500 within 30 days

Searchlight Gold Beam

In the camp with 50 mines and not a single failure.

"Over $50,000,000 invested past 30 days by Los Angeles investors."—Denver Daily News, Sept. 22.

Did you take my advice in 1901 and realize $40,000 from a $1,000 investment in Nevada mining stock?

Will you take my advice NOW?

I believe in living and let live! I believe that the man or woman who invests their hard-earned money should have the same opportunity for returns as the rich man.

Therefore I am especially pleased that I am able to offer my clients at this time stock in the Searchlight Gold Beam mine in Searchlight Camp, Nevada, at 2 cents a share.

Do you know that more fortunes have been made in Nevada gold mines during the past few years than almost anywhere else in the world?

Measuring the value of this investment by others I should have a whole page to tell my story because I could relate the experiences of scores of happy investors who were comparatively poor three years ago and are now enjoying a rich competence.

I had a representative in Goldfield, Bullfrog, Tonopah, and other districts in Nevada, for over three months. In this way I was able to cull the wheat from the chaff. I believe I am offering stock in one of the choicest properties in Nevada.

My representative saw stock sold at 25 cents a share, in mines which could not be compared with ours, and thousands of shares were eagerly taken at this figure. This would mean $1,250.00 for 5,000 shares. We offer you the same number of shares in Searchlight Gold Beam for $100, or 2 cents a share.

I am trying an experiment. I want to know whether the investing public would prefer to pay 2 cents a share, or 25 cents, or $1.00 a share for the same stock.

Do you know that $50,000,000 was made last year in Tonopah, which is only one small district in the Nevada gold fields? Do you know that one million dollars a month is now being produced by one of Nevada's great mines?

The richest free milling gold deposits in the state are located on the same geological formation. On this formation are located Goldfield, Tonopah, Bullfrog, Key Mountain claims, and, best and richest of all, Searchlight, the camp without a failure.

I am giving you in the Searchlight Gold Beam mine what, in my judgment, I believe to be the greatest opportunity to make money that has been offered the public in twenty years.

You ask me why and how, and I will tell you. I'm offering you stock in a mine that is located in the richest mining district in the world, in a camp with not a single failure.

The vast deposits of gold in this marvelous state are almost beyond comprehension. Think of mines paying One Million Dollars per month. Several are said to be paying from $1000 to $30,000 per day.

Do you realize that our mine, the Searchlight Gold Beam, has shown assays of $250.00 to the ton, and do you know that if it only showed $2.50 per ton we would make money for our stockholders?

The Denver Daily Journal, of Denver, Colorado, in an editorial states that within the past 30 days leading financiers from Los Angeles, California, have purchased over $50,000,000 worth of property at Searchlight, and the same paper states, under date of September 2[illegible], that the Searchlight Gold Beam is one of the leading mines of the district.

The Massachusetts claim of the Quartette Mining Company, it is reported, have $9,000,000 worth of ore in sight. This is one of the great mines at Searchlight, where our properties are located.

Has it ever occurred to you that a $100 investment in our stock might mean a fortune for you. In our advertisement last week we gave you the names of mines where it was reported that $100 invested three years ago had shown a profit of from $30,000 to $90,000, right in Nevada, a short distance from our property.

Why is it Mr. Schwab, ex-president United States Steel Trust, Senator Clark, and many other multi-millionaires are investing their millions in Nevada properties? These are experienced men who never invest except to make money. Don't you think it is safe to follow the lead of this class of men? You may not have as much money to invest, but if you invest your little in the same mine as they do you will make just as much money proportionately as they will. They are good men to follow.

When I offer you shares in the Searchlight Gold Beam at 2 cents a share I mean just what I say. I mean there are companies offering stock today at 25 cents and 50 cents a share that don't begin to have the rich prospects of this company. Remember:

$25.00 Buys 1,250 shares
50.00 Buys 2,500 shares
100.00 Buys 5,000 shares

I advise my clients to act promptly and secure a share of this allotment of stock in the Searchlight Gold Beam. Five thousand shares, which will cost you only $100 today, will positively advance to $500 within thirty days from this date. Buy now before this rise and share in the increased value of this stock.

Very truly yours,

Lafayette E Pike

AS PREDICTED—STOCK OF THE CHICAGO-NEW YORK ELECTRIC RAILROAD

WILL ADVANCE IN PRICE $1.00 PER SHARE TO $26.00 ON WEDNESDAY NEXT, OCTOBER 3. STOCKHOLDERS AND INVESTORS MUST SUBSCRIBE NOW TO OBTAIN STOCK AT $25.00 PER SHARE

THIS IS ONLY THE BEGINNING OF THE RAPID ADVANCES WHICH THIS STOCK WILL MAKE A COMMERCIAL MARVEL

The foundation stone of this great enterprise is confidence—tricks of stock jobbing do not fool the people very long. They will do for the man with a gold brick because in every such case when you look for your slick swindler, he is like the Irishman's flea—he isn't there But the Men Behind This Project are not speculators endeavoring to foist on the public an impossible, unpracticable scheme, but are Railroad Operating Men of Years of Practical Experience Who Have Made a Study of Railroads, and understand every phase of their Construction, Maintenance, and Operation; men who have Canvassed the Situation Thoroughly, who have the Courage of Their Convictions, and who are Paying for Their Interest in this enterprise just as they ask you to pay for yours; whose only gain will be derived from Actual Service and Actual Investment.

The Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad is the outcome of a pressing necessity.

There is today, as never before, a crying need for quick and cheap transportation between Chicago and New York, the two great commercial centres of this country, and it is the natural result of such a condition that somebody should rise to the occasion.

That is why this new road was conceived, and why it is now being built, large construction gangs having been employed since Sept. 1 last.

That it has the brightest kind of prospects and a future full of promise must be evident to anyone who will give the matter even a moment's thought.

First of all, being a direct air line, the distance to be travelled is materially less than by any other existing line. To be exact, it will be 230 miles shorter than the Lake Shore and New York Central Roads, and 160 miles shorter than the Pennsylvania system. This material saving in distance will also mean a great saving in time. Where the distance is now covered in from 18 to 24 hours, it will be possible, when the Air Line is completed, to cover the ground in 10 hours. This saving in time means not only a great convenience to the travelling public, but also a great saving to the road in cost of operation. As a result much cheaper fares will prevail and by reason of that fact the road is certain to command a very large share of public patronage right from the day it is put into operation.

But that is not all.

That this new road is certain to be a great dividend payer will not be due alone to the fact that it will command a large business. There is a further and most important factor. The cost of operation will be materially less on the new line than on any other line of railroad now operating, as we are ready to show.

In the first place, your attention is invited to the fact that of the gross receipts of all the railroads in this country, over 13 per cent. is used in the payment of interest on bonds.

THERE WILL BE NO BONDED INDEBTEDNESS IN CONNECTION WITH THE CHICAGO-NEW YORK ELECTRIC AIR LINE RAILROAD.

There is something very real about a railroad investment; its track, its rolling stock, its giant engines, its palatial terminals, are things that can be seen and realized. A railroad investment bears the same relation to finance that flour does to food; both are "staple." The greatest business of the world today is railroading, and more millionaires got their start through railroad investments than in any other way

Every man or woman who invests in the shares of the Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad at the "ground floor" price of $25 per share, at which we now offer them, will, in all human probability, be able ultimately to get dividends in excess of 30 per cent., or be able to sell the stock within a short time for $300 per share. Twenty-five dollars buys a share today.

If you are interested in the facts we have already placed before you, and want other pertinent facts bearing on the situation, we shall be pleased to send them to you, if you will only take the trouble to ask for them

Our stock proposition has met with public favor to an extent that we had hardly dared to anticipate. Our plans appeal to investors as not alone feasible and practical, but as offering an exceptional opportunity for safe and profitable investment, of which many have been glad to avail themselves

Attached to this announcement are two coupons. By the use of one you can purchase such number of shares as you may wish to contract for. The use of the other will bring to you further information

THE PRICE WILL BE ADVANCED OCTOBER 3.

NOW is the time to act. The present price of the stock is $25 per share, par value $100. The advance to $26 per share next Wednesday, Oct. 3, means to you a four per cent. increase in the value of your holdings within a very few days. No subscription will be accepted unless delivered in person or by messenger at our offices before the closing hour, 7:30 p. m., on Oct. 3, or if sent by mail must be postmarked Oct. 3.

Partial or instalment payments may be made at the rate of 10 per cent. down, 10 per cent. monthly until shares are paid for. At the present price of $25 per share, this means $2.50 per share in cash or its equivalent with your subscription and $2.50 per share each month for the next nine months.

No interest will be charged on deferred payments.

United States Marine Band

—OF WASHINGTON—

WILLIAM H. SANTELMANN, Director

The Band Which Plays at the White House
Also Known as "The President's Own"

ONE OF THE MOST CELEBRATED MILITARY BANDS IN THE WORLD

The United States Marine Band was established as a marine corps by act of Congress, July 11, 1798, the act being approved by John Adams, second President of the United States. The band performed ordinary military duty until 1854, in which year open-air concerts at the White House and Capitol grounds were inaugurated. In 1861 President Lincoln affixed his signature to an Act of Congress which marked the recognition by law of the first band in the United States military service.

The Marine Band has played before the Prince of Wales, now King Edward; Prince Henry of Prussia, Prince Louis of Battenberg, and diplomats from all over the world. During presidential inaugurations, it is always accorded a place of honor.

This is the first time in fifteen years the Marine Band has played in New England.

ADMISSION ONLY 25 CENTS

ALL SIDE SHOWS FREE

All side attractions are absolutely free.

Continuous rounds of entertainment in all parts of the building with no charge, save the general admission price of only 25 cents, except 10 cents for admission to the gallery during the afternoon band concerts and 25 cents during the evening concerts.

No higher priced seats and no charge for admission to the gallery except during the concerts from 2 to 4 and 8 to 10.

"BEN HUR" FREE

Beautiful views and scenes from this great work. Mr. William H. Josselyn, who has given this presentation more than 1,400 times, explains the book in a remarkably interesting manner as 125 views in colors are thrown upon a great screen. A captivating attraction. All seats free.

MOVING PICTURES

Endless variety of subjects of the most amusing and entertaining character. Entirely new programme every day. Admission and all seats free.

SAN FRANCISCO DISASTER

Wonderful moving photographic scenes in colors by an eye witness and participant, who shows and tells how he and thousands of others lived through this great disaster. Truthful, but thrilling in the extreme. All seats free.

MYRIAD LIGHTS TO SHINE ON FOOD FAIR

Electrical Effects and Elaborate Decorations to Make Hall Bower of Beauty.

RUSH WORK FOR GREAT EXHIBITION'S OPENING

Everything is in readiness at the Mechanics Building for the opening of the Food Fair Monday morning. Last night hundreds of workmen were busily engaged in putting on the finishing touches to the decorations which will certainly prove a revelation to the fair visitors this year. Nothing so elaborate has ever before been attempted, the fair managers say.

Thousands of electric lights will heighten the splendor of the decorations. In Paul Revere Hall, on the second floor of the building, the Southern Industrial exhibition will be held, and this department, which is a great exhibition in itself, will be formally opened on Monday by Hon. Robert B. Glenn, Governor of North Carolina.

Tar Heel State Exhibit.

This exhibit is made by the State itself, for the purpose of interesting investors, and farmers, and getting them to occupy rich lands not now in use. Within the past few years, North Carolina has become one of the great truck farming States of the Union, and the State Board of Agriculture is engaged in getting newcomers and supplying the new arrivals with information which will enable them to become highly prosperous.

The various halls of the big structure have been completely transformed in anticipation of the opening of the great Boston Food Fair at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. The decorative scheme is by far the most elaborate ever undertaken in New England. One general color and architectural scheme has been followed in arranging the halls for the fair.

Spanish Court Yard.

Exhibition Hall has been turned into a Spanish court yard. Open booths, so that a person can look clear across the hall and yet see beauty all round him, are the rule. These booths are surmounted by arches of the most artistic description. Under the arches and along the top on both sides, are hundreds of electric lights, and on the corners of the booths are white pillars surmounted by large white ground glass globes containing electric lights.

The booths are all green, red, white and gold, and all the other decorations in this hall are of the same general colors, various light tints being used to add beauty to the [illegible] in the hall are long burnished brass holders with clusters of electric lights, from which hundreds of delicately tinted green and white streamers are suspended.

In Grand Hall.

The decoration of Grand Hall is entirely different in its treatment. It has been transformed into a Grecian court yard, the entire color scheme being blue, white and gold, [illegible] prevailing. [illegible] a central pergola, this [illegible] of octagon shape. [illegible] the work has been done under a single contract, and all the designs made by M[illegible], the celebrated New York decorator.

Marine Band to Play.

Beginning Monday, there are to be concerts each afternoon and evening by the United States Marine Band of Washington, the band which plays at the White House and [illegible] of William H. Santelmann. [illegible] This band has prepared [illegible] programme.

There [illegible] side entertainments for which there will be no extra [illegible] H. Haynes, the general [illegible] everybody in any way connected with the fair are enthusiastic over [illegible] wonderful decorative scheme and feel [illegible] that the fair is bound to be the most successful event of the kind ever held. It is the sixth fair conducted by the Boston Retail Grocers' Association.

TWO MEN INJURED IN MELROSE CAR CRASH.

Accident Caused by Slippery Rails Late Last Evening. Thomas J. Tracey in Hospital In Critical Condition

In a read-end street car collision on Franklin street, Melrose Highlands, late last night, two men were injured, and one is at the Sunnyside Hospital in Melrose. His condition is critical. The injured men were Thomas J. Tracey of No. 117 Myrtle street, Melrose, who sustained the fracture of several ribs, beside other internal injuries, and J. T Jackson of Malden, who was slightly injured about the face and neck.

The accident was caused by slippery rails. The first car was in charge of Motorman [illegible] and Conductor McCormack. The second car crashed into the rear of the [illegible] and smashed the vestibule. The second car was in charge of Motorman Norcross and Conductor Carney. Norcross jumped from [illegible] when he saw that a [illegible] was [illegible].

The [illegible] "13" figured in the affair [illegible] for the number of the [illegible] was 113, and there were just thirteen persons on the forward car. All were more or less shaken up.

CURE FOR PIMPLES

Gently smear the face with CUTICURA OINTMENT, but do not rub. Wash off the OINTMENT in five minutes with CUTICURA SOAP and hot water, and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat morning and evening. Use CUTICURA SOAP alone, at other times, as often as agreeable.

GRAFT CHARGES KEEP JURY BUSY.

Sensational developments are expected when the Suffolk County Grand Jury reports next Saturday, as the result of its deliberations during the past week, in District Attorney Moran's investigation of charges of graft among members of the Chelsea Board of Aldermen, of fraud in the pay-rolls at City Hall, of intimidation of voters who were city employes, in the recent Kiley-Dixon Third District contest, and of violation by Frank J. Linehan, a member of the Boston board of Aldermen, of the law prohibiting city officials from being interested in city contracts.

Witnesses in each of these four cases testified during the week before the Grand Jury. The investigations were conducted under the personal direction of District Attorney Moran.

In Search of Grafters.

At a previous session the same Grand Jury reported indictments against two members of the Chelsea Board of Aldermen and a prominent Republican politician of that city. It was intimated at the time these indictments were returned that the field was fruitful for further indictments.

The adjourned September session of the past week was the first one at which the Timilty-Craven padded payrolls at City Hall was considered. Former Superintendent of Streets James Donovan and others were summoned before the grand jury in this connection.

In the Fitzgerald-Kiley-Dixon case, in which Mayor Fitzgerald is charged by Daniel J. Kiley of Ward 8, the defeated candidate for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, with having intimidated city employes in the district through an article published in the Republic, Joseph J. Corbett of Charlestown, the close personal and political friend of the Mayor, was the principal witness before the grand jury.

Secretary Billings of the Good Government Association was the most prominent one summoned to Mr Moran's office in connection with the charges against Alderman Linehan. Mr Billings did not, however, go before the Grand Jury. Other witnesses were summoned to testify regarding the article published in City Affairs, the G. G. A. organ, accusing Alderman Linehan of being interested in the contract awarded one Hallion, who it is said, resides at the same address as Alderman Linehan.

Further evidence in some or all of these cases will probably be presented to the Grand Jury by District Attorney Moran at the end of the week when the Grand Jury has disposed of the routine cases for the October session. On Saturday the Grand Jury will make its report in all cases.

JEWS PREPARE FOR FEAST OF TABERNACLE.

Solemn Observance of Yom Kippur Closed at Sundown with Song and Prayer.

RABBI IN SERMON LAUDS AMERICANS

With the important Yom Kippur observances coming to a close at sundown yesterday the orthodox Hebrews of Greater Boston are now looking forward to the advent next Wednesday evening of the joyous Feast of the Tabernacle, or the Feast of the Tents, as it is sometimes called.

Yom Kippur was thoroughly observed by the Boston Hebrews. All synagogues were open for prayer and song from sundown [illegible] yesterday.

Of the [illegible] synagogues, one dealing with latter-day matters was that of Rabbi Charles Fleischer of Temple Adath Israel, in the temporary home of the congregation in Potter Hall who said in part:

"I believe that America's greatest distinction lies in the fact of our being the most humane of all peoples. They cannot tell us here that self-preservation, nature's law, is our first duty, when we know how much the first human law, that of sympathy, moves us. And I know that a humane nation we cannot at the same time be indifferent to the persecutions and hardships elsewhere which stimulate migration and try to prevent immigration to this hospitable haven."

In preparation for the coming feast of the Tabernacle the Hebrews are erecting many booths at their homes where there is a direct exposure to the open sky. The celebration of the Tabernacle feast lasts eight days.

SHAVES GO UP FIVE CENTS IN MILFORD

Milford, Sept 29—Fifteen cents is to be the price of a shave in Milford in future. Alleging no profit at present prices, because of having to pay high wages for short hours, sixteen of the eighteen shops here have agreed to hoist the price five cents.

MISS MARY BIGELOW. LATEST VINCENT CLUB MEMBER TO MARRY

By far the largest and smartest of September's Vincent Club weddings was that at noon yesterday in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Cohasset, of Miss Mary Bigelow, daughter of Joseph Bigelow of Commonwealth avenue and Cohasset, and Dr. John Lewis Bremer, Harvard, '96. The four bridesmaids were Susan Thayer, Priscilla Stackpole, Cornelia Wolcott and Alice West, the maid of honor Sallie Thayer. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Lawrence, assisted by the Rev. Howard Key Bartow, the rector.

Henry S Bigelow, brother of the bride, was best man, and Dr John Warren, Harvard, '96, Joseph S. Bigelow Jr., Harvard, '00, Clifton L. Bremer, Harvard, '96, Frederick S. Hoppin of New York, Harvard, '96, Dr. David Cheever, Harvard, '97, and Reginald Boardman were the ushers.

MALONE REFUSES TO OPPOSE DOCK TRUST.

Denies East Boston Citizens' Request for Quo Warranto Proceedings Against Laying of Tracks in Public Streets

Attorney General Malone declines to assist the Citizens' Trade Association of East Boston in its fight against the Dock Trust.

He denies the request of the association to file an information in the nature of quo warranto proceedings in the matter of the Dock Trust's scheme to convert busy streets in the vicinity of South Ferry into railroad switching yards.

"I am of the opinion that the facts as set forth by the petitioners do not present a case requiring the Attorney General, in the exercise of the undoubted discretion invested in him, to file an information in the nature of quo warranto," says Mr Malone.

"The Attorney General's refusal to [illegible] us will not stop our fight," said James F. Maguire, president of the Citizens' Trade Association of East Boston, to-day. "On the other hand it will stimulate us to more vigorous action. As private citizens, we will bring the matter before the courts."

Would Circle the Island.

According to Mr Maguire, agents representing the Gaston interests and the Dock Trust are busy in East Boston seeking to undo the good work which took thirty years of agitation and $1,500,000 in money to accomplish.

Under instructions from their masters these agents are trying to grease the way for a scheme to circle the island with railroad tracks.

Since the abolition of grade crossings on the island two efforts have been made to nullify the law.

First, the Gaston crowd sought the privilege of laying a freight railway at grade on Condor and Border streets. The scheme was vetoed by the late Mayor Collins and defeated. On appealing to the Legislature the Gastonites were again repulsed. Investigation by the BOSTON AMERICAN shows that another effort will be made to win the coveted franchise from the next Legislature.

Appealed to Attorney-General.

Then came the Dock Trust with a petition to lay tracks at grade in public streets in the vicinity of the South ferry. Mayor Collins vetoed that franchise, too, but certain aldermen attempted to give it force and effect. The Citizens' Trade Association of East Boston requested the Attorney-General to submit the matter to the Supreme Court, with the result stated.

FAREWELL TO DIXON BY FELLOW PASTORS

A farewell luncheon, arranged by the clergymen with whom he has been associated, was given last evening at Kingsley Hall, Ashburton place, to the Rev. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Ruggles Street Baptist Church. Dr Dixon is to leave soon for Chicago, where he will become pastor of the Moody Chicago Avenue Church.

The luncheon was served at 5:30, and for a half hour previous to that time a reception was held.

NORTH END GAY IN ST. MICHAEL'S HONOR

The streets all through the North End were packed by a dense crowd of Italians last night celebrating the feast of St. Michaels.

To-day there will be religious services at 10.20 a. m., with the Rev. Father Biasiotti as celebrant, at the Sacred Heart Church. At 2 o'clock a parade, with three bands, through the Italian quarter. Over a thousand are expected to be in line.

Archbishop Williams, who was invited to attend, will not be able on account of previous engagements, but in his absence Co-Adjutor Archbishop O'Connell will speak before the society on the life of St. Michael.

SEVEN PONY OUTFITS FREE

With Enough Money to Keep Them

BOYS—GIRLS

Do You Want a Nice Little Pony, Cart and Harness and Money Enough to Keep It?—If SO, Read This.

My object in giving away these prizes is to introduce MODERN WOMEN into every city, village and hamlet in the United States, and I don't know of a better way to do it than by having the co-operation of my young friends, and they are legion.

Those who have had dealings with me in the past know that these prizes will be awarded, for my record during the past seven years has shown that I am not afraid to give away fabulous sums of money to those who help me. I have given single prizes of $15,000, $10,000 and $5,000, and I don't know how many $2,000, $1,000, and smaller cash prizes, not counting fifty free trips to Europe, three annuities for life, two of $250 and one of $300, also eight scholarships, etc. All told, I have given away over $500,000 in prizes since we first established our publishing house, which is a little less than seven years ago.

Up to the present writing our success has been phenomenal—thanks to the hearty co-operation of our agents and subscribers, but I am not satisfied. It is my ambition to lead and let others follow.

MODERN WOMEN is one of the cleanest home magazines published; is absolutely free from all objectionable reading matter and advertisements. Now, there is one high-class home magazine which has about double the circulation of MODERN WOMEN, and I want to overtake this leader, or at least to catch up with it, at the earliest possible moment, and I have arranged what I think is one of the fairest competitions ever arranged, giving every one an equal chance, no matter whether they live in a hamlet or large city.

Now to the point. We have arranged this competition in seven classes.

The FIRST will be known as "CLASS A," and will be open only to agents who are at the present time living in a hamlet, town or village having a population of less than one thousand inhabitants, and to the boy or girl who will sell the largest number of copies of MODERN WOMEN between now and the last day of June, 1907, I will deliver at their door a complete pony outfit, consisting of a fine Shetland pony, harness, pony cart, whip and robe. Besides that, I will also allow the winner of this pony outfit ten dollars each month for two years in order that he or she may be able to keep it after winning it. And what is there that would make a young person happier than a pony and cart? Every child in this broad country of ours today would love to have one. I have a dapple gray pony called "Sunny Jim" and many a young heart I have made glad by letting them drive me around when I had the leisure. That is what prompted me to make this offer.

The boy or girl who enters this competition can have others help them. The price of MODERN WOMEN is ten cents per copy, and we will allow the agent to keep five cents per copy as commission, the other five cents to be sent to us for each copy sold. We trust our agents, and we will send the number of copies which they order without any money in advance, and we will not hold them responsible for unsold copies, merely demanding pay for those which they have sold, and every copy which they sell between now and the last day of June, 1907, will count towards the pony and cart. Yearly subscriptions will not count in this competition.

To the agent selling the next largest number of copies we will give a solid gold watch, either boy's or girl's.

To the agent selling the next largest number of copies we will give a solid silver watch, either boy's or girl's.

To the agent selling the next largest number we will give ten dollars in cash.

For the next one hundred largest lists, one dollar in cash, each. Making 104 prizes to be divided among 104 agents in the above manner in a place having a population of less than one thousand inhabitants.

The SECOND is known as "CLASS B," and is open to agents who are at the present time living in a city, town or hamlet, having a population of not less than one thousand or more than ten thousand inhabitants, and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS B" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASS A."

The THIRD is known as "CLASS C," and is open only to agents who at the present time are living in a city, having a population of not less than ten thousand or more than fifty thousand inhabitants and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS C" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASSES A and B."

The FOURTH is known as "CLASS D," and is open only to agents who at the present time are living in a city, having a population of not less than fifty thousand or more than one hundred thousand inhabitants and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS D" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASSES A, B and C."

The FIFTH is known as "CLASS E," and is open only to agents living in a city, having a population of not less than one hundred thousand or more than two hundred thousand inhabitants, and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS E" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASSES A, B, C and D."

The SIXTH is known as "CLASS F," and is open only to agents who at the present time are living in a city, having a population of not less than two hundred thousand or more than five hundred thousand inhabitants, and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS F" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASSES A, B, C, D and E."

The SEVENTH is known as "CLASS G," and is open only to agents who at present are living in a city, having a population of above five hundred thousand inhabitants, and the same amount of prizes will be awarded to the agents in "CLASS G" as are awarded to the agents in "CLASSES A, B, C, D, E and F."

Now remember this competition is divided into seven classes and there are 104 prizes in each class, making 728 prizes in all,—seven pony outfits, seven solid gold watches, seven silver watches, seven cash prizes of ten dollars each, and seven hundred cash prizes of one dollar each.

These prizes will be awarded to the agents in the seven classes who sell the largest number of copies of MODERN WOMEN.

We do not know of a fairer competition, for the boy or girl living in a hamlet having less than one thousand inhabitants has the same opportunity to win a pony and cart or one of the other prizes as a boy or girl living in a city having over five hundred thousand inhabitants.

The rules and conditions covering this contest are as follows:

We will permit all who enter this competition to sell MODERN WOMEN anywhere they choose.

They can employ others to sell copies for them.

We will not permit any agent to purchase a large number of copies for free distribution for that would defeat the object of this competition, for one agent may be wealthy whereas the other may not have any money at all, and, of course, it would not be fair.

We will not publish lists as to how the agents stand until the close of the competition, but every month we will give a cash prize of $10 to the agent who leads in each class.

The money must be sent to us just as soon as the copies ordered are sold; in any event, at the end of each month.

If we find that any agent does not comply with these rules we reserve the right to throw them out of the contest entirely.

We will not inform any agent of the number of copies sold by any other agent competing until after the close of the competition.

The prizes are the same in each class.

Due care must be given when ordering copies of MODERN WOMEN. For one may order several hundred copies whereas they can only dispose of a few, and the others would mean a total loss to us and in that case we reserve the right to reduce the order until the agent can convince us that they can sell the number of copies ordered. Therefore, when ordering copies, do not order more than you are sure you can sell.

Exclusive territory will not be given to anyone.

When you enter this competition, send your full name and address, together with the population of the place in which you reside, according to the last U. S. Census, also the number of copies of MODERN WOMEN which you propose to sell the first month, which will be sent you.

Be sure and enter to-day; to-morrow may be too late. Besides, we do not want too many people competing for these prizes. Therefore, if our object is obtained, by this first announcement, it will not appear again.

Address Subscription Department, MODERN WOMEN, 99 Broad Street, Boston, Mass.

ROOSEVELT, JR., REFUSES TO 'PEACH' ON CHUM.

Under Police Probe, President's Son Shields Student Who Tripped Officer.

ACQUITTED IN COURT OF "DISORDERLY CONDUCT"

"No Warrant Was Issued; I Am Innocent," Declares Young Roosevelt.

HUNT FOR "UNKNOWN" ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Having failed in their effort to get a warrant from Judge Sullivan for the arrest of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President of the United States, at present a sophomore in Harvard University, on a charge of disorderly conduct in Boston and of assault on a "person unknown," the Boston police are trying to ascertain the name of the student who is said to have tripped up and badly injured Reserve Officer Lawrence Fraher.

The college spirit of refusing to "tattle" and of sticking together in any difficulty was never more strongly exemplified than now. At the time he was arrested Thursday night and taken to Lagrange street station, young Roosevelt, so Police Commissioner O'Meara says, admitted that the man who tripped Fraher was a student but refused to give his name on the ground that it would prejudice him in college.

At Work on Case.

Reserve Officer James Grace, who arrested Roosevelt after the injury to Fraher, was in Cambridge yesterday afternoon and last night trying to dig out some clue to the identity of the suspected student. But up to date there is no report of his achieving any success in that direction.

Commissioner O'Meara says that the police are after the tripper, and that they will get him. This statement was made after the ineffectual attempt by the police to get a warrant for Roosevelt on the original charge.

Warrant Is Refused.

The charge was based on the statement by Fraher and Grace that Roosevelt and others had thrown a rope about a man sitting on a seat in Boston Common Thursday night and had dragged him several feet. At the hearing on the application for this warrant Roosevelt, his counsel, Alderman Francis R. Bangs and Attorney John F. Perkins, Francis Meredith Blagden, the Harvard oarsman, and Shaun Kelly, chums of Roosevelt, were present. It was shown that Blagden was the "person unknown" and that the lads were simply fooling among themselves. The charge of assault fell very flat and Judge Sullivan refused to issue the warrant.

The President's son is understood by his classmates to have gone to Oyster Bay to "explain." When he left his quarters in Dunster Hall yesterday, he announced that he was going away and would not return until Monday. He left several of his associates last night in time to catch the 5 o'clock limited for New York.

He had not returned to his rooms at midnight and was not expected.

Dean Hurlburt told a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter last night that no action would be taken by the college authorities on the escapade unless an official communication requesting them to do so was received from Police Commissioner O'Meara.

Roosevelt's Own Story.

Here is young Roosevelt's own story, as told to Judge Sullivan, related to the BOSTON AMERICAN by his counsel, Alderman Francis R. Bangs of Room 1,035, Exchange building:

"Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Meredith Blagden and another, whom we do not know, were on the Common not far from the Touraine, having just crossed the street from the Tremont Theatre. They were perfectly sober, but they were fooling, boy-fashion.

Chased Blagden with Rope.

"Blagden is a sort of imp of fun among the boys, and there was considerable fooling. Roosevelt and the other, whom I do not know, picked up a piece of rope and chased Blagden. They saw two men sitting on a bench and, approaching them, one of the boys said: 'That's Meredith.' The other boy replied, 'He's not Meredith.'

"Further on they saw Meredith Blagden on another bench. One of the boys asked: 'Is that Meredith?' The other boy answered: 'No, it isn't Meredith.' Then both said: 'Yes, it is Meredith,' and then threw a rope over his head.

"The boys scuffled a bit. Then Meredith Blagden got loose from the rope and ran, the other two boys following him across the Common.

"They were chased by Patrolman Fraher. Roosevelt, who was ahead, heard heavy feet approaching from behind, and recognized at once that they did not belong to either of his boy friends. He looked around. Officer Grace said that the unknown boy tripped Officer Fraher or struck him, and both fell on the ground. Fraher went head first into a bench. The unknown member of the three ran away. Roosevelt stopped. Patrolman Grace called to Patrolman Murphy, who came running from another direction, and shouted: 'Hold that man.'

Murphy Catches Roosevelt.

"Murphy held Roosevelt, who explained. Murphy suggested that Roosevelt go to the station house. Blagden then ran up, and Roosevelt went with the officer to the station. Patrolman Murphy took charge of the injured policeman and took him to the Relief Hospital. Lieutenant Jones talked the matter over with Roosevelt at the Lagrange street police station, but failed to find that Roosevelt had done anything wrong. Blagden is recognized by Grace as the man on the bench who was roped. Both Roosevelt and Grace agreed to all these facts, except that Patrolman Grace had understood the word 'Meredith' as the word 'married.'

"It was suggested by Patrolman Fraher when the boys roped Blagden that this was the time to interfere. After the testimony of Roosevelt had been put in, and Patrolman Grace had told his story, Justice Sullivan picked up the application for a warrant charging Roosevelt with assault upon Blagden and said:

"'As it appears that Meredith Blagden was a member of the Roosevelt party, and was entering into the fun, he could not have been assaulted, and I therefore discharge the application.'"

CUPID SETS TRAP ON HUB TOUR AND GETS TWO VICTIMS

Albert Spear and Emma Stratton of Athol Meet on Excursion and by Sudden Impulse Wed.

Washington, Sept. 29.—When Albert G. Spear, a well-to-do lumberman of Athol, Mass., and Miss Emma Stratton of the same place a few days ago joined a party of fifty excursionists who were going a-touring with Washington as one of places en route, they were slightly acquainted.

The acquaintance improved so fast that by the time they had reached Washington they just could not be satisfied to go any farther in the journey except in double harness. So they hunted up a minister and the marriage license clerk and when all was ready, dropped out of sight of their fellow travellers and were married.

So devoted had they been throughout the trip that the party was not greatly shocked at the news, and managed to pull itself together in time to give the happy couple a most enjoyable reception in the evening. The couple will continue the trip with the party, returning to Athol in a short time to make their home.

ROOSEVELT CHEERS SAILOR GUNNERS

Feasts On Roast Pork and Poses for Picture With Jolly Band of Jackies on Missouri

President Gives Strenuous Handshake to Each of Clever Marksmen After Target Practice---Crew's Welcome Chorus Drowns Cannon's Roar

S[illegible] at a table on the [illegible] deck of the battleship Missouri [illegible] table surrounded by the crew, President Roosevelt ate his lunch of roast pork, sweet potatoes, [illegible] green corn [illegible] with as good an appetite [illegible] any jackie in the fleet.

It was a great day for the President [illegible] for the North Atlantic Squadron, and especially [illegible] for the Missouri and her men. Not only was the President the guest of the battleship, but her gun crews in target practice made wonderful [illegible] marks every [illegible] who [illegible] was personally complimented [illegible] President [illegible] As a climax, the Commander in Chief of the army and navy [illegible] on the Missouri's deck for a photograph, surrounded by those same gun pointers.

Cheers Drown Roar of Guns.

No wonder that the men on the [illegible] ship were proud [illegible] the other vessels [illegible] the cheers they gave the President when he went down [illegible] than the discharge of [illegible] twelve-inch guns.

All the [illegible] the most [illegible] man on the Missouri. Nothing [illegible] with the target practice was overlooked by him and from the [illegible] the great forward [illegible]

[illegible] from a twelve-inch gun tore through the canvas target and it ricocheted out to sea, sending column after column of water and foam spouting forty to fifty feet into the air.

[illegible] gun pointers Howard and [illegible]

[illegible] he shook hands with each and congratulated them on the excellence of the work.

The battleship steamed back to the fleet and dinner was served. Just before it was [illegible]

[illegible] the last shot was [illegible] honor.

No Napkin for President.

Informality marked the entire proceedings of the day. By the President's request no salute was fired when the Mayflower steamed into harbor escorted by two destroyers. The dinner, however, was the most informal function of the day. The President, with his son, Archie, Admiral Evans, Admiral Davis, ex-Congressman [illegible] and others occupied a table on the gun deck in the midst of the tables set for the crew. He was served exactly the same food as that given the crew. He used the regular dishes, knives and forks and he appeared to enjoy it all immensely.

The climax came, however, when some one, noticing that the party at the President's table had no napkins, sent an orderly with some. Admiral Evans at once sent them back, saying:

"The crew have no napkins. Take them back."

So the President ate his dinner napkinless.

Sailor's Cap for Archie.

The President ran up the ladder and shook hands with Captain Pendleton and Henry Reuterdahl, the artist, who was on board. He wore a dark gray suit and [illegible] [illegible] want.

He had the gun pointers summoned and posed for his picture surrounded by the jackies in uniform. Later he posed with Admiral Evans, Admiral Davis and Congressman Lovering.

Shortly afterwards the President left the Missouri [illegible] the Mayflower. As he went down the side, the crew, massed on deck, gave him three cheers. He turned at the foot of the ladder and, looking up, said:

"If there was enough of me I'd give you a cheer too."

The men cheered again as he stepped into the launch and cheered him all the way around the bow of the Missouri as the launch cut across to the Mayflower.

About [illegible] an hour before he left the Missouri word had been received of the dispatch at Provincetown and a torpedo boat sent for it. The Mayflower waited some time for her to return, the President glancing at his watch every few minutes, impatient to get away. Finally he could wait no longer. The word was given and the Mayflower steamed away towards the end of the cape to meet the torpedo boat, the cheers of the crews on the fleet following her as she went.

[illegible] Does Much Damage; Due in Boston To-day.

Reports coming in from the Gulf cities hit by the hurricane indicate that property loss will reach high into the millions. Mobile estimates $6,000,000, Pensacola $5,000,000, and Fort Morgan $1[illegible],000. Losses to the navy yard at Pensacola will total nearly $500,000.

Thousands of homes are wrecked in Mobile and Pensacola; thousands of people are homeless; provisions are high and the poor are facing starvation.

Damage to shipping is great. Upward of thirty vessels are high on the shore and others are sunk. Wharf property is wiped out.

The dead in Mobile alone number at least 200 and bodies are constantly being found. Pensacola relief parties are digging the debris for bodies. Six were killed at Fort Morgan.

Government dispatches from the Pensacola navy yard show that the gunboat Machias and the tug Wahban are sunk, the converted yachts Vixen and Gloucester, tug Accomac and a coal barge are high on shore; the gunboat Isle de Luzon strained and leaking, and the wooden drydock, which cost $67,000, destroyed. The Machias was commissioned in Boston about a year ago.

Coden, Ala., and Bayou la Batre are reported wiped out and fourteen killed.

Mobile[illegible], Miss., [illegible] wiped off the map [illegible] in a state of [illegible] the effects of the [illegible]. Hardly one house [illegible] the storm's fury. The number of wrecked houses [illegible] 8,000 and the property loss [illegible] over [illegible]

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 29.—Half the houses in this city have been wiped out by the hurricane and flood, thousands of people are homeless, and the situation to-day is one of mingled grief and terror. It was the worst storm that has visited this place in [illegible]

The property loss is estimated at [illegible], not including the loss to shipping. About thirty vessels of all kinds are high and dry on the [illegible], and [illegible] buildings are wrecked. Several are known to be [illegible] but the loss of life cannot be estimated. The streets are filled with debris where the flood swept four to five feet deep.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 29.—The Department of the Gulf to-day received a dispatch from [illegible] Rice at Fort Morgan, thirty miles south of Mobile, announcing the death of six men from the hurricane, and the destruction of government property to the extent of $100,000.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The Navy Department to-day received its first authentic news from Pensacola. Terrific damage is reported. The navy yard was practically wrecked, three ships are sunk, two stranded, the wooden drydock destroyed, the wireless apparatus wrecked and several buildings destroyed. The damage will reach half a million.

$2,000,000 CARGO ON OIL TRUST CRAFT

The Standard Oil steamship Schuylkill, Captain R. Nicholas, arrived in port yesterday on the last leg of a voyage of 38,000 miles, with a treasure trove of Oriental merchandise valued at $2,000,000 beneath her hatches.

The Schuylkill left Philadelphia March 18 for Nagasaki, Japan, 210,000 cases of oil.

The Schuylkill has on board a most cosmopolitan crew of Chinese Lascars, Malays and Europeans of different nationalities. When the ship arrived in quarantine Dr. Carson had the as Asiatics taken off the ship and instructed in the mysteries of the needle bath, while the quarters they occupy were fumigated.

PAWTUCKET GAINS $1,891,600 IN WEALTH

Pawtucket, Sept. 29.—The Board of Assessors has made public the work of their department. It shows that there has been an increase in the property valuation of the city amounting to $1,891,600, which will mean an increase in the tax levy of $34,709.88.

RIVALS IN SUFFOLK COUNTY A. O. H. CONTEST TODAY.

This afternoon there will be a special convention of the Suffolk county board of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in [illegible] Hall, East Boston, to be presided over by County President John Dillon. The dominant feature of this convention will be the nomination of officers.

The principal contest will be for the office of president. Richard JJ Dwyer, president of Division 32, South Boston, is out for Mr. Dillon's place. Alderman James M. Curley, county vice-president, is opposed by John Reynolds, of Division 39, Roxbury.

There are a number of matters connected with the organization in the State which will possibly be acted upon at this meeting, prominent among which will be the report of the officers of the First Hibernian Regiment.

"The order in the County of Suffolk is in a flourishing condition," says County President John Dillon, "the membership being close on to 6,000, while the funds in the various divisions is close to $90,[illegible]

C. T. A. U. TO MEET ON MATHEW DAY

The first quarterly convention of the Boston Catholic Total Abstinence Union since the election of officers will be held in Aquinas Hall, Harvard street, Cambridgeport, Sunday, October 14, the birthday of Father Mathew. The Rev. Francis J. Butler, pastor of St. Leo's Church, Dorchester, and president of the Union, will preside.

It is planned to have a parade on the anniversary of his birth.

JAIL TERM FOR VOTE "REPEATER"

For violation of the election laws in the primary elections on last Tuesday, William J. [illegible], twenty-eight years, of No. 5 Clarke's court, Charlestown, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Bragg in the Charlestown District Court to-day. He appealed, and was held in $[illegible] bonds.

While attempting to vote the second time in Ward 4, precinct 3, Charlestown, at the primaries, Clarke was arrested. He had already voted once under his own name. A charge of drunkenness against him while attempting to vote was filed.

IRVING'S THEATRE TO BE MADE A CIRCUS

Scene of Actor's Famous Triumphs Has Been a Failure Since He Left It.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

London, Sept. 29.—Sir Henry Irving's old theatre, the [illegible] where all his great successes were produced, has been through many vicissitudes and is now to become the home of a circus.

When Sir Henry vacated the Lyceum and went to Drury Lane his old playhouse was taken by one of the music hall trust men, Thomas Barrasford, who opened it at popular prices. It was not a success and has now been closed for good [illegible].

Many schemes have been mooted regarding the future of the Lyceum, including one to [illegible] home of high class [illegible] the [illegible] for many years.

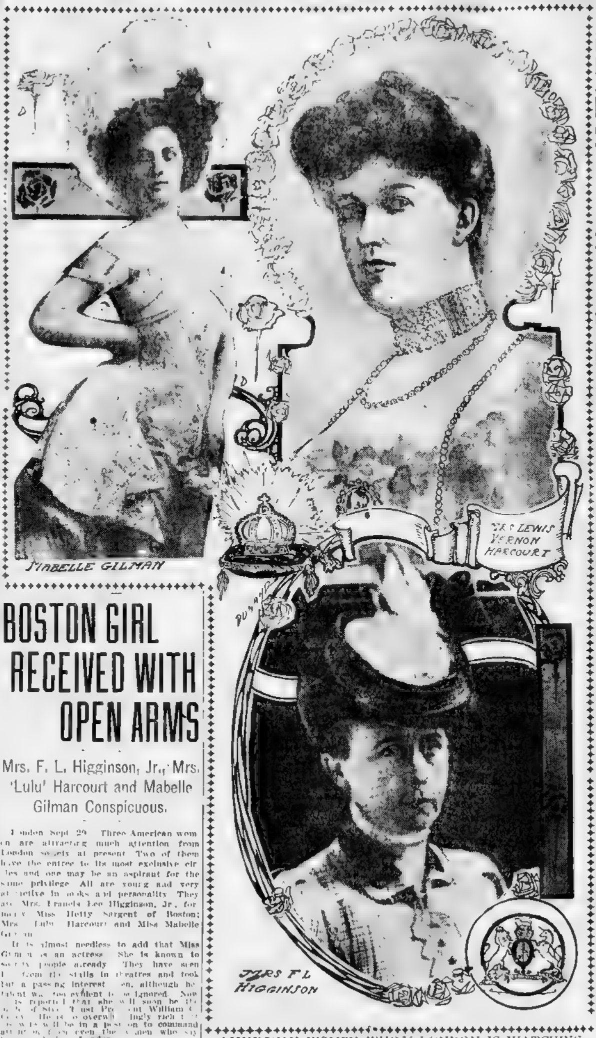
Eyes of London Society Fixed on a Trio of American Women



AMERICAN WOMEN WHOM LONDON IS WATCHING.

BOSTON GIRL RECEIVED WITH OPEN ARMS

Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., Mrs. 'Lulu' Harcourt and Mabelle Gilman Conspicuous.

London, Sept. 29.—Three American women are attracting much attention from London society at present. Two of them have the entree to its most exclusive circles and one may be an aspirant for the same privilege. All are young and very attractive in looks and personality. They are Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Jr., formerly Miss Hetty Sargent of Boston; Mrs. "Lulu" Harcourt and Miss Mabelle Gilman.

It is almost needless to add that Miss Gilman is an actress. She is known to society people already. They have seen her from the stalls in theatres and took but a passing interest in her, although her talent was too evident to be ignored. Now it is reported that she will soon be the wife of Steel Trust President William E. Corey. He is so overwhelmingly rich that she will be in a position to command attention from even the women who say "who's who" in London.

May Wed in October.

As Mr. Corey was recently divorced by his first wife there is very little chance for Miss Gilman, if she becomes his second, to be presented at court. No one can hope to shine in the inner circle of society unless she is granted that honor. It sets an indisputable seal upon claims for recognition in Mayfair.

Queen Alexandra is not quite as pronounced in her prejudice against divorcees as was Queen Victoria, who would never give them court audience, but it is well understood that the present fair wearer of the crown does not fancy having women who have been divorced or who have married divorcees at her most ceremonial functions. Miss Gilman is said to have bought an elaborate trousseau in Paris, and her friends expect that she will wed Mr. Corey in France in October.

Mrs. "Lulu" Harcourt is the wife of Mr. Lewis Harcourt, M. P., and a very beautiful New York girl. Her father was the late Walter F. Burns of that city. She was paid to her the signal honor of being invited to become a member of the house party at Lord Saville's Rufford Abbey during Doncaster race week. As King Edward was also a guest there Mrs. Harcourt had the opportunity of meeting the King under most favorable auspices. His liking for American women is so well understood that several are always included in the list of those invited to any house which he condescends to visit.

Mrs. Higginson's Success.

Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Jr., has made a pronounced social success in London. The most conservative element there has received her with open arms. Boston women of the elite set in their own city are well at the hands of the exclusives over here. They are regarded as being in manner and speech "quite English, you know." New York and Chicago women are looked upon as being much more pronouncedly American.

Young Mrs. Higginson's wedding at Trinity Church in Boston a year ago was the event of the season there. She was a Vincent Club girl and very much liked in the set in which she moved. She has taken to England and the English with such dignified simplicity that it is declared she acts as if to the manner born. But she is still a thorough American at heart.

Mr. and Mrs. Higginson entertained at their London home the Harvard oarsmen who came over to row Cambridge in an international race. Mr. Higginson, who is in charge of a London branch banking house, was delighted to have them as guests. He himself was stroke of the 'varsity crew while at Harvard.

SWEDEN AGREES TO U. S. COPYRIGHT LAW

Stockholm, Sept. 29.—The government has decided definitely to accept in its present shape the proposal of the United States for a copyright treaty between the two countries, in spite of the fact that the Publicist Club expressed a desire for a treaty more advantageous to Sweden.

BRITISH DOCTORS' INCOMES DROPPING

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

London, Sept. 29.—According to the British Medical Journal the incomes of English doctors have fallen off twenty-five per cent since 1900. Among the causes named for the falling off are the gradual dying down of the epidemic of influenza, which caused 10,000 deaths in 1900, the decrease of other epidemic sicknesses and the decrease of winter ailments, attributable, it is thought, to the mildness of recent winters.

TIDAL WAVE AT GIBRALTAR; MANY DEAD.

Enormous Damage Caused by Hurricane and Rush of Waters.

TREES, CATTLE SWEPT AWAY INTO THE SEA

Gibraltar, Sept. 30.—During a tremendous storm [illegible] yesterday a semi-tidal wave swept over the low country north of the rock and caused enormous damage.

It is believed that many lives have been lost. Hundreds of houses collapsed either through the terrific force of the hurricane or through the undermining of foundations by the rush of water.

Trees and cattle were swept into the seas. Everything movable was carried away by the flood. The railways were washed away in sections, in a number of places the track being carried a long distance from its original location. The full extent of the disaster has not yet been learned.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND NEW LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

London, Sept. 29.—Sir William Treloar, an Alderman of the city of London, was to-day elected Lord Mayor of London in succession to Walter V. Morgan.

Sir William has been known as the "Children's Alderman" because of his many benefactions to the children of the slums. He was largely instrumental in securing the opening of the British Museum on Sundays.

SEVEN WOMEN HOLD BACK TARTAR BAND

Twenty Raiders Routed from Armenian Hamlet Until Men Folk Return.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Odessa, Sept. 29.—For forty-eight hours seven Armenian women defended the hamlet of Zhiun, in the Caucasus, against a band of twenty well armed Tartars.

The men of Zhiun departed to help defend another Armenian settlement, but before they arrived the Tartars raised the siege and descended on what they believed to be defenceless Zhiun.

Zhiun stands on the brow of a steep hill, accessible only from one side. The women swore to fight to the last, and, if the defence failed, to commit suicide.

The Tartars attempted to scale the hill at midnight. The heroic women rolled a can of kerosene, fitted with a fuse, down the hill and set fire to the vegetation. The Tartars, dazzled by the flames, attempted to retreat, but lost three men from rifle shots.

At daybreak they scaled the hill almost to the summit, but were fired on from the windows of houses and put to flight.

Next morning the Armenian men folk returned unexpectedly and, taking the invaders in the rear, killed all but three.

Officers and Passengers Deny That Anegawa Deliberately Abandoned Them.

THOSE ON BOARD WERE TRANSFERRED SAFELY

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Honolulu, Sept. 29.—The officers and the passengers of the stranded steamer Mongolia indignantly report that the Japanese training ship Anegawa deliberately abandoned them and also that Purser Rennie was roughly ordered off the Anegawa while begging assistance.

The Anegawa officers say the story is false, that they rendered every assistance in their power. They say they lost all their hawsers while trying to give assistance, and that the vessel was short of coal.

The Anegawa reports that the Restorer, Buford and Iroquois arrived the next day with the proper tackle and the passengers were transferred safely.

BERLIN UNIVERSITY FAVORS STUDENTS FROM AMERICA.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—A decision affecting every American student who desires to enter Berlin University has just been made.

The edict governing the conditions for entrance states that on presenting diplomas from their schools or gymnasiums all applicants except English and Americans would be received. Dr. Dickie, pastor of the American Church here, took up the matter, and Dr. Althoff, head of the University Bureau of the Ministry of Education, admitted that the order did not seem just, and suggested that Dr. Dickie confer with the authorities. This was done, and the rule now is that Americans desiring Ph. D. diplomas must show B. A. certificates, but those who intend to take only short courses need only produce certificates issued by the United States ambassador.

RADIUM BATHS NOW IN AUSTRIAN SPRINGS

12,000 Volts Utilized for Medicinal Plunges and Water Treatment.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Vienna, Sept. 29.—Radium is now used as a curative agency, and Joachimsthal, where the precious substance is found, will soon be a radium cure resort.

The springs which contain about 12,000 volts of radium are being utilized for medicinal baths and water cure. The Austrian Ministry of Agriculture has established at Joachimsthal a laboratory for the production of radium salts.

The Vienna Academy of Science has received from the Government 22,500 pounds of uranium ore from which $200,000 worth of radium has been extracted.

BELGIAN ARISTOCRAT WEDS.

Brussels, Sept. 29.—The marriage of Mlle. Boel to Count Felix Goblet d'Alviella, which took place at Court St. Etienne, was particularly interesting to American residents in Belgium because the Count's mother, the Countess d'Alviella, was a Miss Margaret Packard of Albany, N. Y. A fashionable gathering of Americans and members of Belgian aristocracy was present.

HAYTI GIVES UP MEN WHO SLEW AMERICANS.

Santo Domingans Accused of Murder of Customs Collectors Surrendered.

TRAGEDY RESULT OF SMUGGLERS' QUARREL

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Port au Prince, Sept. 29.—The two Santo Domingans, Santiago and El Marcln, accused of the murder of Charles P. Thurston and John Milbourne, the Americans employed as collectors in the Santo Domingan Custom House service, who were killed by smugglers near Las Matas in August, were yesterday delivered to the Domingan authorities and American Custom House officers on board a Domingan steamer, which left this port immediately for Santo Domingo.

The prisoners, who were arrested here in the latter part of August, say that the Americans opened fire on them first, when the Santo Domingans demanded the return of some merchandise which had been confiscated by the Custom House officers.

There are a number of versions of the affair, but the most consistent is that the Americans seized merchandise valued at about $6,000, purchased here by Italian and Domingan smugglers, and that the next morning the Americans were murdered while at breakfast, without being able to defend themselves.

There being no extradition treaty between Hayti and Santo Domingo the prisoners were delivered to the Domingan authorities solely out of courtesy to the American and Domingan governments.

PRINCE OF MONACO BESTED BY COACHMAN

Tried to Discharge Man Engaged for Two Months and Had to Pay.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Paris, Sept. 29.—The Prince of Monaco, who is spending a part of the Summer at Lazarees, near Paris, under the name of M. Louvet, had an exciting time with his coachman, whom he tried to discharge. The man declared he had been engaged for two months at wages amounting to 225 francs, and as he had only served one month of that time he would not budge until he got the money for the other month.

The Prince offered him the usual week's wages, but the man refused and said anybody who tried to put him out would be killed. The police declared he and committed no crime such as theft or assault, and they refused to interfere. The Prince had no way out of it other than to settle the man's claims and give him the full month's wages.

$270 FROFIT IN $30 DEAL IN REAL ESTATE.

Land Bought on Instalment Plan Almost Turns Into Cold Cash.

ONLY ONE INSTANCE OF WAGE EARNERS' GAINS

A profit of $270 on an investment of $30—just 900 per cent.—then embarkation for a little trip to Europe.

Such was not the result of a "fluke" in some wildcat mining scheme, but of a few dollars put into real estate. It happened last week.

A Boston man, who is employed in the business office of one of the newspapers of this city and has only his salary to draw from, started to buy a lot of land on the instalment plan. He paid the $30 as a deposit and was to pay the balance on easy terms. That was last June.

The land was to cost $700. Last week he sold the land, through a broker, for $1,000. He did not own the land, of course, but the difference, $300, was paid to him and the land was paid for with the remaining $700. If this man had paid the full amount, $700, his profit in less than four months would have been a little more than 40 per cent. Most business men are content to realize 6 per cent. yearly on their capital.

Only One of Many.

This is only one of many cases that could be cited for the benefit of the readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. Others have already been described. It is the old story of money growing before your eyes when it is put into real estate. The Boston public has not been aware that big profits, comparatively, have been made month after month by wage earners who bought land. That is why these instances are given. Vague knowledge is had of big money in big deals, here and there throughout the country. But specific information that opportunities for money-making obtain right here in Greater Boston has not been given.

It should be borne in mind that money put into land cannot be lost. Facts showing how the money increases by virtue of the land itself should, naturally, all the more lead wage earners with a little money saved to wake up to the possibilities before them.

The transaction mentioned was made in a dwelling lot in Winthrop. This lot was one of a great many, all of which had been a part of land devoted to farm purposes. The land was divided into house lots and sold on easy terms. The value of all these lots has increased about 40 per cent. since last June. What is true with these lots is true of others and will be true of still others, again and again.

Old Family Estates.

The Winthrop property, which is selected to-day as an illustration of what can be done in real estate in and around Boston, was for many years the home of two distinguished United States judges, Loring and Lowell, and of George Emerson, the great educator, who founded the first Normal School. For generations the farms had been in the possession of these families. The descendants to-day tell of the Mayflower and of Puritan and Pilgrims who were their forbears. Fifty years ago no member of these families thought about dividing their farms into house lots. A one-house lot, in fact, was hardly worth thinking about in those days. The town of Winthrop, furthermore, was hardly on the map, as far as the business men of Boston were concerned.

The change began when George Emerson with no thought of future business enterprises, but with a love for the beauties of nature, sent to England, Scotland and Norway for trees. He transplanted two thousand trees. These have flourished splendidly. Slips from them have become other fine trees in the town. When these trees were first planted on the farms the land was worth, at the most, about $100 an acre, and as much as that only because the owners had no thought of selling. To-day the land, divided as it is into house lots which are owned separately, could not be bought by the acre, but an acre in area is worth fully $10,000—a hundred times what it was worth before the trees were planted.

Big Demand for Lots.

The land eventually was placed at the disposal of a trustee of the estate owning it. About fifteen years ago the first steps were taken toward improving it. Streets were built, and some land was sold as house lots. The sales were quiet for the next five years, but started afresh about ten years ago. Then the spirit of commercialism crystallized rapidly. Further improvements were made and real estate brokers were engaged to sell the land, which was finally divided all into house lots. The lots have all been sold, and hence this is merely a record of facts and not of futures.

Just here comes one of the most remarkable events in the real estate history of this vicinity. The brokers who had been engaged to dispose of the house lots advertised a public sale to be held June 18 last. By May 30, Decoration Day, every one of the lots had been sold. That was nearly three weeks in advance of the advertised sale. The Boston man, mentioned above, was one of those who bought. As all the lots were offered on easy terms, he had paid only $30 up to the time last week when he sold his lot for $300 more than it would have cost if he had paid for it in full.

Others Share Luck.

Others have had similar experiences in these lots, which happen to be in a district called Court Park. Another man who paid $30 took $225 profit. The lots averaged $600 to $800 apiece. The one bought by the Boston man cost $700, as before stated, and sold at $1,000. Two other lots which had been bought at $700, but only partly paid for, were sold this last week at $900, the original purchaser pocketing the difference. It is easily to be determined what profits could have been made by men who bought several lots at the rate of $5 a month and then sold them all at an advance of several hundred dollars in each case.

As for the entire tract of land itself, it might be stated that it comprised about 2,000,000 square feet originally. The tract referred to as being sold last May included about 1,300,000 square feet, or approximately thirty acres. Fifty years ago this land, a $100 an acre, would have been worth just $3,000. To-day the district, improved as it is, with its fine streets and attractive houses, would be worth $300,000 if it could be sold in one piece. If all the lots were sold separately, at the present average of $1,000 each, the land would bring about $240,000, for as each lot contains about 5,000 square feet, there are at least eight lots to every acre, and in the thirty acres there are over 240 lots. At $10,000 an acre the entire tract is worth well over the $240,000.

Wealth Right at Home.

All this is exclusive of the houses which have been built, and which make the property worth much more. The houses, too, are selling at advanced prices.

What was done in that section of Greater Boston can be and will be done again. Those who will make the profits will be those who appreciate the merits of real estate. Ownership of real estate is an infallible security, one of the few such as can result in large profits. Best of all the security is to be had right around Boston, and appreciation of this fact is free to all.

Our appeal to the public met with an instantaneous response. We have been fairly swamped with orders for stock in the Copper Belt Mines, and we wish to thank our friends for their marked expression of confidence in us and in our property. Our organization is now complete, and we are prepared to enter upon the second lap of our campaign with a well equipped office force, and will take care of orders with promptness.

THE COPPER BELT MINES COMPANY. Arthur A. Taylor, Sec'y & Treas.

THE STORY OF THE COPPER BELT MINES RETOLD.

WE told the story of the Copper Belt property a week or two ago in the columns of the press, and it was evidently read by a great number of people, if we may judge by the amount of stock sold.

Still there must be many who either did not read the story, or if they did, dismissed it with a glance or classed it with the many get-rich-quick propositions that seem to be flourishing again.

Let us tell the story again.

It is not long.

WHO ARE BACK OF THE COPPER BELT MINES CO.?

First of all, let us take up the management—the men behind the mine. We are not stock jobbers.

Two of our officers are well known business men of Chicago.

E. S. Averill is General Superintendent of the United States Express Co., a man perhaps more widely known in this country than any other man on the directory.

Arthur A. Taylor was formerly owner and manager of the Modern Cycle Co., and has been frequently appointed as Trustee by the U. S. and State courts in settlement of large estates.

He is giving the company the benefit of his entire time and executive ability in the home office in Chicago.

Edwin Hall, the president of the Company, makes his home in Lincoln, Neb., although for the past twenty years he has not been there much, having been actively engaged as a mining engineer in the West and in Mexico during those years. His record is a fine one—and the Company is to be congratulated in securing his services for its head.

Dr. B. L. Paine, a director, is of the firm of Miller & Paine, one of the large well known stores of Lincoln, Neb., and a large stockholder in this Company.

Peter McNicol is also connected with the firm of Miller & Paine, and is a careful, shrewd business man, who stands well in Lincoln.

H. C. Snyder is a prominent merchant of Lusk, Wyo., a town near our mines, besides being mayor of the town. He is very enthusiastic about the mines, and, being on the ground, is well qualified to express an opinion about them.

WE ARE NOT STOCK JOBBERS.

These are the men who are asking you to co-operate with them in the work of making a great producing property of the Copper Belt Mines Co. We believe their standing in the business world is sufficiently strong to allay any misgivings which might creep into the minds of timid people as to the management of the Company's holdings. Once again—

We are not stock jobbers, nor are we engaged in a stock jobbing enterprise.

THE STORY OF A MAN NAMED HALL.

The story of the Copper Belt Mine is closely woven around its President, Mr. Edwin Hall, a Mining Engineer.

Edwin Hall is a man who has made a life study of mining. He is a geologist as well as a practical mining engineer, and has been employed in the West and in Mexico for upwards of twenty years in looking up new mines and developing them when he found them for his employers.

He has been everything, from the mine boss to superintendent of a group of mines where every detail of the work came up to him for settlement.

He has drawn as high a salary as it was possible for a capable man to draw—but he was not satisfied.

He began to note the occasional glint of gray that was coming in his hair and the what-shall-I-do-when-I-am-old question began to bother him, too.

He had made fortunes for others and only a good living for himself in all those twenty years.

HALL BEGINS TO LOOK OUT FOR HIMSELF.

Finally he began to do a little quiet prospecting on his own account. Every time he went on a journey to report on a property for some rich syndicate he kept his weather eye open for something for Hall. And he did not take the first good thing he saw. He was like a good merchant who was looking for a likely spot to plant a business upon.

From Mexico to Montana this man fairly scoured the prospects and examined ores, made exhaustive tests and assays, talked with other men equally well posted on conditions in Wyoming, and finally found a group of claims in Laramie Co., Wyoming, a copper property that looked very good to him—plenty of ore, plenty of timber, plenty of water—seemingly an ideal proposition.

HALL FINDS A GREAT MINE.

To the north, and on the same ledge apparently, was the great Homestake Mines, whose mineral wealth is beyond compute; twenty miles to the south are the Sunrise Mines, where the Standard Oil has a magnificent property of untold richness, farther south is the Grand Encampment, where the great Penn-Wyoming and Ferris Haggerty Mines are the star producers, a group comprising nearly 700 mines, from which the camp derives its name, the Grand Encampment.

Mr. Hall was largely instrumental in the early development of that property, having in 1898 visited the Grand Encampment district to make a report on the Ferris Haggerty Mine, which was then merely a prospect, with a very shallow shaft.

In his report he told his people that work should be pressed on the mine to the secondary enrichment zone (a depth of about 150 feet), and in his opinion ore would then be encountered of larger extent and greater richness.

Work was commenced and within eighteen months the mine was sold for $1,1[illegible]000, has since been sold for $5,000,000 and to-day is conservatively worth $1[illegible],000,000.

Mr. Hall had once more proved his worth as an engineer, and thereafter was in greater demand than ever by mining syndicates.

WYOMING LOOKED GOOD.

As may be imagined, he became interested in that particular section of Wyoming, and when this resolve to do some prospecting on his own account became firmly fixed in his mind he selected that particular district for a base and organized a company, soon afterward known as the Copper Belt Mines, Co.

CONSULTING GEOLOGIST.

DR. G. E. CONDRA,
Profesor of Economic Geology, State University of Nebraska.

The mines are located on Rawhide Buttes in Laramie County, Wyoming, twelve miles south of Lusk, town on the C. & N. W. Ry., north of Colorado Fuel & Iron Co.'s mines at Sunrise, south of Homestake Mines.

The property controlled comprises thirty-five claims, about 600 acres; about 100 acres of pine timber; stream crosses property.

The formation of strata of schists, quartzite and lime, tilted at an angle of forty degrees to the east.

TWO YEARS' HARD WORK.

For two years thereafter Mr. Hall carried on active development work on the property; shafts were sunk, cross cuts were run and surface diggings made. On the Omaha, a tunnel 250 feet long cuts two well defined ore chutes, with increase in richness with depth. The Omaha is a proven mine.

Another mine in the group which has been proven to a depth of 300 feet is the Lucky Henry, the entire shaft being in ore, and the company covers the vein for over a mile.

Other development was done on other claims—each making a fine showing of rich ore—with rich values in gold, and after making careful assays of the ores from the "Omaha" and "Lucky Henry," as well as others in the group, Mr. Hall went before his board of directors and said:

HALL REPORTS TO DIRECTORS.

"Gentlemen, I am willing to stake not only all my savings of years, but my reputation as a Mining Engineer that these mines are equal, if not far superior to those of the famous 'Ferris-Haggerty' and 'Doane-Rambler' of the Grand Encampment District and the equal of the Great 'Greene Consolidated.'

"With careful and conservative management, proper machinery and equipment, your shares of stock should be worth in three years $5.00 a share.

"The ore bodies are continuous and show copper values ranging from $20.00 to $15[illegible] per ton.

COPPER MINES ALWAYS PAY.

"No man has ever invested his money and lost it in a property having such development and showings as yours unless it has been through incompetency or dishonesty of the management. Nor does history record a single instance of a copper mine pinching out as is the case with other ores.

"We have ore enough in these mines to keep us going for years and years."

Pretty strong talk from a conservative mining engineer!

So much for the man at the head of the mines, the right man in the right place.

COPPER MINES PAY ENORMOUSLY.

Look at the enormous increase in values on an investment of $1,000 in copper stock in a few years, and compare it with the average of investments:

$1,000 invested in Greene Consolidated in 1901 is now worth	$87,000
$1,000 invested in United Verde in 1897 is now worth	300,000
$1,000 invested in Boston & Montana in 1890 is now worth	18,000
$1,000 invested in Wolverine in 1893 is now worth .	50,000
$1,000 invested in Calumet & Arizona in 1902 is now worth	100,000
$1,000 invested in Calumet & Pittsburg in 1903 is now worth	50,000

Let us compare these earnings with the so-styled conservative investments:

$1,000 in the bank earns	$30 Yearly
$1,000 First Mortgages earns	$55 Yearly
$1,000 in good bond	$45 Yearly

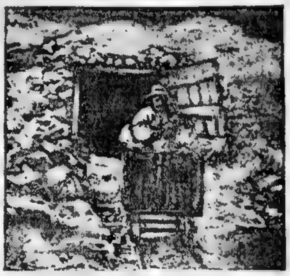
Which investment will you choose?

When the Copper Belt Mills are grinding out 500 tons of ore daily, which they should do within a short time after they are completed, an investment of $1,000 should earn $6,250 yearly!

[$1,000 will buy 5,000 shares of our stock at 20c. per share.]

If they only earn one half the estimated earnings it would still be a great return on $1,000, wouldn't it?



Car of Rich Ore From Omaha Tunnel.

FABULOUS FIGURES.

Such figures look fabulous to the man or woman who are not posted on what copper mines have been doing of late years, but they can easily be verified.

[illegible] 7 per cent [illegible] value of our ore, although some of the showings would justify our figuring on 8 to 10 per cent. values, and in all probability as high as 10 per cent. [illegible] these are GREAT MINES, the greatest since Greene Consolidated were opened up, in Mr. Hall's opinion, and there is no man in America better able to express an opinion on a copper mine.

LET US UNDERSTAND ONE ANOTHER.

Let us have a perfectly clear understanding. We are not doing any long range guessing on these figures. Mr. Hall has been actively engaged in actual mining for 20 years, a good part of that time in copper mines.

His conclusions as to formations and character of ore are backed up by no less an authority than Prof. Geo. E. Condra, who is professor of Economic Geology in the Nebraska State University—one of the most prominent geologists in the world. [illegible] following report on the [illegible].

A FAMOUS GEOLOGIST MAKES REPORT.

Statement from Dr. Geo. E. Condra, Professor of Economic Geology, Nebraska State University, Lincoln, Neb., regarding the topography and geological structure in the vicinity of the Copper Belt Mines in W[illegible]:

STRUCTURE.—The district is composed [illegible] alternating beds of mica [illegible] and thin beds of limestone [illegible] north and south and have a [illegible] dip. Flexures and shear [illegible] developed locally. [illegible] earth, granite, intrusions and [illegible] in the highest eleva[illegible] the east of your claims.

Tertiary beds nearly horizontal in position surround the buttes or mountains [illegible]. Lying on the tertiary rocks are pebbles and boulders of [illegible]. They form quite distinct benches to [illegible].

REGION VERY OLD.

Geologically speaking, the region is very old. In most respects it is much like the Black Hills and Laramie uplifts. In fact the [illegible] were united at one time as an elongated uplift which later was eroded [illegible]. The regions though somewhat separated [illegible] have had the same history. They were distinctly elevated [illegible] depressed at least three times during the geologic periods. Their mountains were the highest during the tertiary times. Later, during that [illegible] the mountain range was nearly [illegible] beneath the thick layers of sand and gravel, which now [illegible] the Black Hills and Raw Hide Buttes and extend eastward over the High Plains. The lowest mountains were then completely covered up, only the tops of a few of them now rise above the plains. Such peaks may be seen near Lusk. The higher points in Raw Hide Buttes and Black Hills stood out more prominently than the rest, but they do not have a more typical mountain structure than the lower subdued places, which are in fact the bases of mountains.

RESEMBLES BLACK HILLS.

POSSIBILITIES.—The district resembles the Black Hills in topography, history and [illegible] deformed [illegible] region [illegible] conditions [illegible] presence of [illegible]. The [illegible] are followed into schists and [illegible] zones which in [illegible] show at the [illegible] at a number of places, and it would seem that deeper mining should encounter [illegible]. [illegible] the [illegible] is favorable for the development of a group of mines the worth of which may be proved by deeper shafting.

(Signed) GEO. E. CONDRA.

WE SAFEGUARD YOUR INTERESTS.

You can easily see that we are trying to safeguard your [illegible] at every point.

None of us have any money to lose, and [illegible] reports with their [illegible] WE COULD NOT FURNISH SUCH REPORTS [illegible].

We [illegible] fortunate in having [illegible] Dr. Condra [illegible] the greatest assistance to us.

THE MERITS OF THE PROPOSITION.

If you [illegible] proposition you must do so on its merits, not on our statements [illegible] proposition at all points. We have purposely underestimated the actual conditions so as to keep within conservative limits.

We [illegible] very easily.

We have nothing to conceal.

It is [illegible] the center, but we won't do so.

The necessary money [illegible] with a [illegible].

You have the [illegible] own hands; don't let it go by DEFAULT.

It is too good to pass up with [illegible] Hall, Averill, or Taylor [illegible].

NO LEAKS ANYWHERE.

No salaries will be paid out [illegible] order received, except for legitimate needs of the enterprise. [illegible] proposition that is not fair and square and [illegible] offering [illegible] a kind [illegible] showing [illegible] your entire satisfaction.

WHAT YOUR STOCK SHOULD EARN.

[illegible]	At 20c [illegible]	[illegible]
$200.00	1,000 shares,	$1,250.00
$300.00	1,500 shares	$1,875.00
$400.00	2,000 shares	$2,500.00
$1,000.00	5,000 shares	$6,250.00

These figures are based on 7 per cent ore, although our assays show as high as 15 per cent in copper and from $1.00 to $12.00 values in gold to the ton. Ore that assays 6 per cent in copper gives a ton value of $[illegible]. The present price of copper is [illegible].

[illegible] approximate, [illegible] copper [illegible] and they [illegible] estimates [illegible] the mine is fully capitalized, has plenty of rich ore and is economically managed. The figures given above are very conservative. When we get down into greater depths below the secondary enrichment zone, which in our district is about [illegible] feet down, we shall undoubtedly make a showing that will make the above figures seem tame.

And we are going down where the great ore bodies are. How soon depends on how fast the stock is subscribed for.

WE DEAL DIRECT WITH YOU.

One thing we want to impress on your [illegible] into machinery and [illegible] of the property. You can [illegible] office, No. 901 in the Merchants' Loan and Trust Building, 135 Adams St., [illegible] talk [illegible] samples of our ore.

If you can't come in person you can do the next best thing: write direct to the company at that address and receive prospectus and full particulars.

This stock will go quickly. People are [illegible] Greene Consolidated proposition. Not at 20 cents per share, and our advice to you is not [illegible] the right to advance the price without notice.

The allotment of shares at 20 cents is [illegible] cents at 25 cents per share, 10 per cent of total [illegible] with [illegible] payments.

We should sell all [illegible] shares within the next week, but [illegible] see that [illegible] delay, so [illegible] money [illegible].

HOW YOU MAY BUY STOCK NOW.

100	$20.00	$25.00	$2.50	$2.50
200	40.00	50.00	5.00	5.00
300	60.00	75.00	7.50	7.50
500	100.00	125.00	12.50	12.50
1,000	200.00	250.00	25.00	25.00

We began the sale of this stock about two weeks ago, the first allotment being offered at 10c cash, 12½c on time payments. Evidently we told our story well, and the personnel of the men connected with the Company impressed the public favorably, for the entire allotment was sold out within ten days, and we have had to return the subscriptions of those who were too late to buy at the opening price of 10c. The next allotment is hereby offered at 20c cash, 25c time per share. Sufficient money has been subscribed to enable us to place orders for machinery. Mr. Hall is now in the west looking at a number of plants, but will return to Chicago tomorrow to meet prospective investors. He has been equipping mines for years with machinery and knows where to go for bargains. We propose to save money—your money and ours—in the equipment. Used machinery that is in good shape is just as good as new for our needs, if it can be found. You may safely leave the buying to Mr. Hall. He will make no mistakes. When this machinery is installed, which it will be within a short time, we shall jump the price of the stock again. Perhaps another 100%, perhaps more. The mines are being worked every day. They are not prospects. The stock should sell for 50c a share now and should go to $2.00 per share before very long. If you want to make an investment that will last practically forever buy Copper Belt at 20c. Buy all you can pay for.

Buy the stock and settle it on those dependent on you. It's the best opportunity for insurance offered today. Look at the record of the Coppers. One Copper mine that cost $1,200,000 paid in one year ten million dollars in dividends, while four of the largest Western trunk line railroads, with 17,000 miles of track, paid only $9,750,000 dividends. Thirty-two of the leading Copper mines in this country on a paid-in capital of $92,000,000 have paid over $230,000,000 in dividends, while no railroad in the United States has ever paid back its original cost. The Steel Trust, with a capitalization of $1,400,000,000, earned only $74,000,000 profit last year.

Of the seven largest dividend-paying mines in the United States today, six are Copper mines.

No wonder the shrewd investors are hunting for good Copper stocks!

Buy Copper Belt—put it away. It will keep you in comfort when the evening of your life comes and you are no longer able to fight the battle for a living.

Copper stocks offer the safety of a government bond, with the speculative element of a gold mine. Copper is king of all investments today.

GAMES TODAY.

Boston at St. Louis.
Washington at Chicago.

This is the last week of the baseball season of 1906, so far as the championships of the American and National league are concerned. Then the winner of the National League pennant, which is sure to be Chicago, will meet the victor in the American League, which will probably be either New York or Chicago.

The chances are strongly in favor of the two Chicago teams meeting for the coveted honors, and if this should take place it's a good bet that the Cubs will capture the world's honors, as they easily defeated the White Sox in the post series last season when the Americans had nearly the same team as they have at present.

However, the American race is far from being over. It is possible that either Cleveland or New York will win out, but not probable, as the Chicagos play all but three of their remaining nine games at home, while the Highlanders, who have the second-best chance of landing the flag, have got to play their entire schedule away from home.

"Many a Slip," etc.

"There is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," and this old saying may hold true in the present case. The Chicagos have a very hard schedule to finish, while that of the Highlanders is comparatively easy. At present the three leading teams stand thus:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Chicago	88	55	.615
New York	87	59	.596
Cleveland	85	61	.582

Whatever hope the Cleveland fans had of the Indians capturing the flag was dissipated yesterday when their prides were beaten by the Highlanders. This beating practically put the Naps out of the running. Chicago did not play.

Two with Senators To-day.

The White Sox will play the Senators two games to-day on their home grounds. Recently, when the Windy City team had their wonderful winning streak, it was none other than the Washington Club that stopped them by winning a double header. The Highlanders' supporters are hoping that Jake Stahl's men will be able to do the same stunt to-day. If they do happen to beat the Sox twice New York, with 87, will have one less game won than the Sox, and two more lost. Then if the New Yorkers should beat the Athletics three straight while the Sox lose the same number to the Ravens, it would put the Highlanders ahead.

Surely New York has now got a good fighting chance, as the medical profession

BY ALEXANDER C. SULLIVAN.

In a good, bad and indifferent game of ball at the South End grounds yesterday afternoon, the Boston Nationals defeated the Cincinnati Reds by a score of 7 to 3. The visitors got a lead of three runs in the first two innings, but after that, big Lindaman, who was on the firing line for the locals, settled down, and prevented them from further scoring.

A small crowd was present at the festivities, and they were a quiet bunch until the home team got after the ball in the fifth inning and hammered it all over the lot, going into the lead, making a score of 4 to 3. After this period the Tenneyites were never in danger of losing their ground, and the Reds died very tamely.

Lindaman in Good Form.

Lindaman was in good form and pitched an elegant game with the exception of the first and second innings. Five hits is the total of bingles made by the Redlegs, Lobert and clever little Miller Huggins getting two apiece.

Del Mason, who was recently purchased from the Baltimores of the Eastern League, was on the rubber for the visitors. He started off well, but after a while the Tenneyites got on to him, and in the eighth he was obliged to give way to Bill Essick.

Mason is a twirler absolutely without any frills. He makes no preliminary [illegible] his delivery of the ball, and through this method is able to keep from the view of the batter what curves he is likely to throw. In the Eastern League Mason had the best record of any pitcher, and in the games he has tossed so far for the Reds he has done fairly well.

Essick, who took Mason's place in the box in the eighth inning, hails from the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League. In that organization he was also rated the star pitcher.

Bostons Wore Their Batting Shoes.

The Bostons had their batting shoes on [illegible] Brain, the former Pirate, was the king of the game. He got three hits, one of them a homer.

Brain's circuit hit went to the centerfield fence, and Dave, who is not a very good base runner, managed to get home just before the ball got into Catcher McLean's hands.

Bates and Connaughton were the only members of the Boston tribe who were not able to connect with the ball safely. Dolan and Brown were the second-best hitters, each getting two hits for a total of three.

FAST TIME MADE IN TRIALS FOR THE CUP RACE.

New York, Sept. 29.—No less than twelve out of the eighteen contestants in the Vanderbilt cup race were out on the course to-day, including Herring in the Haynes car, Tracy in his Locomobile and [illegible] in his direct driving car. The course was in very bad condition, but in spite of the rough condition [illegible] was credited with a round in twenty-nine minutes and thirty seconds.

The figures reported for the morning's practice are as follows:

Lancia, Fiat, 29¾m.; Jenatzy, Mercedes, 30m.; Tracy, Locomobile, 32 and 34m.; Shephard, Hotchkiss, 34m.; Wallace [illegible] Fiat, 36m.; Mazzaro, Fiat, [illegible]; Heath, Panhard, [illegible]; Christie, Christie, 38m.; Luttgen, Mercedes, 38m.; Cagno, Italia, 40m.; Harding, Haynes, 40m.

Duray, De Dietrich, who made a very fast round yesterday, had a puncture and did not complete a round.

Sir Thomas Can't Get Builder For Cup Challenger Under the Old Rule

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, Sept. 29.—Sir Thomas Lipton was a passenger on the White Star liner Celtic, which arrived to-day. When asked about a possible challenge for the American Cup, he said:

"I would challenge to-morrow provided I could get the New York Yacht Club to accept one under their new rule, which provides for a more seaworthy and wholesome type of boat. I can't challenge under their old rule for the simple reason that I can find no designer in England who would build a boat under those conditions."

Continuing, he said: "Of course any challenge would have to come through my club. I am here to meet some of my American friends and will call at the New York Yacht Club on Monday or Tuesday, when I will try to find out what their views are on the subject and incidentally ascertain 'where I am at.'

"There is not very much time left to challenge for a race next year, for if I come I want to come with a boat that will have a chance.

"I am sure the New York Yacht Club people will meet me half way, as they have never thrown a difficulty in my path. [illegible], there is no man in England who will take on the job of building [illegible] No one I hire and no money can induce them to design a boat under the old conditions.

"I have been in consultation with Fife and Mylne but neither of them would consider an offer to design a boat for the reason that every year it is getting more risky to cross the Atlantic with boats carrying such tremendous overhangs. It is not that we can't build a boat but the danger of trying to cross the Atlantic in one of these flimsy shells, which endangers the lives of its crew and everyone else.

"The new rule of the New York Yacht Club, as I understand it, produces a good wholesome type of boat, and nothing would suit me better than to put a good boat in the water that would be likely to lift the cup. I am in for the sport, but I want to have faith in my boat."

In answer to a question, Sir Thomas said:

"I would be willing to challenge with a 70-footer, or any sized boat that would make good sport and produce a wholesome type of boat which would benefit yachting as a whole. [illegible] including one which resulted fatally."

Sir Thomas will remain here until Tuesday night, when he will go to Chicago to witness a yacht race on Saturday, returning to New York [illegible]

TEN YARDS RULE DISPLEASES MOST OF THE COACHES

TORREY, of Pennsylvania:

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—"We did not have much chance to try the rules, on account of the one-sidedness of the game, but I don't think much of the forward pass. Penn tried it four times but it was only successful once, and then on a fluke. It will take a ten measurer our own strength to test the rules [illegible] until we are forced to our utmost. [illegible] I do not think they have improved football from any standpoint."

FOLSOM, of Dartmouth:

Hanover, Sept. 29.—"To my mind the result justified my former statement. No gain can be made with two fairly well matched teams. The one-side kick is the worst feature of the new rules. [illegible] I [illegible] that the ten yard [illegible]"

PIERCE, of West Point:

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 29.—"A definite opinion as to the full effect of the new rules of the game of football cannot be given until two nearly matched and well trained and developed football teams contest under them. However enough is already known from our practice at West Point and the game with Tufts to-day for us to say that football will be more open and more interesting to the spectators this season than last. Consistent gains of ten yards in three downs cannot be made from mass formations where the [illegible] punting and an occasional massing on the counter when the defense [illegible] Good general [illegible] than ever. The liability to injury in line plays is lessened but the danger of injury due to the on-side off kick may overbalance this. Brutality cannot exist in the present game if the officials are at all efficient."

ROBINSON, of Brown:

Providence, R. I., Sept. 29.—"I am not especially enthusiastic over the new rules. The 10-yard rule I am particularly opposed to. I believe the gain within the 25-yard line should be only 5 yards and on the rest of the gridiron 10 yards in three downs. When two fairly evenly matched elevens meet the only hope of touchdowns will be on fumbles. The game is now only a series of punting and quarterback kicks. New Hampshire tried only one forward pass and little advantage will be taken of that rule."

KING, of Holy Cross:

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 29.—"Ten yards is too large a distance for an interesting game. Of course there is the end run, but men are not made any speedier than they

Not Put on Bulletin Board, and Spectators Thought Tally Was 5 to 0.

TOUCHDOWN RESULT OF A BLOCKED KICK

Williams Team Unable to Make Headway and Resorts to Punting Tactics.

BY I. S. CLARK.

Harvard has played her first football contest and won. And that about covers the result of the game played yesterday in the Stadium when Williams got licked by the scanty score of 7 to 0 and went back to the Berkshires gloating over the fact that the Crimson could not get away with a bigger tally.

Those rare seven points were chalked up and were the result of a blocked punt in the first half, which was of fifteen minutes duration, while in the second period of ten minutes Williams was forced to a safety. A few minutes more would have put the Crimson again behind the Williams goal as the ball was on the ten yard line when the whistle blew.

Crowd Missed the Safety.

The spectators were in ignorance of Harvard getting two points on Williams's safety, as the bulletin board failed to give the Crimson credit, assuming the play was a touchback as it looked to be at any distance from the play itself.

Foster made one of his long punts and Clay fumbled the ball a few feet in front of his goal line and it rolled behind the posts, where Clay fell on it while he was covered by several Harvard tacklers.

As the ball touched an opposing player after being kicked and went over the line, the player holding being downed with the ball, it was recorded as a safety.

The official made the announcement that the game was over and then it was discovered that Harvard had a result of 7 instead of 5 points.

To Williams the result was highly gratifying, as to hold one of the big four down to one touchdown was more than her most ardent admirers looked for, while a big wave of disappointment hovered over the Harvard men who viewed the game from the side lines.

The 5,000 spectators who looked on from the stadium seats evidently were not overawed by the game itself under the revised conditions. They came to see Harvard exemplify on the gridiron some of the new plays as provided for by the changing of the rules, but they saw little to enthuse over unless it was the increased amount of kicking which was indulged in by both teams.

Where Was the Forward Pass?

The forward pass which many were on the alert for must have been filed away for future reference as neither side dared to spring it because of the uncertain possibilities it might develop.

The demand on a team to gain ten ds instead of five demonstrated that it s of use to the weaker team, for even rvard with a heavier rush line found aking the distance a hard task and time ul again had to resort to the quarter ack on side kick to get out of holes. his procedure gave Williams an even ance for the ball and it helped to keep e score down.

As Harvard and Williams played the me it looked tame in comparison with old style. There was no ripping and ing line work as seen in the past, ich may be accounted for by the earl of the season.

he predictions of more injuries re ing in the use of the new methods day failed to materialize as time was taken out in the 25 minutes of play use of any disabled player. Neither a was forced to change its lineup on unt of too much strain and the alation in the second period was done the convenience of the coaches.

Lots of Speed in Harvard.

hat Harvard is imbued with lots of speed was apparent by the close follow ing of the ball. Every man on the team howed that he knew the importance of tting close to the pigskin whenever it ent in the air and it was due to snappy ork in the first half when Williams was the shadow of its goal that the Crimn centre men [illegible] and blocked the [illegible] as it [illegible] arvard had an [illegible] opportunity [illegible] t it in the same [illegible] bad away [illegible] but this time [illegible] enough to [illegible] line of [illegible] r line on the ability of the Crimson in its first game, but it was sufficient how that the players who made up team were a heady lot and some day form an eleven which will give Yale ore than a scare.

Considering the lack of scrimmage work he team has had it got along finely, allowances being made for the fumbling which would be inexcusable later on. Peculiarly what was done in the banging was contributed by the older members of the team.

Harvard depended upon straight football almost throughout, using the onside kick when held in check. Plays were aimed outside guard and tackle but they failed to make ground enough to gain first downs. End plays which were tried came to grief as the rusher was afforded no protection and had to shift for himself when he made dash for the extremity of he line.

Foster's Long Punts.

Foster's long punting [illegible] feature in Harvard's game [illegible] captain was there with the foot when called upon to lift the leather down the field, and with the aid of the wind, the ball sailed along for flights of fifty yards. The punting was almost too strong for the ends who did valiant service otherwise as a fumble on the goal line by the Williams back field player left a chance open for a score, but it proved a safety for the visitors.

Harvard's ends proved satisfactory, as McDonald and Kennard got down the field fast, and were always at hand on the short quarterback kick. The linesmen also did all that was expected of them and Williams could not manage to gain any ground by assaulting the Harvard's forwards. Harvard's defence was superior to her offensive tactics, and the individual coaching, which was responsible for this strength, was clearly in evidence. It is up to the coaches now to improve the rushing side of the game.

With such excellent material in Captain Foster, Wendell, Lockwood, Mason and Apollonio to deal with some strides around be made in furnishing Harvard with a fine set of backs.

In the kicking game the [illegible] well supplied, as Foster [illegible] and with Burr also in the [illegible] end Newhall close behind, this side of the game is well provided for.

It will need some stiff work to verse the Harvard men how to make the best of the new rules and also mold a team at the same time.

Williams Wins Toss.

Williams won the toss and chose the end of the field favored by the wind and gave Harvard the ball. The Williams men took their formation for the kick and Parker stood the ball on end to start hostilities.

He boosted it against the wind and More Westbrook collared the ball on his 25-yard line. The Harvard linesmen got too frisky trying to beat the ball, and Referee Pendelton penalized the team ten yards for interference.

On the first rush the Williams rusher fumbled the ball, and big Parker was on the spot to grab it, and Harvard had the ball on Williams's 33-yard line. Wendell got a good start around his left end and made ten yards before he was grounded. Apollonio bucked the line for three yards, but Foster could not get much distance at right tackle. Newhall tried the quarterback kick and the ball went outside the boundaries, giving Williams possession on her 16-yard line.

Captain Waters went back to kick out of danger but Parker was through like a flash and the ball hitting him, bounded back towards Williams's goal, with Kersburg and Inches tearing after it.

Crimson's First Touchdown.

Both landed on it about the same time just as it rolled across and Harvard got her first points of the year on a fluke. Kennard had an easy try for goal but was evidently nervous and missed the posts by several yards.

Parker again kicked off from the middle of the field and right end. Chapman, got his arms on the ball and came out to his thirty-six-yard line before being smothered. Williams could make no impression by line plunges and Waters kicked. Newhall fumbled with the Williams forwards charging him and the ball rolled outside, but in Harvard's ownership.

The Crimson was on the offense in midfield and began the assault on the Williams goal. Foster slid through right tackle for eight yards and Wendell made first down. Foster got the cue for a punt and lifted the ball over the goal line for a touchback, which gave Williams the privilege of kicking out from her twenty-five-yard line. Newhall made the catch and was forced to earth on Williams' forty-three-yard line. Appollonio hit the line for a gain of two yards.

Newhall sprung his quarterback kick, and this time McDonald got the ball for Harvard on Williams' thirty-yard line. In a couple of rushes on tackles Harvard got ten yards and Wendell was shoved outside when making the fifteen yard boundary. Wendell was sent at his left end, but failed to get far, and the ball went to Williams on downs on her fifteen yard line. Williams punted immediately and Newhall made a fair catch on Williams' forty-yard line, where Parker tried for a place kick from the field. He made a good attempt, but fell short in distance.

Williams Punts Frequently.

Williams punted out again. McDonald catching and running to Williams's 45 yard line. A quarterback kick gave the ball to Williams. Waters tried to circle his left [illegible] three him for a loss of three yeards. Harvard [illegible] for [illegible] On a cross-buck attack at left tackle Williams did not gain a foot, and Waters punted, Newhall catching him on his 45 yard line. Foster sent the leather behind Williams's goal posts on a magnificent high punt, and it went as a touchback for the Berkshire boys.

Williams kicked from the 25 yard line, and the wind carried the ball back, allowing Newhall to catch it on the Williams 35 yard line. Wendell was thrown for a loss when he endeavored to get around left end. Newhall made a rush at right end, but fumbled the ball when he was well out. Luckily McDonald was close by and saved the ball by falling on it on Williams's 30 yard line, where it was when time was called for the end of the first half.

Williams had the kickoff and Waters lifted to Kersburg, who rushed ten yards to Harvard's 35 yard line. Foster got a long punt away and to Williams' 25-yard mark. Waters found a hole at right tackle and plunged through for eight yards. Clay bucked the centre for a small gain and Waters signalled for a kick. The ball went to Williams' 50-yard line. Foster was nailed trying to navigate around right end and he was forced to punt and sent the ball in front of Williams goal. Clay touched it and then fell on it behind the goal line, making a safety as the Harvard men were on top of him.

Score—Harvard, 7; Williams, 0.

Holding by Harvard's Line.

Newhall ran Waters' kick back to Williams' 45 yard line. Wendell made a substantial rush for five yards, but he was called back as there was holding in the Harvard line, and Williams was given fifteen yards for the penalty. Foster made a 10-yard dash, but the team could not make up the big loss and Foster punted to Williams' 10-yard line, where C. Brown made a gain of ten yards before he was put out by the ends. Williams punted and Newhall was downed in his tracks in midfield. Newhall's short kick went to Williams' 25-yard line. A fumble cost Williams five yards. Waters punted to Newhall.

On the first rush Lockwood, who had replaced Wendell, cut off six yards and Foster went to a first down. Lockwood reached Williams' 20-yard line. Foster gained a yard banging the line and time was up when Harvard got on the 10-yard line.

GOING TO BROCKTON FAIR? HERE'S ROUTE FOR MOTORISTS.

Only Twenty-four Miles Over Fine Roads and Through Picturesque Country.

A short-distance run which will prove de[illegible] popular during the [illegible] at from Boston to [illegible] some twenty-three [illegible] over excellent roads [illegible] ing section.

There are three or four ways of reaching the Shoe City, where during the week will be held New England's greatest country fair. The route mapped out by the AMERICAN is unquestionably the best, not only shortest in distance but likewise the very best roads leading thereto.

The start can be made from the Back Bay Fens, driving through the same along Jamaica way, across Tremont street and direct to Forest Hills. At the latter place travel under the bridges and direct across the square, taking the turn to the left, and keep to right on all prominent bends. This takes one by the entrance to Forest Hills Cemetery and direct to Blue Hill avenue.

At the avenue turn right and go direct up hill and down dale to Mattapan square. Here cross the bridge and follow the parkway, forgetting all about Brush Hill and the parallel road. Follow the parkway to the first turn to left just beyond the Leopold Morse Home. Then turn left, continuing along for about two miles, and turn right with the car track.

Thence the road is straight, running through Randolph, Avon, Montello to Brockton. Once on the right road there are slight possibilities of losing one's way. It is a State highway from beginning to end, having some rather steep, yet no difficult ascents.

At Randolph pass through the square, [illegible] the large white building on the left, thence straight to Avon. Here leave soldiers' monument on left and follow car tracks direct to Brockton centre. [illegible] start ride and will [illegible] on Motor Day at Brockton [illegible] have been in the past. The opposing end plays so far out that it is practicly impossible except on a fluke or a mistake to get very far beyond him. Both the scores in the Holy Cross-M. A. C. game were caused by the new rules and neither showed predominance in either team. Conditions may arise during the middle of the season which may change one's views."

ROPER, of Princeton:

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 29.—"The new game promises to be a botched up affair, and when fully developed will closely resemble an open-field basket-ball game in its main features. While the game will be more spectacular, yet the frequent penalties will do much to offset any advantage on that side."

WARNER, of Cornell:

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 29.—"To-day Colgate played to old style football entirely, while Cornell experimented with the new form. It was evident that Cornel had the advantage over their heavier opponents, and that it was only lack of judgment at the critical moment that prevent us from scoring. To me, the new games seems to be a great improvement over the old."

J. S. Hathaway and Party Will See the Cup Race

Next Thursday forenoon J. S. Hathaway will leave for New York in his White Touring car. Mrs. Hathaway will accompany him and they will have as guests Postmaster George A. Hibbard and Mrs. Hibbard. The party will go by way of Providence to New London, where they will use the Steamer Manhansett to Greenport, L. I., and then tour up Long Island by what is known as the "Shore Road," reaching Garden City Friday night, and be in season for the Vanderbilt races Saturday morning. It is their intention to drive home from New York over the regular route, that is by way of Hartford and Springfield.

in the first inning, and they made some glaring errors. Huggins, the first man up, beat out a slow grounder to Howard. Kelley laid down a neat sacrifice, Lindaman to Tenney. Jude's grounder got by Manager Tenney, and Huggins scored. Smoot's grasser struck Howard on the foot. Lobert scratched a hit to Connaughton and Jude tallied. McLean hit to Howard, who tagged Lobert running for second, and threw to first for a double play.

In the second the Porktown aggregation got their third and last run. Corcoran placed a pretty single in left. Deal put up an easy fly for Tenney. Mason's grounder went through Connaughton's legs. Huggins beat out a bunt to Brain, filling the bases. Howard threw out Kelley, Corcoran crossing the pan. Jude flied to Cameron.

Bostons Got Going in Third.

The Bostons got going in the third. Lindaman walked and Dolan was hit by a pitched ball. Tenney singled to left, filling the bases. Brain hit into a double play, Corcoran to Huggins to Deal, Lindaman scoring. Huggins threw out Bates.

In the fifth the Bostons forged to the front with three runs. Brown doubled along third base. Lindaman singled through the box. Dolan singled to left, Brown scoring. Tenney sacrificed, Lobert to Deal. Brain singled to left, scoring Lindaman and Dolan. Bates fouled to Deal.

The Bostons got two more runs in the seventh. With one down, Dolan doubled to left. Tenney flied to Jude. Brain knocked a homer to the left centre fence, scoring Dolan ahead of him. Bates grounded to Deal.

The locals got their last tally in the eighth, after Essick had relieved Mason. Howard was winged. "Con" sacrificed, Essick to Deal. Cameron scratched a hit, scoring Howard. Brown singled to right and stole second. Lindaman fanned. Dolan walked. Tenney fouled to McLean and disappointed the fans, who thought he would slam the ball out of the diamond. The score:

CUBS LOSE AND WIN.

Special to Boston Sunday American.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 29.—Chicago, National League champions, and the Philadelphias played a double header here to-day before 4,527 people and split even on the deal. The Phillies, with Sparks in the box, won the first game in easy fashion, 6 to 2.

Richie was put in by the Phillies' captain in the second game, and a general shake-up was made in both batting orders. The Cubs jumped on Richie in the first inning and made three runs as against one scored by the Phillies in the sixth inning, it being agreed that the even half dozen innings would complete the second half of the double header. The six innings were played in 52 minutes. Scores:

Stirring Finishes at Dorchester Club Races on the Speedway

It took twenty-eight heats to decide the eight races the racing committee of the Dorchester Driving Club offered at its weekly matinee over the Franklin Field Speedway yesterday afternoon, and the spectators and members of the club present saw many a bruising contest from the time Starting Judge S. Walter Wales gave the word till the contestants had reached the wire.

Elsie Mack was pitted against a pacer, but the fight for the blue ribbon was the [illegible] of the day, as though Rex proved her master in straight heats, yet in none of them could the winner have been told till in the final strides, and then only by a head.

Another mixed race was between India Panis and George S., but in this instance the trotter came out of the conflict with the laurels. In the initial heat the former went to a bad break near the half, and was out of it. In the following three French kept his gelding on his stride, and that proved to be all there was to it.

To the surprise of many the pacer Wilkesbrino defeated Charley King, after allowing the latter to get the second heat. In accomplishing the feat Wilkesbrino was compelled to step the fastest of the sixteen horses that competed in the races—32 seconds, a 2.08 gait.

Before his race Fred Bellows thought he was rather up against it with his pride Helgamite in meeting W. W. Saylor, but the latter had not the speed he had previously shown on the speedway, and Fred went home particularly happy over the result.

In Class H, C. C. Blaney concluded to secure somebody else to drive Knox's Gelatine Boy for him, so picked up a chap that was loafing around to see the fun. He proved very clever with the ribbons, landing the pacer first over Hazelwood right off the reel, with the final heat in the good time of 33½ seconds. Being a modest person the pick-up of Blaney's refused to have his name in print as the driver of a fast horse, but all kinds of stories were floated as to whom he was. However, rumors that he was a professional were cast aside by the members of the club as not worthy of consideration, all knowing Blaney is an honest man.

American Beauty, Helvatia and George K. headed the summaries of the remaining races, much to the joy of the coterie of friends each had in the grandstand applauding them on to victory. Summary:

Gratt and Not Dan Patch Holds Stallion Record

The Readville trainer and driver, Henry Titer, was the cause of one of the changes in the weekly table of the fastest records of the year, by giving to Blue Hill, the son of Bingen, 2:06¼ and Nelly McGregor 2:14, a winning race record of 2:15¾ in the two-year-old futurity event of the Horse Review.

In the pacing division Argot Boy, 2:03½, in "Long Shot" Cox's stable, holds the record for five-year-olds, while the fastest new performer of the season is My Star, 2:03¾, the property of the Boston horseman, Jack Crabtree.

Under the joint ruling of the National and American Trotting Associations, in connection with the American Trotting Register Association, last Winter, no trotter or pacer can gain a record against time when they have been preceded by a pacemaker, or another horse in front. This admits of no doubt that the time of Dan Patch back of a wind or dirt shield, in 1:55, is of account only as a freak performance. Following is the table of fastest records of the year:

DORCHESTER CLUB WANTS ANOTHER MATINEE.

A the last meeting of the strategy board of the Dorchester Driving Club it was voted that the Lynn Driving Club be invited to meet them on October 20 at Combination Park, Medford, for a return intercity matinee.

If the latter organization accepts the challenge it will be the third intercity matinee between the two clubs. In the first one at Franklin Field last year the Dorchesters won by securing nine out of fourteen races. In the second clash, about a month since, at Peabody, the Lynns rubbed it into their opponents to the tune of ten races to six. Thus it means much to both clubs in the third set-to at Combination Park, being the rubber matinee.

There is a general feeling that in the coming meet four horses be started in each race, two from each club. This would mean more exciting racing than under the old plan of two-horse or match events.

A reply to the challenge is expected from Lynn the first of the week, the matter coming up for decision at the next meeting of the directors of that association. It will likely be accepted.

YACHTING LIPTON TALKS ABOUT CHALLENGE FOOTBALL HARVARD ELEVEN DEFEATS WILLIAMS RACING KENTUCKY BEAU WINS THE PROSPECT GOLF

NEW YORK WON FINAL GAME FROM NAPS.

say. On the remaining schedule the Gothamites may prove to have the advantage with their quintet of games, or the White Sox, with their nine, may have the best opportunity of winning.

It is a cinch that Fielder Jones' charges have a pretty stiff bunch of games to play this week. Besides to-day's double header with the Washingtons, to-morrow, Tuesday and Wednesday they face the Browns, on the latter's grounds. The McAleerites are making a big bid for second division these days, and they will fight the Sox hard as they know how, and it would not be surprising if they should win the entire series of games.

Sox Against the Naps.

Then, the Sox will play the Naps, another stiff proposition, in Chicago. The Lajoie tribe is likely to win two games from the Comiskeyites, and then where would be the Chicago team's cinch on winning.

After they get through with the Indians, the Sox clash with Detroit, in Chicago, next Sunday, for their final game of the season, while Cleveland faces St. Louis in the Mound City.

Meanwhile the Highlanders are playing the Athletics, who are easy marks these days, in Philadelphia for three games. It is not beyond the range of possibility that Griffiths' team will win three games and then march on to Boston, where they close their season Friday and Saturday with the tail-enders.

Of course, Chicago has got all the better of the argument at the present writing, but you never can tell, and the Highlanders may go to the front and win every game, while the Sox may drop six of theirs to their opponents.

Last Week of Ball Here.

This is the last week of baseball in this city. To-morrow and Tuesday the Reds will play their last two games, and on Wednesday the Brooklyns come to town for two games. Then the Tenneyites will hike to New York, where they wind up with the Giants while the Highlanders are playing the Stahl team here.

Verily, a remarkable season of surprises will close next Sunday, and the worst ever so far as Boston is concerned, but the local fans will bide their time reading the dope and awaiting for the season of 1907 to open, which may be full of better baseball than has been the one drawing to a close.

NEW YORK, 4; NAPS, 1.

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—A decided crimp was put in Cleveland's pennant aspirations this afternoon by the smiling Al Orth and the Highlanders, who bettered their own bunting chances by taking the final game of the series, 4 to 1. Orth had the goods on the Naps, Flick being the only Larajer who was able to land consistently. The smiling one held Lajoie's men to six hits, while Bernhardt was bombarded for thirteen in eight innings, two triples and two singles clustering in the seventh, when New York began to score.

Hess, who went in in the ninth, prevented further scoring than that done in the seventh and eighth, but that was enough to wipe out Cleveland's chances and bolster Griffiths' ambition to see the flag fly in New York, providing Cleveland can defeat Chicago.

Cleveland scored its lone one in the fourth. Turner walked and Lajoie sacrificed. Congalton was out, Williams to Chase, Turner going to third. Flick drove a double to the centre field fence, scoring Turner. That was all.

Orth kept the hits scattered thereafter very prettily and never was in danger.

New York was held down nicely until the seventh. Then the Yanks went at Bernhardt. Laporte tripled to right. Hoffman hit for three bases in the same place, scoring Laporte, and came in a minute later when Orth singled. Again in the ninth New York opened up. Williams doubled over Caffyn's head. Laporte singled, advancing him, and Hoffman's single scored him. Laporte scored when Thomas singled. Score:

LEADERS OF THREE TEAMS WHICH ARE FIGHTING IT OUT FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL PENNANT

FIELDER JONES, OF CHICAGO

CLARK GRIFFITH, OF NEW YORK.

NAPOLEON LAJOIE, OF CLEVELAND

Fielder Jones' White Sox are the favorites for winning the American League flag, but his men will have a hard time this week, as they meet the Naps and Tigers who are likely to do things to any team.

Griffith's Highlanders improved their chances by winning from the Naps yesterday in the last game of their series. This week will not be so strenuous for the New Yorkers.

MELROSE IS DAZED BY DORCHESTER'S HEAVY TEAM.

Dorchester High School's strong eleven had an easy time in defeating Melrose High by the score of 10 to 0 yesterday afternoon on the Dunbar avenue grounds, Dorchester.

In the first half Riley kicked off to Melrose's 30-yard line, but Melrose soon lost the ball to Dorchester and by the brilliant rushing of Riley and Robinson the ball was advanced to the 4-yard line, Robinson scoring the first touchdown through Melrose's centre. Riley failed to kick the goal.

Dorchester substituted her best men in the second half, and Melrose seemed dazed against the onslaught of their heavier opponents, Riley and Daley proving the stars of the half. Riley scoring two touchdowns and Daley kicking a goal.

Beal, Dorchester's left guard, who weighs 203 pounds, proved a tower of strength to the Dorchester team, his weight counting when Melrose tried to make centre plays. Leonard's brilliant tackling was also a feature. Summary:

BOSTONIANS TO SEE CUP RACE

Several Bostonians are to tour to the Vanderbilt road race. George G. Reed and Frank Crockett start to-morrow in the Knox four-cylinder, going through the Berkshires to Albany and thence down the Hudson.

John L. Snow and R. R. Ross will start Thursday, driving their Peerless over the regular route. W. J. Maguire will take a party over the road in the Pierce, and Henry Fosdick will tour to the race in a Thomas.

WINTHROP H. S., 4; DEDHAM H. S., 0

Winthrop High defeated Dedham High at Stone Field, Dedham, yesterday afternoon 4 to 0. The score was made on a goal from the field by Stockwell. The teams had a dispute after the first half and did not play the second. The score:

TUFTS IS EASY FOR WEST POINT KICKERS.

Special to Boston Sunday American.

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 29.—In the first game of the season the Cadets defeated the Tufts by a score of 12 to 0. All the scoring was in the first half, the army putting in a number of subs in the second half. A misinterpretation of the rules by the Tufts allowed Cadet Hill to run unmolested to a touchdown after Tufts had kicked out from touchback.

Although the soldiers made three touchdowns only two were allowed, owing to the timekeeper extending time of half through an error.

From the spectators' point the new game is a success and the playing to-day showed it to be open, the end runs giving a spectacular aspect that kept enthusiasm aroused throughout. The forward pass was tried, but was a failure. The onside short kick proved effectual for gains when tried. [illegible]

EXETER PROFITS BY BATES'S COSTLY FUMBLES.

Special to Boston Sunday American.

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 29.—Phillips Exeter played Bates College this afternoon and beat them 10 to 0. Exeter was by far the stronger and gained at will through Bates's line. Only twice was Exeter held for downs, while both teams were forced to kick several times. Considerable fumbling by Bates was very costly to her.

The forward pass was worked by both teams, Exeter getting more by this than did Bates, owing to the fumbling of the Bates ends. Exeter scored the first touchdown after five minutes of play by steady line bucking, gaining almost at will. Church, of Exeter, was soon pushed over again and Lynch failed to kick the goal. Score at end of first half: Exeter 10, Bates 0.

In the second half Exeter put in a number of substitutes and in this half [illegible]

French Bulldog Club to Hold Show at Allston

The first annual show of the French Bulldog Club of New England will be held at A. A. Smith's Hall, near the railroad station, Allston, on October 15, and as over 100 dogs have already been entered the event is bound to be a huge success.

Eighteen classes have been arranged, with each having one or more valuable cups to be competed for. It marks the opportunity for every French bulldog fancier to assist in still further bringing into popularity this breed of dogs.

The show committee, consisting of W. H. Smythe, A. A. Smith, C. F. Sullivan, E. W. Bright and George Hodgdon are anxious to have the show away in the lead of any ever held in the country devoted to the Frenchies. S. L. Goldenberg, of New York, have been engaged to do the judging, which is evidence of the impartiality to be had in making the awards.

Entries are to be made to W. H. Smythe, 383 Boylston street, and close on October 8.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

History repeats itself. For the third time in as many years the Vanderbilt Cup Commission has managed to get itself into a snarl. The first year the difficulties came about through the action of the so-called mechanical committee playing peek-a-boo from the East to the West in its endeavors to produce a team sufficiently capable of representing this country in the Vanderbilt.

Last year the committee did a most unparalleled feat, eliminating machines from the finals that had qualified in the trials and substituting other machines for those eliminated. This year it has furnished the world at large with a surprising inability, if such it may be termed, to cope with the problems which are placed before it. First it disqualified a competitor for having accepted outside assistance, namely being towed. The next thing heard is that the commission has reinstated the disqualified machine.

At the present time conditions are most chaotic, and one hardly dares to name the team which will represent this country in the grand final on Saturday next. The latest announcement is that the commission is to hold a meeting to-morrow night, reopen the Pope-Toledo case and listen to protests filed against every qualifier of the American team save the able Joe Tracy.

Hurts the Sport.

This is most regrettable. It puts the American public and the American sport in rather an unsettled condition. Tracy, Le Blon and Haynes rightfully, to all intents and purposes so far as is known, completed the entire distance of the preliminary according to rules and regulations and have fairly earned their position on the team. Lytle and Christie are awarded positions on the team owing to their being the next in position, some distance it is true from the leaders. Nevertheless, they had accomplished that work, and that, too, by overcoming certain handicaps. If either of them violated the racing rules any more than did any other particular machine, they should be disqualified. But having disqualified one or the other of the qualifying cars for infractions of the rules, what machines can be substituted. If statements heard on the course during and after the race can be taken as granted, then the Pope erred no more than did others.

Should Work Together.

To the individual who is seeking the glory of this country in the coming contest more than the self aggrandizement of any individual it would seem as though all such talk should be tabooed and in the interest of the common good or patriotism if you prefer—the parties should unite in an effort to produce a representative American team to battle against the foreign element. On the team as constituted as the result of the elimination of a week ago there are certainly representative racing cars, such for instance as the Locomobile, Thomas and Pope-Toledo, it being hardly fair to claim that the Haynes and the Christie machines are representative racing cars. To tell the truth their owners and manufacturers readily agree that they are nothing more nor less than touring cars, regular stock machines.

Such being the case, they have proven to the public at large that they are capable of attaining particularly fast speed and of standing up under much more gruelling work than would be demanded from them in the ordinary touring work. They have proven their ability. They have achieved great honors. Competing in the final cannot give them any greater award of merit than they received in the trials. They will unquestionably go to the start of the final. Then in the hurry and excitement of the event be overlooked and forgotten, being remembered only in the final summing up. Under the rules announced by the board before the holding of the trials these cars cannot be eliminated by the board. They may withdraw if their owners so elect, and it is understood as possible that the Haynes may do so. Christie, who has since made the fastest time over the course at an average speed of sixty-six miles an hour, will surely go to the start.

In case either of these cars should withdraw, there are at least three other machines of much higher horse power from which their substitutes could be selected, namely the Cadois, Thomas, the Belden Frayer Miller and the reserve Locomobile, the latter being an exact duplicate of the car driven to victory in the elimination.

Best American Team.

Even permitting the team to remain as it was at the close of the trials a week ago this country has unquestionably the best team that has ever done battle for the Stars and Stripes in an international motor contest. While perhaps the chances are much against Americans winning the trophy she stands an excellent chance. The fortunes of war are always problematical. Those who witnessed the trials are satisfied that the Pope-Toledo car should be given a position on the team. It earned the same and her infraction of the rule was according to those who know best an unintentional violation, not one absolutely necessary for its future welfare. That the car possesses speed is unquestioned. It looks the part of a racing machine. It is a racing machine, fully as much so as is any other car that qualified, and she should be given a position in the final.

Likely to Start.

According to the latest returns eighteen machines will compete on Saturday. Five each representing France, Italy and the United States, Germany having been content to nominate only three of the five machines to which that country is entitled. In the list of drivers and machines are some of the best known in the world, both of which have been tried and found capable, having in the past achieved success in events of international character. France is represented by an able aggregation, containing George Heath and Albert Clements who finished first and second respectively in the initial Vanderbilt. As companions they have Duray and Wagner drivers who have proven the men of the hour. Duray's latest achievement being the winning of the Ardennes circuit while Wagner achieved fame and honor in previous Gordon Bennetts. The fifth man, Elliot Shephard, is admittedly as capable a man as any on the team, and together with George Heath is considered as the more reliable, careful and considerate driver. Both are like marble when it comes to racing, keeping a cool head, and taking no desperate chances, such as one is led to believe the average Frenchman will take in, the excitement of such a contest as this.

Daring Lancia Again.

The Italian team is perhaps the most picturesque of the lot, containing as it does the redoubtable and daring Lancia, the more conservative Nazzaro and Dr Wellschott, all of whom will drive Fiats, and Fabry and Cagno, who will handle the wheel and throttle on the Itala cars. These latter two are new to this country, never having been driven in a race here.

This year Lancia finished fifth in the Grand Prix and won the Great Gold Cup touring car contest of more than 2,600 miles in Italy, which lasted nine days. Lancia has shaved off his black mustache and looks less like an opera singer than he did last year. When he was told yesterday that there were many turns in the course selected for this year's race he said that would make no difference, as he could take them as fast as any one. He said the race would be easier than the Gold Cup contest, because it is so much shorter and the drivers will not be worn out before it is finished.

He has a better car than he had last year, but does not expect to be able to use all its power except on a few stretches. He said he hoped there would be better police arrangements this year, as last year the crowds were so close to the road that it is a wonder many persons were not killed.

There were many times he could have made better time if he had not been afraid of hurting spectators. He said he liked Americans and was glad to be here again. Nazzaro is not so dashing a driver as Lancia but has had better luck the last two years. Last year he finished second to Thery and his Brasier in the Bennett cup race and in the Grand Prix last June was second to Szisz, winner of the contest. Nazzaro was third when the second day of the Grand Prix was started, and his successful efforts to wrest second place from Albert Clement furnished the most excitement of the concluding day's racing. Dr Aldo Wellschott is a very wealthy Italian amateur who races for sport's sake only.

The Italian team is for some reason or other being considered as the most dangerous and likely of the entrants, and the betting is that the team will win. The Italian cars, judging from their work on the course, have speed and ability in plenty. They are likewise driven by capable and famous men, men who have achieved fame in contests in Continental Europe.

The German team is not considered as a very dangerous proposition, and singularly enough but one German, Jenatzy, is nominated as a driver, the other two being Foxhall Keene and Luttens, both Americans. Jenatzy is one of the most daring and famous of drivers, a man who hesitates not to take the greatest chance to gain a point of advantage over his adversaries. He, like Lancia, is reckless to a degree, and can be counted upon to give a good account of himself. Of Foxhall Keene little need be said, he having for years been a figure more or less prominent in the sporting circles of the world, having had some experiences in the internationals abroad, as well as in the previous Vanderbilts. Luttens, the third member of the team, first came into prominence in the Vanderbilt of a year ago.

Foreigners Past Masters.

It is against such men as these that the American team must combat. The foreigners, with all their experience, should make the going good and hard for the local team, consisting as it does of new machines and men who, in the main, are but in the sophomore class of drivers so far as experience goes, while the foreigners are all past masters. Tracy and Lytle are the only two of the strictly Americans who have competed abroad, and then in only one race. Le Blon is, of course, the more experienced driver, he having achieved distinction abroad. Christie is an old hand at track and beach racing but so far as long distance work is concerned he has had but little experience. Harding is the novice of the entire lot, his initial performance having been witnessed in the elimination.

Nevertheless the American team can be relied upon to render a good account of itself, and it is the belief of the writer that this country will achieve as great, if not greater, success in the final as it did a year ago, when Tracy finished third.

As regards the speed of the race, that is as difficult a proposition as is the winning. Various authorities disagree as to the average speed that will be made. Some go as high as seventy miles an hour, and some say not greater than was made in the trial. Le Blon, the Frenchman, who has been over the course in both competition and practice, says that sixty miles an hour will win. I am inclined to believe that the average will be not greater than sixty-four miles. In this consideration the following tables, based on the time taken to cover the 2,971-mile circuit, will show the speed in miles an hour made by each car and may prove interesting.

NEW DUNLOP RIM SHOWN ON LARGE TOURING CAR.

The Hartford Rubber Works Company is now demonstrating its new turnbuckle and the Dunlop rim in a thoroughly practical manner by showing it up on a large touring car equipped with the new attachments. The rim itself remains practically the same as it has been since 1904. This rim was a radical departure from the older patterns of rims used at that time and still in use, but it has been gaining constantly, and the season of 1907 will see a very large number of cars equipped with this rim, as some of the most prominent manufacturers have already placed large orders with the company.

The new device shortens the time necessary to take off the head from the rim, and makes it almost instantly detachable. A small worm gear, made integral with the right and left threads, connects the two ends of the expanding ring in the rim. Threads and gear being in one piece, no give is possible to either, and the action of spreading apart for detaching, and drawing together for attaching, is made positive and effective by the square-end crank wrench fitting the centre opening in the portion below the rim. This wrench takes the place of the former round end turnbuckle key, and is an additional convenience.

Great care has been taken to give the new turnbuckle the most positive location so that no part of it can move in the slightest degree from the opening through which access is had. Improved in accuracy and effectiveness through this device they believe the turnbuckle will continue to be even in a larger measure than it has been in the past, indispensable in securing the careful adjustment of tire and rim so much desired by manufacturer and user.

The beads of the Hartford Universal rim have been drawn to a point of accuracy never before attained in rim making. The result is not only mathematical fitness for Dunlop tires, but by simply reversing the beads any Clincher tire may be used.

The car will be shown in Boston and surrounding towns during the next six weeks.

MOTOR COMPANY TO ENLARGE ITS PLANT

The Linscott Motor Company announces that in addition to bringing out three brand new models in 1907 and retaining this season's line, the National Motor Vehicle Company will begin manufacturing practically all of its own engines.

In order to do this the company has closed a lease for the old plant of the Indiana Chain Company, which will comprise two one-story buildings, giving it floor space, in addition to its already large factory, of 14,000 square feet.

The new models will consist of a four-cylinder, seven passenger touring car, with a rated horse power of forty-five-fifty; a new six cylinder, eight passenger touring car, with a rated horse power of seventy-seventy-five, and a runabout patterned after one of the two four-cylinder touring cars. The prices of the new touring cars will be $3,500 and $5,000, respectively.

MANY AGENTS FOR THE MAXWELL CAR

One of the most valuable lists ever prepared has just been completed by the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association for its members. It includes the names and addresses of every agent in the country, together with the car he handles. It is interesting to note that there are 865 first-class agents, in addition to which there are 1,298 garages that do not handle any particular make of car.

It is figured that the greatest number of agents handle the Maxwell car, there being something like 235 of them. The figures show the Ford to have 220, the Rambler more than 200 and the Reo 225.

PACKARD IS POPULAR.

The hold which the Packard seems to have secured on the local motorists is fairly demonstrated by the great number of interested persons who have visited Alvan T. Fuller in the Motor Mart since it became known that the first of the Packard 30 had reached Boston. If Mr. Fuller had his entire allotment for the coming season he could dispose of the same immediately.

NEW QUARTERS FOR A. E. MORRISON CO.

The building in process of construction at the corner of Newbury street and Massachusetts avenue has been leased by the E. A. Morrison Co., Boston agents for the Oldsmobile and Stearns. Pending the completion of the building Mr. Morrison has taken the show rooms in Kenny & Clark's, directly opposite, with a temporary garage over the Commonwealth Motor Company. Mr. Morrison will be ready for business tomorrow. His sample cars will be here early in the week.

FOSDICK CO.'S PLANS FOR NEXT SEASON

The Harry Fosdick Company announces that the coming season it will handle the full line of Thomas Flyer, including the smaller and the large four cylinder, the famous Fiat and the Baker line of electrics. These three will comprise its line for the coming season, and although it has guarantee under which the cars were sold surrendered its right to the Studebaker it announces that it will continue to carry out the conditions of the contract and during the past season. This company feels fully satisfied that it will have a winner in the Vanderbilt in either the Thomas or the Fiat.

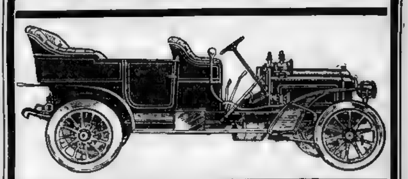
Packard

"Ask the Man Who Owns One"



A "PACKARD 30" acted as patrol car in the Glidden Tour, and each day covered more than twice the mileage of the regular contestants under exactly the same road conditions, but carrying from five to eight people.

G. G. Buse of Buffalo (a boy in his teens), in no way connected with the trade and without a mechanic or any factory assistance, drove his Packard through the Glidden Tour with a perfect score.

Consider, if you please, in its every phase, what condition of affairs it is that enables the Packard Motor Car Company not only to get out their demonstrating car first, but to have had their plant running on 1907 cars for the past three months, with the result that they are making deliveries from this time on, when other concerns are still advertising for sale their 1906 product.

THE NEW CAR IS SURE TO BE IN SALESROOM FROM 12 TO 2 DAILY

IF YOU HAVE CHILDREN

DON'T MISS THIS REMARKABLE PIANO OFFER

Other children are learning to play a piano, why shouldn't your children have the same advantage?

You have without doubt said yourself dozens of times that you would have a piano for your children if you could afford it. And the possibility of ever being able to own one may have seemed remote to you.

We now offer you an easy way to accomplish your desire. A way that will at once appeal to you because of its extreme ease of fulfillment. On the floors of our salesrooms at the present time there are at least 25 pianos that have been used slightly—some that were taken in exchange, others used for concert work, etc. Because piano styles change constantly—trifling differences in designs sometimes—we are constantly receiving new instruments. In order to make room for new pianos coming in soon, we are forced to dispose of these 25 pianos, NO MATTER WHAT THE LOSS MAY BE. We quote them at the following prices:

FOUR CHICKERING	$32,	$71,	$137,	$149
THREE HALLET & DAVIS	$27,	$75,	$135
THREE IVERS & POND..	$115,	$122,	$140
TWO HENRY F. MILLER..	$85,	$150

TWO STEINWAY, THREE GABLER, FOUR FISCHER, ONE KNABE, ONE WEBER.

You may have any one of these high-grade instruments sent immediately to your home by paying a small amount down and a weekly or monthly payment amounting to only a few pennies daily. INVESTIGATE THIS PROPOSITION TO-DAY. IT WILL PAY YOU.

HUNDREDS of PIANOS

The Very Best Makes

THROWN ON THE MARKET

Sell at ANY Price

Some of the small dealers, handling the Pianos of the Big Piano Trust, have quit and turned their stock over to us to sell—the fight was too hot for them. But their principals—the Piano Trust people—brought it on. We did not start it. The Piano Trust tried to tell us that we should not sell any of their Pianos below the fixed market price (fixed by the Piano Trust), and we told them to mind their own business and we would mind ours. We will give Pianos away if we see fit.

More Splendid Bargains This Week

The prices on the well-known standard high-class makes quoted below will not be changed for at least 6 days. Many fine new and second-hand uprights of other equally first grade makers will go for so little that you would hardly believe the prices if we quoted them.

AN OLD LADY'S BUST!

When handsomely developed she realizes it is her most potent charm. The history of marriages late in life teaches us that almost invariably the bride had a nicely developed bosom. Women of all ages should profit by this. Young or old, nature intended you to have a voluptuous breast, and if you have not, and want a firm, plump and handsome bust, use Dr. Conway's Bustoids, which restores, enlarges and develops them voluptuously every time. CALL AND FIND OUT FREE how easily they can be enlarged 4 to 10 inches "quietly" at home. Sealed facts 4c. stamps. CONWAY SPECIFIC CO., 496 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

A WORD ABOUT "OLD 56"

We are distillery contractors. "Old 56" is distilled for us under special contract by one of the oldest and best known distilleries in Kentucky. After being properly blended, and aged in old charred white oak casks, it is bottled by us and sold under our own brand, "Old 56." It is a straight, honest whiskey, well matured and of fine flavor. By cutting out middleman's profits we are enabled to sell "Old 56" at prices which we pledge you our word are lower than those of all other dealers for whiskey of like quality. Send us a trial order this week.

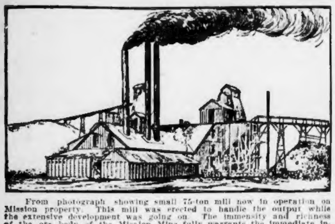
Lead and Zinc Most Profitable and Permanent of All Mining



From photograph showing small 75-ton mill now in operation on Mission property. This mill was erected to handle the output while the extensive development was going on. The immensity and richness of the ore body of the Mission Mine fully warrants the immediate installation of a 1,000-ton mill, which will increase the capacity nearly fourteen times that of our present mill.

The world's greatest financiers have seen the possibilities of Lead and Zinc. They are to-day investing millions in Lead and Zinc stocks. They are piling up their wealth with dividends from lead and zinc investments. Gold mines no longer attract them. The cry is for Lead and Zinc. The shrewd financiers know that Lead and Zinc are the safest, most profitable and most permanent form of investment in the realm of mining. An investment in Lead and Zinc stocks affords the safety of a government bond with the speculative element of a gold mine. The great Southwestern Lead and Zinc Field is positively the best in the world. The Baxter Springs District is the richest section of this great field, in which is located the Mission Mine. The Underwriters Mine, in this field, with a 1,000-ton mill (an exact duplicate of the mill with which we propose to equip the Mission Mine), is clearing $50,000 per month and yielding 60 per cent. in dividends to its stockholders. The famous Moyer Mine, of the Leadville District in Colorado, is a lead and zinc mine, producing millions in dividends. Indeed, there is seven times as much Lead and Zinc produced in the Leadville District as there is gold, and still, famous as it is, it does not begin to compare with the Southwestern Lead and Zinc Field. There are more than 700 paying lead-zinc mines in this Southwestern field. Each succeeding year has seen an increased number of producing mines opened up and developed. The Empire Zinc Mine has paid dividends of 280 per cent., and the stock is worth eight times its par value. The Enterprise Lead and Zinc mine has paid dividends of 2[illegible] per cent., and its stock is quoted at seven times its par value. Investment in a mine like the Mission, in actual operation, with enormous ore bodies positively proven, is an investment second to none in point of certainty, profit and safety. Profits in lead and zinc mining are greater to-day than ever. If you investigate you will find that Lead and Zinc are the ores that pay. The Joplin Globe, speaking of the activity in lead and zinc mining in the Great Southwestern District, said: "More than thirteen million dollars was produced in lead and zinc ore in this district alone in 1905, the largest production in the history of the great lead and zinc belt. Prices were better than ever before, and dividends declared during the year made thousands of men in all sections of the country rich."

TWO YEARS have been spent in developing The Mission Lead and Zinc Mine, opening up over 2,000 feet of drifts and sinking shafts, so that a sufficiently large force of men could be worked to take out ore to keep a large mill in continuous operation. The property has been proved in every way. The Mission Mine is conceded to be the most valuable in the entire Baxter Springs district. Now, after every element of risk has been eliminated, you are invited to join us and help furnish money for the installation of a 1,000-ton mill, which will make the Mission one of the largest dividend payers in the Southwestern Lead-Zinc District.

These Men Have Inspected the Mission—Read What They Say.

F. S. Hall, President Baxter National Bank, Baxter Springs, Kas.

"I have been through the Mission Mine, and consider it the most valuable mine in the Southwestern District. It will surely earn large dividends. I am personally acquainted with the officers and directors, and consider them men of sterling integrity and excellent business qualifications."

C. M. Sumner, Ore Buyer, Galena, Kas.

"I consider the Mission the best proposition in the entire Joplin-Galena-Baxter district. I do not know a mine that has been so thoroughly prospected as the Mission, nor one that has so much ore in sight. All the mine needs is a mill of larger capacity. It is a great money-making proposition. I base my opinion on 25 years' experience buying ore for Lanyon Zinc Co. I have been in the Mission Mine frequently and have bought most of its output for the last two years."

F. A. Brown, Capitalist, Baxter Springs, Kas.

"I have been in close touch with development of the Mission Mine in last two years, and believe every statement made in their advertising matter to be conservative and that realization will exceed expectations. An immense body of ore is blocked out, and the completion of a mill handling 1,000 tons daily will make this company a big payer. Mission stock is worth par to-day, and will sell there before long. I believe that its earnings will exceed half a million dollars per year. I have no personal interest in the Mission except the purchase of stock made by me this week."

Edward C. Gates, Keene & Gates, Attorneys, Fort Scott, Kas.

"I have been down in the Mission Mine and carefully examined it. The ground is in splendid shape, has a magnificent body of ore, and all the company needs is a large concentrating mill that will handle from 1,000 to 2,000 tons per day. This provided, the mill will pay big dividends. I am personally acquainted with nearly all of the officers, and they are men of excellent business qualifications, who stand high in the community and are experienced in mining business. Investment in this company is safe, and it is only a question of a short time before it will pay big dividends."

Chas. E. Martin, Manager Martin-Baldwin Mining Company, Chanute, Kas.

"We recently inspected the Mission Mine. We feel certain it is a great mine. We feel more certain of its future. Mill capacity of a thousand tons will put this mine on dividend basis that would satisfy the most sanguine expectations of any investor. It was with these conditions in view we invested $20,000, and we feel very good about our investment."

G. E. Rucker, Manager A. Hood & Sons Implement Company, Baxter Springs, Kas.

"I consider the Mission Mine the best in this camp and one of the best in the Southwest District. The drillings on the Mission Mine show an immense sheet formation of ore. This property contains the smallest element of risk of any mining proposition I know of, and is a good thing to invest in."

J. W. Watson, General Manager Nebraska Mining & Developing Company, Baxter Springs, Kas.

"I unhesitatingly state that the Mission is the biggest and best developed mine in this territory, and only needs a big mill to pay stockholders very liberal dividends. The officers are personally known to me to be men of unquestioned integrity. Money invested in the Mission Mine is in safe hands."

W. T. Hartley, Mayor Baxter Springs, Kas.

"The Mission has produced largest amount of ore of any mine in the Baxter Camp. It is now ready for a large mill, and this should make immense profits for the stockholders."

Irving Allison, First National Bank of Omaha, Omaha, Neb.

"The Mission Mining Company's property is an exceptionally promising one, and the opportunity is there to make a large and profitable enterprise. Its very thick vein of uniform quality of lead and zinc, nearness to the surface, accessibility, etc., make it one that needs only a large mill to make it highly profitable."

J. H. Conrad, Wholesale Hay, Grain, Etc., Omaha, Neb.

"At the time I visited the Mission Mine I was impressed with the immense body of ore and its wonderful richness. Its capacity for earning dividends is limited only to its equipment. You have ore enough to last generations with a mill of 1,000 tons capacity."

Dr. C. S. Shepard, Omaha, Neb.

"My opinion of the Mission Mine is very favorable indeed. I believe there is no better field for investment. The Mission Mine is one of the best properties in the Baxter Mining Field, and is surely capable of returning big profits if a larger modern mill is erected. I have never seen such rich mineral deposits within such easy reach as in the Mission Mine."

J. B. Thomas, Cashier Bank of Albany, Albany, Mo.

"I believe the Mission Mine is the most promising mine in the Southwest. With a 1,000-ton mill it would undoubtedly pay immense dividends to its stockholders."

George Ward, Cashier First National Bank, King City, Mo.

"I have been through the Mission Mine and found the ground well developed. With 1,000-ton mill this will be a splendid paying mining proposition. I have a claim of only 10 acres, adjoining the Mission, upon which I expect to erect a mill of 300 tons daily capacity."

FREE SAMPLES OF LEAD AND ZINC ORES.

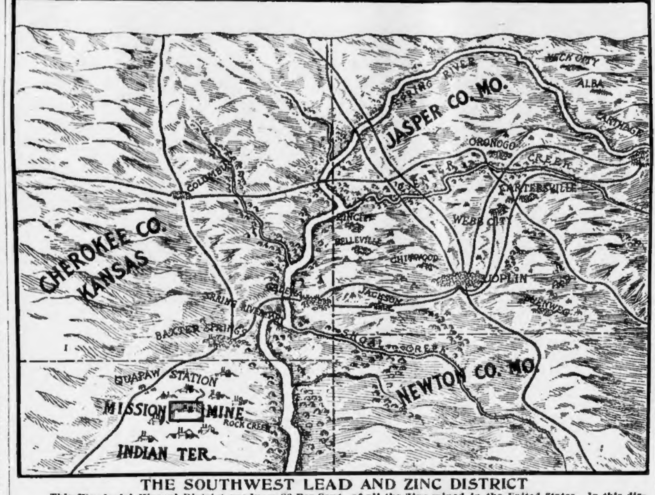
To anyone interested we will send by mail, all charges prepaid, samples of crude ore from the Mission Mine as it appears when taken from the ground, also samples of the Lead and Zinc after they have passed through the concentrating process and are ready for shipment.

Send to-day for these free samples and handsomely illustrated prospectus, map of the field and full information.



THE SOUTHWEST LEAD AND ZINC DISTRICT

This Wonderful Mineral District produces 80 Per Cent. of all the Zinc mined in the United States. In this district there are 700 Lead and Zinc Mines in actual operation and on a Dividend Paying basis. The trend of this Rich Mineral Zone lies from Northeast to Southwest and passes directly through the Mission property.

NINE YEARS' SALES OF LEAD AND ZINC IN SOUTHWEST DISTRICT

1905	$13,302,800	1902	$9,430,890	1899	$10,715,305
1904	11,487,350	1901	7,971,650	1898	7,119,865
1903	9,471,395	1900	7,992,105	1897	4,726,300

The Southwest Lead and Zinc District comprises a comparatively small area in Kansas, Missouri and Indian Territory. The lead and zinc deposits of this section extend in a northeast and southwest direction. These deposits find their greatest extent in the Baxter Springs District, in which is located the Mission Mine. The production of Lead and Zinc in this southwest field for the past seven years totals the magnificent sum of $70,423,922. Ore was first discovered in the Baxter Springs District in 1903. It is a remarkable fact that every shaft sunk in this district has shown ore in sufficient quantities to justify further development. This record has never been equaled by any other district. The Mission is located two miles from the town of Quapaw, on the main line of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, seven miles south of Baxter Springs, Kas. The immense ore body is found at a depth of only 50 feet below the surface.

We propose to make the Mission a mine of such magnificent proportions that no other lead and zinc mine can rank with it in any particular. As soon as the necessary equipment can be installed the Mission will begin to roll up its millions in dividends for its stockholders.

SECURE MISSION STOCK BY SMALL MONTHLY PAYMENTS

By our plan of easy payments—ten per cent. down and ten per cent. monthly—it is possible for even the smallest investor to enter into partnership with us in this great industry and become a sharer in its enormous profits. A large block of Mission stock can be reserved now at the ground-floor price and paid for in small sums that will be hardly noticed. Moreover, your whole reservation will receive the benefit of every advance while you are still paying for it.

Send for particulars at once, and let us tell you more fully of this wonderful opportunity.

BAXTER SPRINGS PEOPLE ARE BUYING MISSION STOCK

When people who have been on the ground through every step of the development of a mine, and have been intimately associated with its growth, invest their money heavily in it, the mine can safely be considered as fulfilling the claims made for it. Below we give a list of some of the citizens of Baxter Springs, Kansas, who have watched the progress made in development of the Mission Mine from the time the first drill hole was put down. THEY KNOW the mine is at present a tremendously rich property and that its future prosperity is assured. They have placed their money in this mine with the utmost confidence that it would be returned to them many fold. Surely there is no better evidence of the safety and profit of an investment in the Mission than the fact that those who are RIGHT ON THE GROUND are among the first to invest in it. Note the class of people whose names are given and their evident high standing in the community. They invested in this property solely because they KNEW IT TO BE A SAFE, PROFITABLE AND PERMANENT INVESTMENT.

Stock in the Mission Mine---Actually Operating---is a Better Investment Than Stock in a Mere Prospect

Would you rather buy stock in a mining claim, which, upon being developed with your money, may or may not prove valuable, or would you prefer stock in a mine with two years' development work done, now in actual operation, already on a dividend-earning basis, with over 6,000,000 tons of ore proven?

We believe you will decide in favor of the proven, operating mine, which represents actual, intrinsic value, rather than a "prospect" of no present value and of UNCERTAIN FUTURE VALUE. Stock in DEVELOPED PROPERTIES SUCH AS THE MISSION IS USUALLY PLACED ON THE MARKET AT PAR. However, the directors of the Mission Mining Co. decided that the best method of obtaining quick returns, enabling them to carry out their extensive plans at an early date, was to offer the stock for sale at a price within the reach of even the smallest investor.

Even undeveloped mines in the Southwestern Lead and Zinc district are very valuable. Therefore, when the Mission stock is placed on the market at the ground-floor price the prospective investor is offered a proposition of unusual merit—an interest in a property with tangible assets, and not a mere prospect.

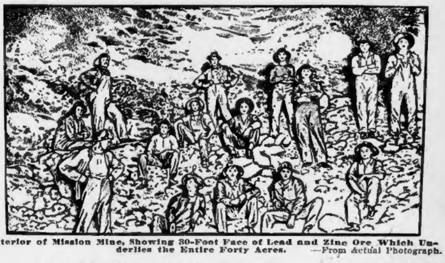
$540,000 A YEAR IN DIVIDENDS

We have put in two years developing the Mission Mine. The property has been proven ir ery way. There is not a particle of doubt as to the immense ore body, which is waiting for dequate facilities with which to mine it. We have the mine, we have the ore, and are w ready for a 1,000-ton mill. Everything is in readiness to begin earning large dividends s soon as this equipment can be installed. Those qualified to speak say that the immense proved e bodies would supply a 2,000 or 3,000 ton mill, but for the present it is desired to install equip ent to handle 1,000 tons per day, producing concentrates worth $3,612 per day. After deducting st and expenses of every nature and description, even this capacity will yield a net profit of not s than $1,800. Counting 300 working days per year, this production will yield a net profit of 0,000 a year. As soon as the new equipment of machinery is installed and in full operation d dividends are being paid, the actual value of Mission stock should be at least $2.00 per share. e history of the world's great mines reveals the fact that without exception, their profitable rking became possible only after their production had reached large proportions. Every great ne, if operated on a small scale, would in a short time become absolutely bankrupt. They all ch a point where large facilities become an absolute necessity.

100,000 SHARES NOW OFFERED AT THE GROUND-FLOOR PRICE

In order to begin at once the installation of a 1,000-ton mill and other necessary equipment, e Board of Directors has authorized the sale of a block of 100,000 shares of treasury stock. There is no preferred stock; every share shares alike; stock full-paid and non-assessable, par value $1.00 r share. As proof of our faith in the future of the Mission Mine we make this liberal offer: y as much of this stock as you want. Thoroughly investigate the matter for 30 days. Then, if u do not wish to keep your stock, the company will return your money in full and promptly. I, rsonally, will do even better: Buy stock now, and if at the end of one year you are not entirely tisfied with your investment I will guarantee to sell every share of your stock. This is a clinch g argument, showing that we have faith in this proposition and know that it is a sound business terprise, which will pay enormously as soon as adequate facilities are installed with which to ndle the ore. After you have investigated our statements, look up the records of our officers and rectors. Get a report on them from any commercial agency, and you will find they fulfil every re irement of the most exacting investor. The more you investigate, the better the proposition looks. If you contemplate buying $1,000 worth of stock, we will gladly pay the expenses of your visit to e property, so you can personally verify every statement made. We court the most searching in stigation on any and every point about this property. Invest with us only when you are thor ghly satisfied this is the greatest investment opportunity now before the public.



nterior of Mission Mine, Showing 30-Foot Face of Lead and Zinc Ore Which Underlies the Entire Forty Acres. —From Actual Photograph.

40 ACRES OF ORE--30 FEET IN THICKNESS

Three shafts have been opened up and twelve drifts have been driven. Every foot of this drifting has been through an immense blanket formation of ore. To prove the extent of the ore deposits, test drill holes have been sunk on every portion of the Mission property, absolutely demonstrating that this great body of ore, averaging 30 feet in thickness, underlies the entire 40 acres. This 40-acre tract is 1,320 feet in length by 1,307 feet in breadth; multiplying these two numbers gives the square feet of the ore body, and multiplying this product by the thickness—30 feet—gives the number of cubic feet. As it requires but eight cubic feet of ore from the Mission Mine to weigh a ton, these figures show that we have 6,469,650 tons of ore, worth $23,368,308. The sales of concentrates from the Mission Mine, during the past two years of development work, in which time there has been mined more than 90,000 tons of crush ore, prove that the ore averages 6 per cent. of concentrates, of which 3.6 per cent. is zinc and 2.4 per cent. is lead. Basing our estimate on the present market price of these two metals (Lead, $80.00 per ton; Zinc, $49.00 per ton), it is an easy matter to determine the value of this immense deposit of ore.

Big Dividends Earned by Lead and Zinc Mines

The following figures, showing dividends earned by a number of mining companies, are taken from the official report of the State Mine Inspector of Missouri. The mines are all situated in the Southwestern District. These figures prove that lead and zinc mining in the Southwest District is immensely profitable. It can be seen from these official figures that the Mission does not overestimate its probable earnings in any particular. There is every reason to believe that the Mission can do as well as any of the companies mentioned, or even better.

THE 40-ACRE TRACT OF THE MISSION MINE.

Only two-thirds of an acre of ore has been removed in two years' development work. The test drill holes prove a 30-foot blanket of ore underlying our entire 40 acres.

You Must Act Quickly If You Want Mission Stock

The rate at which subscriptions are being received indicates that the present small allotment of stock at the ground-floor price will soon be taken up. The next allotment will be placed on the market at a much higher figure. When our new 1,000-ton mill is installed, Mission stock will almost certainly, within the next few months, go to par value of $1.00 a share. We want you to investigate this opportunity. You will want to look up our references and find out all about our property—no sane man would invest without doing so. We offer you every facility for making the investigation thorough, and we know that the more you investigate the better you will be pleased. Write today for prospectus and complete information. We will also send you ore samples from the Mission Mine, showing ore both in crude and concentrated form. You incur no obligation whatever—we simply want a chance to place the facts before you, knowing that you will be more than anxious to take advantage of this splendid opportunity when you realize what we are offering you.
